"No Favor Sways Us: No Fear Shall Awe" From First Statesman, March 28, 1851.

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING CO. CHARLES A. SPRAGUE, SHELDON F. SACKETT, Publishers CHARLES A. SPRAGUE - - - - Editor-Manager SHELDON F. SACKETT - - - - Managing Editor

Member of the Associated Press The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publica-on of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in

Pacific Coast Advertising Representatives: Arthur W. Stypes, Inc., Portland, Security Bidg.

Eastern Advertising Representatives: Ford-Parsons-Stecher, Inc., New York, 271 Madison Ave.; Chicago, 360 N Michigan Ave.

Entered at the Postoffice at Salem, Oregon, as Second-Class Matter. Published every morning except Monday. Business office, 215 S. Commercial Street.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Mail Subscription Rates, in Advance. Within Oregon: Daily and unday, 1 Mo. 50 cents; 2 Mo. $1.25; 6 Mo. $2.25; 1 year $4.00. 50 cents per Mo., or $5.00 for 1 year in advance. By City Carrier: 45 cents a month; $5.00 a year in advance. Per Copy 2 cents. On trains and News Stands 5 cents.

Our Loss in MacDonald's Fall

TN two respects it is unfortunate for the world that the Labor government in Great Britain fell. The crisis in Britain's fiscal policy was acute, and the coalition "of all talents" was necessary. Ramsay MacDonald did a brave thing in standing by his country rather than his party. Nevertheless its control have been in ferce, it we in this country may well view with regret the passing of has been unknown for years. Exhis premiership, for his present tenure is admittedly tempor- amples are Australia, Denmark,

In the first place if the Labor government is succeeded by the Conservatives, England will abandon her traditional was reintroduced by dogs carried free trade position to go on a tariff basis. A century ago the repeal of the corn laws was one of the greatest political battles ever waged in England. Since then the historic policy of enforcement of the muzzling that country has been to favor free importation of goods from law. Misplaced sympathy for the other countries. In the war and after this was modified to dog sometimes causes valuable some extent. Now the conservatives are frankly protection- protection to be repealed. ist. At a time when it seems advisable for high tariff countries to retreat from the economic isolation policy, it is re- period, the average in man being of March 1, 1849; and here refergrettable that Britain moves over to the other side.

In the second place MacDonald's foreign policy looked for the cultivation of international goodwill. He came to this country for a friendly visit with Pres. Hoover. He visited bite. It is short if the bite ocfreely with German-statesmen. He stood out against rigid nae tionalism which would keep Europe an armed camp. Much was expected of MacDonald at the approaching disarmament long incubation period gives time conference. Not so much may be expected of the Conserva- to prevent the disease in a person tives who are inclined to British tradionalism. Necessity may force acquiescence in arms reduction, but there is apt to be less friendliness toward a policy of healing and accord among sists of the use of Pasteur's treatthe nations than with the Labor government.

If the Conservatives do not succeed in framing a government that will hold, the issue will go to the people in an election. Then it might be that Labor would be returned. But it which the patient may continue would be a different and more radical party for it has lost its great leader, Ramsay MacDonald.

"Water, Water Everywhere"

"It is perfectly true that we are getting nowhere as long as we are merely squabbling. Nothing is gained by the Statesman and the Press disputing as to what the people of Salem want or will do. The way to settle it is to give the people a chance and find out. Therefore the Press makes a proposition: Will the Statesman consent to giving the people of Salem a chance to vote yes or no on an issue of bonds sufficient to bring mountain water to Salem and either buy the present distribution system or build a new one? If so, will the Statesman join the Press in urging the members of the city council to quit fighting for the water company and give the people a chance to vote on the above proposition by calling an election for that purpose?"-Holly-

The Press suffers from one illusion, and that is that others who do not agree with its program are fighting for the water company. Our sole concern is the welfare of the people of Salem, now and in the future. The city's relations with the water company should be marked with fair treatment; but that is all we care about the company. The Press is also in error in thinking there are only two alternatives, the Willamette and the Santiam, There is also the alternative of wells, which Baar and Cunningham mention but wave aside. Some people think there are good possibilities in this line, others that wells are undependable. More investigation of this source might be made.

The question which the Press proposes seems to be chiefly one of journalistic tactics, for it would be purely a referendum and would call for another election with teeth in it for the definite authorization of bonds. If there would be assurance of a good turn-out of voters at such a referendum we should be glad to agree to the submission of alternative pro-

Policy 1. A municipal water system using the Santiam river as a source of supply; and either buying or building a distributing system. Engineering estimate of cost $2,500,-

Policy 2, A municipal water system beginning by acquiring the present water system or building another leaving to the governing water board future recommendations for permanent source of supply. Estimate cost of present or a new distributing plant from $875,000 to $1,200,000; probable figure around a million dollars.

