Mrs. Julius Meier Endorses Oregon Products

auguration of Governor Julius L. Meier, the people of Oregon were given an opportunity to hear our First Lady of Oregon", when she appeared last evening "on the air", in the interests of Oregon products. Mrs. Meier highly commended the people of Oregon for the interest taken in stimulating Oregon industry and expanded Oregon payrolls. In part Mrs. Meier said: "During a recent visit through the state last summer, I found Oregon residents, deploring the depression in Oregon's great timber industry, yet bringing in for their own homes building materials cheaper, no more beautiful, no more enduring than our own forest products. "From this experience I came home with a firm conviction, that no single factor could be more powerful in promoting progress and prosperity than a statewide pride in Oregon products and a state-wide determination that, price and quality being equal, Oregon dollars should be spent for the output of our own forests, factories and farms. Increase in the use and distribution of Oregon products means the stimulation of industry and expansion of payrolls.

"The idea of promoting the progress of Oregon through the purchase of home products is not a new one. Patriotic Oregonians have advanced it for many years."

Mrs, Meier asked special assistance from the housewives "in the two hundred fifty thousand homes of Oregon. It is the women to whose good judgment ninety per cent or more of all the purchasing for the home is entrust-

Think of your daily shopping list in terms of idle hands eager to work, in terms of busy factorles and larger payrolls, in terms of healthier business conditions and more prosperous communities, and above all in terms of the family happiness and well being that comes with assured income and steady employment. Nearly everything necessary to supply the ordinary needs of life is now manufactured in Oregon. When you purchase articles produced outside of Oregon, eighty-five cents of your dollar goes out of the state and fifteen cents remains here. On the other hand when you purchase Oregon products, from ten to fifteen cents of your dollar leaves the state and eighty-five cents remains Neil Coughlin of Modesto, Cali-

Become acquainted with what is manufactured in our state, know Oregon brands and labels and let your dealers know that you are interested in seeing locally made goods on the counters and shelves of your community. Examine with interest the displays of Oregon products that will be shown at the annual state fair and the country, fairs, and follow that interest in four purchases. Read the literature that will be distributed by those fostering the Oregon products movement and remember in your shopping the home manufactured and home grown commodities listed there.

"The organized efforts of those fostering the Oregon products cannot succeed without the cooperation and aid of individual citizens and individual homes of Oregon. This means the help of housewives, who whether they live in city dwellings, in farm homes, or in remote mountain cabins, who, whether they have much or little to spend, are daily buying food and clothing and household supplies for their families. Numerous local and state organizations have joined forces in making this important undertaking a success."

Minto Favors Provision for "Jungle" Substitute at City Hall, 3d Floor The need of a comfortable "flophouse" for the floating population of mea who are unemp ed, has led Frank Minto, chief of police, to suggest that provision could well be made for these un-fortunates by installing cots on the third floor of the city hall in a large room which has not been used for years except as a sort of gymnasium for members of the fire and police departments. ing impossible in the open "jungle camps located on the outskirts of the city, these men will have to be taken care of somewhere else, he believes. The "jungles" are al-ready crowded virtually every hast winter the police permitted transients to sleep in the basement of the city hall but the space there is limited and the quarters are gloomy and poorly ventlated. With the installation of beds in this unused room upstairs, 200 or more men could be given a comfortable night's lodging. There is already a shower bath installed there and the addition of radiators to the room would make it possible for them to clean up and sleep through the cold nights without the suffering which they would otherwise probably forced to endure.
