Thomas H. Gentle Plans to Resume Teaching in Fall

MONMOUTH, Aug. 12 — Thomas H. Gentle, formerly director of training schools for the Oregon Normal school at Monmouth, and for the past several years a professor in the extension department of the University of Oregon, was able this summer to teach in the University's summer school in Portland, after having spent a year in rest at his Monmouth farm following a serious illness. Mr. Gentle says he is quite restored to good health now, and has gained in weight, and probably will resume his accustomed work of teaching this fall. At present he is putting in a busy season caring for Jersey cows at the Gentle farm.

AIN'T IT NICE TO BE BIG AND LEAD THE PARADE

That is, we figure it would be, not ever havin' had the pleasure of leadin' one of 'em. But by gum that doesn't keep us from braggin' a bit and claimin' that we do. Now what in the name of goodness got us to thinking about parades anyway? Oh, yes, someone showed us an ad of oneatha big trust chains, and of course the ad was written by a real ad writer livin' in some other city and naturally can't be blamed for not knowin' the real situation in this neck o' the woods. And that bein' the case, he shouldn't be criticized to severely because after all he hasta write somethin' and blowin' about one thing's as good as another. And now if we can only remember what he was blowin' about in that particular ad—that blank space represents us scratchin' our head. We do that when we're tryin' to use it (use our head, we mean, not the blank space). Oh yeah, (well, we mean the blank space on the paper and not the one in our head). Folks, its nice to have a memory like we have, specially when it so cultivated as ours. Not bein' able to quote that darn ad verbatim, we may be in over our head usin' such a big word as verbatim, but if we ever are goin' to get to be big we gotta use big words like that once'n a while. Try as we will, we can't find a place to bring that confounded chain ad into this one and make it fit (there may be two t's in fit, if so just add one, it'll be all right with us). And this is what the chain ad was claimin'—or at least this is what the ad man wrote:

Leadin' the procession in the downward decline in prices. Don't know as we ever heard of a price declinin' upward until the chains came along — they have claimed so many great things, like for instance reducin' prices and savin' the customers so much money. In fact they done it so well they've just about saved all the customers' money for 'em (for the chains, we've been told).

Fresh Sweet Cream Butter Don't confuse with standard or storage 2 Pounds 65c Daggone these hens, they've simply gotta be more careful. One of our customers was in the other day and got a dozen or so eggs that we and he had every right to believe were honest value, but accordin' to this feller's wife those doggone hens were feelin' the depression like most everything else. So they slipped some bad eggs over on us, and accordin' to the man that bought 'em from us, we've lost a darn good customer all on acct. of those hens bein' careless. We've got that fixed now though, we got in touch with a lot more hens and they guarantee fresh eggs. And to do the right thing ourself we're gonna sell 2 Dozen of 'em for 39c	Pillsbury's Best Flour made from old wheat 49 lb. sk. $1.25 White Spray Flour also made of old wheat 49 lb. sk. 99c Flavor Foods Flava Mayonnaise, pint jars 27c It's not a trust product and another thing it's made in Oregon and 27c per pint puts it in the Best Value group of goods.