The Statesman is anxious to see the water question settled as quickly as possible; and is strong for municipal ownership of the water plant. If any proposition for municipal ownership is now submitted and defeated it means indefinite postponement of a real solution of our troubles. This makes it urgent that the real friends of municipal ownership and those who want to solve the water problem here, agree on a practicable program. The Press appears to want to run and jump in with all its clothes on. We prefer to find out how deep the water is before recommending the plunge.

"The esteemed C-J. is announcing a beauty school by Mme. Eve Somebody. We'll let Sips try it first; if it works on him we'll risk a jar," says an editorial in the Statesman. If the guy who wrote that is the one we think it is he'll need more than a jar; he'll need a bar-

You guessed right, Sips, only the barrel we will need if times get harder, is one with both heads knocked out.

A Philomath man went off to commit suicide but walked around Mary's peak and decided not to. Every person planning suicide should walk around a mountain before blowing his brains out. By that time he'll get the enthusiasm pretty well out of his system. A bed and meal will look better than a leap in the dark,

Charley Byrne, stand up and bow to the Astorian-Budget. Charley is head of the industrial journalism school at OSC, and the AB ran a picture of him, -only the picture looked familiarly like the phis of a well-known handshaker of reform instead of round-faced. golf-prize winning Charley.

We knew this home products promotion would start a riot. Now ready saddled and bridled to be the Medford Mail-Tribune endorses "pear pie" and the Roseburg ridden."-Richard Rumbold. News-Review ups with "prune pancakes". We are going to experiment

Washington turned down a landscape gardener with the low bid in favor of a Washington resident. Gov. Meler, sponsor of trade-athome to which Washington objects, goes to Washington for a purchasing agent and pays him $2800 a year MORE.

Werle VISITS

SILVLERTON, Aug. 29.—Mrz. Jake Werle of here left Portland of that year, as urvey was made of the year. In the jear was provided in misrey; and that, the jear was provided in most year

Rabies

By VERNON A. DOUGLAS, M.D. Marion County Dept, of Health One usually thinks of rables or hydrophabia as a disease of summer time or hot weather. It is in fact more prevalent in cold weather. More dog bites ever during the milder months because dogs run abroad more freely at that time;

The great reservoir of rables in nature is the domestic dog and members of the dog family

Dr. V. A. Douglas Other animals sometimes have the disease, such as cows, horses, cats and goats. All mammals are suceptible. Man always contracts the disease from lower animals, The disease is nearly always transmitted by the bite of a rabid animal. The infective material is contained in the saliva. There are cases on record which have followed a rabid dog licking the hand. There must as a rule be an abrasion or break in the skin befor this can occur.

Disease is Controllable Rabies exists practically in all parts of the world. In some countries where special measures for Norway and Sweden, England was comparatively free from rables from 1900 until the war when it in aeroplanes. Before that time, the prevalence of rables fluctuated due to enforcement or lack of Rables has a long incubation about 40 days. It varies from 14 days to a year or more. The length of incubation depends somewhat on the location of the curs on the face or hands. The amount and virulence of the virus also has an influence. This who has been bitten.

The method of prevention of the rabies after the bite occurs conment. This was first announced as an effective preventive measure in 1883. The treatment consists of a series of inoculations during his work as usual.

Muzzling Stops Disease From a public health standpoint tice of muzzling of dogs would eliminate the disease in two years. the present demands of the counshould be locked up and reported been, doubtless it has proved a to the health department. Per- blessing to Oregon and will ultisons who have been bitten by a mately reward the denomination dog should receive prompt atten- for all the needless expenditures. tion by a physician. Dogs should Its site is eligible, on the east not be killed until an observation bank of the Willamette about 40 can be made by a veternarian.

What health problems have youf If the above article raises any question in your mind, write that question out and send it either to The Statesman or the Marien county department of health. The answer will appear in this column. Name should be signed, but will not be used in the paper.

I esterdays Of Old Salem

Town Talks from The Statesman of Earlier Days

August 30, 1906 The Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church will enjoy an outing on Reservoir hill this evening. Car starts from Willamette hotel at 7 o'clock.

To promote the discussion of laws governing the use of the waters of the state for domestic. agricultural, mining, manufacturing and commercial purposes, with the view of seeking legislation for a new administrative system, a water law conference will be held in the state capitol building September 10 and 11.

That a fire fiend was abroad denced by the fact that within the short space of a half hour the extinguish two fires, both of the grave. which were undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

August 30, 1921 The strong hop market was reyesterday in the filing of several hop contracts with the high price at 35 cents a pound for the 1921 crop.

minute, almost, out there on the logged-off lands beyond Silver- and read Plato's "Republic" and ton," is the report brought in by Eugene Grabenhorst, who visited that section Monday.

