Will be Recommendation of Utilities Committee on Monday, Forecast

Some Details not Settled Yet and Debate Likely On Policy to Follow

A mountain water system, with the North Santiam river or one of its tributaries furnishing the supply, will be the recommendation of Salem's public utility committee of the council to that body next Monday night. This fact appeared certain here yesterday after members of the utility committee had expressed individual opinions on the report which is to be given to the council.

Before it makes its report the committee has certain details to decide upon. One is the question of the election at which the municipal water system proposal will be submitted to the voters. Some councilmen favor holding a special election this fall; others would defer the water question until next spring at the primary election held in May.

Another question concerns the status of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company and its possible inclusion as a consumer of water in Salem. If this plant bought its water from proposed mountain water supply, the capacity of the pine line and reservoir would need to be doubled.

Conference With Paper Men Waits

Until last night members of the utilities committee had been unsuccessful in seeing representatives of the paper concern. Several appointments had been made to interview the industry's offifor one reason or another. That there is a wide diversity council was evident this week. Mayor P. M. Gregory has recently support be advised by certain of his constitutents to leave the question of purchasing the plant of the Oregon-Washington Water Service Clark Will Not company here alone. These constituents declare the city should issue bonds for a mountain water system, start construction of the pipe line and then negotiate with the present water company. If the company did not make a price deemed reasonable, the city should construct its own system and let the present company go on doing a competitive system. (Turn to page 2, col. 8)
