

SALEM PEOPLE ARE BACK FROM EUROPE

Report Interesting Travels Abroad; see Royalty and Call on Pope

One of the most interesting and educational trips taken in recent years by Salem travelers was that of Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Brown, Mrs. Catherine Ford and Miss Louise Ford, who returned Wednesday evening after having spent nearly the past six months in Europe.

The Salem travelers spent considerable time in France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland, the British Isles and other countries, while the majority of the time was spent in and around Vienna. The party was fortunate in seeing the king and queen of England, who were at Edinburgh, and also the Prince of Wales and while in Rome they were included in a group that had an audience with the pope.

Dr. Brown states that Austria is probably feeling the effects of the war more than any other European country, but with all its handicaps considered is making rapid strides toward normalcy. The entire party was especially attracted to the beauties of the Rhine valley which is "the most beautiful and highly developed country ever seen."

Work is Held Way Back to Better Times by Penney; 110 Men Hear His Speech

One hundred and ten Salem merchants and professional men gathered to hear the speech of J. C. Penney here yesterday noon in an informal no-ho-ho luncheon served at noon at the Marion hotel.

"The only thing which will bring back what we are pleased to call 'the good old times' will be hard work and plenty of it," said Mr. Penney in opening a 25-minute address in which he discussed the subject, "Working Our Way Back."

"The time is ripe when we must pick up the working tools we dropped to chase the rain-bow. It is the pick and shovel of individual industries that prosperity is searching for," Mr. Penney averred.

He was introduced by Judge George H. Rossman of the state supreme court, who characterized Mr. Penney as "J. Cash Penney, a man who has succeeded in doing ordinary things a little better than ordinary men."

Mr. Penney's remarks, in part, follow: "Prosperity will never run into us unawares. When it comes back it will be because we have reached out and pulled it into the doors of our own individual establishments."

"If we have restricted certain of our markets by unwise regulations, it remains for the hard working business man who can point to his own efforts as sufficient indication that he is doing his best to see that corrections in these regulations are made."

FORECAST MONSTER OVER-OCEAN LINERS

AKRON, O., August 6—(AP)—The huge dock where Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the president, will christen the navy's new dirigible Akron Saturday, is expected in a few years to be the workshop for great transoceanic air liners.

In this dock, so gigantic that it has weather stations independent of those outside, engineers putting together girders and fabric, have created for themselves a new fund of knowledge of dirigible building.

This knowledge, accompanied by years of experience of veteran zeppelin builders imported from Europe, will go into the new transoceanic air liners.

Under the Dome...

CORVALLIS seems to be the capital of the state this week. At least about everyone who possibly could do so were there yesterday or are going today, while the rest of them wished they could go.

But with reports that the Legion has been asked to go slow on frivolity, there may be a difference. But it will be hard to dispense with the lighter side of that convention, for when war veterans get together it is a case of "When Good Fellows Get Together." More power to them. It is hoped they have a happy time.

Willard Marks, who served Oregon as its governor on several occasions recently, but who is better known as state senator, was here on law business yesterday. Several made applications for jobs to him when he enters congress, but he informed them they had better apply elsewhere.

Echoes of the famous Tracy escape from the state penitentiary in 1902 were heard here today with the visit of Morris Smith, whose rifle wounded the convict and resulted in his death by his own hand before he was captured. Smith is now assistant district prohibition director, with headquarters in Seattle.

At last the newspaper reporters received a compliment, and that by a citizen of Salem. The long looked for word of commendation was appreciated, even if it had to be suggested by this column yesterday. They felt so good about it they accepted an invitation to the luncheon this noon and heard J. C. Penney tell how to make business pay.

Speaking of baseball and depression, the baseball park in Portland at night games looks anything like depressed times. Wednesday night several from Salem attended the game in Portland and had to use pall to get good seats. Night baseball

ASSAULT WITH AX IS CHARGE FACED

J. C. Robertson of Stayton slumbered last night in the county jail here awaiting a hearing before the grand jury. He is charged with assaulting a man with a dangerous weapon, the party having been one Stoney, who lives in the Union Hill district out of Stayton.

A week ago, according to Sheriff Oscar Bower, Robertson and Morley, both about 25 years of age, got into a dispute over the right of way on a road. Robertson is said to have smitten Morley across his cheek with the flat side of a double-bitted ax. Morley went down and out for several hours. When he told his story to a Stayton doctor, the Stayton constable was informed and Robertson was arrested.

He had a preliminary hearing before Justice J. B. Grier of Stayton who set his bail at $400. Robertson was unable to furnish bail.

to go after business. Lots of the unemployed agree with him, but the problem of so many is where to go to work and when to start. The willingness is not so lacking.

Now that the milk war is settled, all that remains is to find out just who settled it or "who won the war." Many are already taking credit for it. Several state officials at Salem claim the credit, and Mayor Baker and other officials of Portland claim the credit, while the dairymen also boost their stock. The fellow who pays for it though is the milk consumer.
