

Monmouth Householders Object to New Student Ruling

BOARD SEEKS USE OF DORM

But Landers Gains Moratorium After Townspeople Get Together

MONMOUTH, Aug. 27.—An announcement last week that under authority of the state board of higher education, all young women students of the Oregon Normal school would be required for the first time to spend their first year in one of the dormitories on the campus belonging to the state, has caused considerable consternation among Monmouth householders who make a business of rooming and boarding students. This rule, with slight modification has been in effect at Oregon State college and the State university.

Several householders' meetings have been held so far this week, relating to the requirement that junior women students live exclusively at one of the dormitories.

Free In Past
Always in the past, students have been free to live at any of the householders' homes, either as roomer and boarder, or occupying housekeeping apartments, such homes being approved by the dean of women.

The action of the state board in making this new ruling seems to have been motivated by an earnest effort to place the younger students more completely under the control of the institution during their first year away from home, and thereby help them to come into closer contact with the Normal school, catch its spirit earlier, and permit the school to be more directly responsible for them. This left the senior women, who had already gotten adjusted to the school and its regulations, the privilege of living at any of the approved householders' homes.

Homes Held Cheaper
It has been pointed out at the various householders' meetings, that the problem of retrenchment, so vital now in all walks of life, would not permit a large number of these junior women students to attend the Normal school, if restricted to living in the dormitories; since many girls depend upon bringing much of their food from home and doing their own cooking. This method enables a great reduction of living costs, and is the only means available to many to obtain an education by avoidance of the high cost of living.

So many students were canceling reservations about town, and

Buzzards Discovered By Young to be Freed But Are Banded First

SCIO, Aug. 27.—W. H. Young in June, while looking for blackberries on the Randall hill near this city, discovered a buzzard's nest in a stump. It held one fledgling and one pipped egg. Contrary to belief that the young are black, owing to the jet-black feathers of their parents, the young buzzards were white as cotton, resembling "mildred's" coddledown powder puff.

Dr. A. G. Prill has from time to time visited the nest, and banded a leg of each bird with an aluminum band on which Charles Young of Albany had engraved "W. H. Young, Scio, Ore., U. S. A., 6-31." They will return in the spring to the locality in which they are hatched.

announcing that they would be unable to attend school at all this fall, that President J. S. Landers laid the matter before the state board and secured a prompt reversal of the requirement for this year, it was stated at a meeting held Wednesday in the administration building.

Indications are now that a very good attendance will be registered for the opening fall term, which starts September 22.

Petunia Has 450 Blossoms

ZENA, Aug. 7.—Zena is noted for beautiful crops of brilliant shrubbery and beautiful flowers. Those who are interested in the latter have found a great attraction here to be a remarkably profuse petunia which is owned by Mrs. James A. French.

The plant, which survived the rigors of last winter in a flower box on the southeast side of the house, has 450 blossoms and innumerable buds. The blossoms are a dainty shade of blue. Mrs. French is a lover of flowers and has a collection of oddities, including some rare and lovely plants.

Ton and Half Of Mountain Honey Taken

CLOVERDALE, Aug. 27.—Kenneth Russell has finished harvesting a ton and a half of honey, which is mainly a mountain product and is very fine. He has practically disposed of all of this amount as he has many customers. He has 70 hives of bees.

Ernest Kunke and son Walde-mar of Portland spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kunke.

Miss Mildred Schifferer is employed now in the state library in Salem.

Miss Gertrude Anderson, who is employed as bookkeeper at the Alpine dairy near Portland spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. Jay Cook and daughter, Gertrude spent the week end at the Ivan Koch home in Salem.

Darnell is Erecting Garage and Service Station at Lyons

LYONS, Aug. 27.—Pearl Darnell is erecting a new service station, garage and confectionery building on his place in the east part of town. He has the gas well and pump in service and the building is well under way.

Mr. Darnell's brother, who is recently from Phoenix, Arizona is a mechanic and will take care of the repair work in connection with the new business. Mr. and Mrs. Darnell and son and daughter, will have charge of the lunch room and gas station.

Lyons people appreciate the addition of another business house, especially at this time of rather slack business conditions.
