BANK ACCOUNTS OF CANNON ARE EYED

Senate Probers Say Bishop Used Political Funds To pay own Debts

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The senate campaign funds committee today searched bank accounts maintained by Bishop James Cannon when he headed the anti-Smith committee of Virginia in 1928, and after tracing the scores of checks Chairman Nye charged the bishop with transferring political funds to his personal account.

Four Virginia bankers related how Bishop Cannon had paid off personal notes during the campaign and just after it. They identified checks going into his personal account and Nye said the bank records showed some of these were drawn on the "political fund" maintained by Cannon in the Continental Trust company of Washington.

Senator Dill, democrat of Washington, complained Bishop Cannon had drawn $5,300 from his account in the Continental Trust company, "Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman" in November 1928, and had deposited the check to set up an account, "Bishop James Cannon, Jr., executor," in Crewe, Va. The bishop was executor of the estate of Mrs. C. Moore who died in 1924. He later changed the "executor" account to a checking account.

Political Account Said Transferred

Six checks deposited by the bishop between October 13, 1928, and January 30, 1929, in his personal account in the American National bank of Richmond were identified by Perry C. Seay, vice president of the now American Bank and Trust company, as being drawn on the Continental Trust company of Washington.

Nye said these checks, totalling $9,500, were drawn from the "political account" in the Washington bank.

Another transaction examined was the transfer and retransfer of more than $18,000 on February 11, 1929, between the personal accounts of Bishop Cannon in the Richmond bank and the anti-Smith democrats account in the same bank on the same day.

Nye said "that deal seems to be just a cross deposit between accounts."

Hearings will be resumed tomorrow. Ada L. Burroughs, treasurer of Bishop Cannon's anti-Smith committee, who previously refused to testify, is among those called.

Organist Once Here Plays For Vitaphone Acts

People who attended the show at the Elsinore last night identified the organist in the song reel "For You," a Vitaphone production, as Harry Mills formerly of Salem. Harry played the organ at the Grand theatre some years ago, then went to Los Angeles where he was organist in the Warner Bros. theatre there. Later he went with Vitaphone when sound pictures came in. Sol Dolgin knew him in Hollywood but didn't know he was an old Salem boy.

Mills has relatives here and many friends who are interested in his progress.

Hawks Smashes Atlanta-Newark Flight Records

NEWARK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Captain Frank Hawks, completing a flight from Atlanta late today, brought in another record. He covered the last lap of his trip from Camden, N. J., to Newark in 21 minutes, two minutes better than the speed record between the two cities.

Stopping at six cities, he traversed the 602 miles from Atlanta in 4 hours and 35 minutes flying time, arriving fifteen minutes in advance of his mother, Mrs. Ida Mae Hawks who left Atlanta today on a regular commercial passenger plane.

Youthful Caddy Is State Champ

ROSWELL, N. M., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Carl Jones, a gangly 17 year old Roswell caddy, playing with borrowed clubs, is the 1931 New Mexico golf champion. He defeated a veteran southwestern golfer, L. H. "Cedar" Puckett of Roswell and Amarillo, Texas, 2 and 1 over 34 holes this afternoon.
