We note, while looking in the dictionary for the preferred spelling of "caddie" or "caddy" that the word's original meaning was "cadet." From the scores coming out of Portland this week, we'd judge that some of the cadets are about to become lieutenants.

The Portland Valley league is all tied up and so are both branches of the Cascade league. Looks as though we'd have some hot ball games in the next five Hillsboro was technically the home team and was deprived of its sixth inning turn at bat, but the Merchants had not scored in their half so the score really should go back to where it was at the end of the fifth. Either way, it's a lousy way to play ball.

Even though lost balls on Olinger field are scarcer than on many others, three weren't enough Rigotti had doubled and DeCrisand they had to borow a couple from the Senators. Scores Sunday At Salem 17, EverReady 3.

At Vancouver (Merchants) 3, Hillsboro 2 (6 innings). At Newberg 6, Compton's 12.

It begins to look as though the Salem Senators have some sort of jinx on Jimmy Rogers, whom they drove off the mound here Sunday for the second time this season. The Senators defeated the Ever-Ready team from Portland 17 to 3 to enter a three-way tie for first place in the second half race of the Portland Valley league. On the other hand it's possible that Rogers, recalling the lacing the Solons handed him earlier in the season, started bearing down too hard in the opening innings of Sunday's game. As in the previous encounter, they got to him for two big innings and he went to the showers after six runs had come in in the second of these. the sixth inning, and nobody was out. The climax of the assault on the rotund Rogers was a home run by Andy Peterson. After getting one run on Lou Girod's single and a brace of errors in the second, the home team which incidentally was officially the visiting team for this game, landed on Rogers for four hits in the third and these coupled with two walks counted for five runs. All this happened after the first two men were out.

Zeke Girod singled and then brother Ted hit what looked like a three-bagger but Umpire Gardner called it a foul. Ted finally drew a walk and Zeke went to The manner in which the Van- third on an unnecessary throw to bases were loaded. He blanked the Solons in the sixth but was nicked for three more runs in the seventh on two walks and hits by Erickson and Olinger; and two in the eighth on hits by Adolph, Peterson, Zeke Girod and Ted Girod.

EverReady spoiled its own chance in the first inning after tofer singled. Rogers drove in EverReady's first run in the second inning with a single after A. Peccia and Scheiter had hit ahead of him. Ever-Ready threatened again in the sixth and eighth, and finally put over two runs in the ninth on hits by F. Peccia and DeCristofer coupled with two errors. Peterson fanned 11 batsmen,