Forty of the 44 applicants who of the social millenium. How wrote in the state bar examinations held in Salem last July sages read. Bellamy in his introwere successful, according to and ductory chapter describing Boston nouncement made here yesterday of 1887 writes: by Arthur S. Benson, clerk of the Oregon supreme court.

"I never could believe that Providence had sent a few men into the world, ready booted and spurred to ride and millions

By EDSON HERE'S HOW

Tuesday: Sweet Lady!

BITS for BREAKFAST

By R. J. HENDRICKS

When Salem had 20 families: 3 3 3

(Continued from yesterday, bering to July 5, 1848, during a tour through the Willamette valley:) "Visited his (W. T. Matlock's) tute, now in operation under the Wilbur was in charge.) His instructor in the institution; long the surrounding country . enough to press his suit for Miss Wilbur's hand in marriage.)

5 5 5 Inocculation will school, but meets the wants of prevent the disease in dogs. In the village and surrounding counfected animals of course should try. The buildings are of wood be destroyed. A nation-wide prac- and have been erected at an expense vastly disproportionate to Rabid or peculiarly acting dogs try. Yet, feeble as the school has miles above Oregon City.'

> (In another letter, Rev. Fisher said, of the same visit: "Rode 10 miles to Salem, a small town on children of both sexes. This place (Salem) has a commanding contral position in the Willamette valley, and will probably become a place of some importance in future years. (The above about what Rev. Fisher was in his mind comparing the settlement that became Willamette university with the then metropolis of the northwest, Oregon City, and the great Bapfinal dissolution.)

"6th. Rode 20 miles up Mill with whom I traveled on our way

"7th. Rode 16 miles, after ford ing the river, to the middle fork and preached to an interesting coling excerpts from a letter of Rev. lection of people, some of whom Ezra Fisher, written under date rode from three to 25 miles to hear preaching.

2 2 2 "8th. Crossed the middle and south forks; . . . . rode 15 miles family and in the afternoon visit- to the church on said stream and ed the Gregon university or, in preached at 12 (noon) to the other words, the Methodist Insti- church. (This was the Santiam Baptist church at Sodaville, which superintendence of Rev. Wilbur. had just been organized.) This (This was the Oregon Institute church is situated in the midst of that by change of name became the richest and most delightful Willamette university. Rev. J. H. portlon of Oregon. Perhaps a more picturesque scenery cannot daughter performs the duty of be found in North America. 9th. teacher at present. (The daughter Brother Snelling and myself both became the wife of Rev. St. M. preached and administered the Fackler, an Episcopal clergyman, sacrament and the supper, 10th, who served for a brief time as an 11th and 12th. Visited; viewed

"13th. Rode 30 miles to Salem, and spent the night with Brother Matlock. 14th. Crossed the Wil-"I learn they are expecting a lamette and rode about 30 miles the control of rables means the teacher from the states the commals by inocculation and muzz- occupies the place of a common Yamhill; visited two families . . , so anxious," the older man said away. 15th. Rode 14 miles. My 'way quietly. He had finished changing along the Yambill bottom lands; the wheel; he got back into his not even the barking of a dog. soil luxuriantly rich and large car. "Well, whatever the trouble fields of wheat of enormous is, Severn knows he can count on growth were now waving their us to the limit." golden ears to the gentle breezes . . Met the Yambill church at course," replied Wynter emphatthe time of their monthly meeting | ically. and preached on the occasion at the house of Brother Miller, an made the last few miles to Begordained minister from Missouri. gar's Court, as if as they neared (Rev. Richard Miller, who came the coast they were running into in 1847.)

> "16th. It being Lord's day, exploring expedition, lost at the Brother Snelling and myself both mouth of the Columbia, on Peapreached to a large congregation, cock spit, July 14, 1841. (This . . and at night I rode home with trip took four days of hard rowthe east bank of the Willamette, Mr. Snelling . . . 17th. Rode 30 ing, and three nights' lodging on containing some 20 families . . . miles, crossed the two remaining the ground. Rev. Fisher found his This is the point where the Meth- forks of the Yamhill river, passed family on Clatsop Plains in good ence. odists have located their literary through Chehalem valley, visited health. A son had been born to institution. The school at this two Baptist families and spent the them just before he left on the stillness, the oppressiveness of time (1848) numbers about 70 night on the south fork of the Tu- trip to the Willamette.) alatin river with an interesting

"18th. Visited Rev. Mr. Clark (Harvey Clark) in Tualatin Plains. Near his residence he, with became Salem and the Willamette the assistance of a few benevolent university in their beginning days friends, sustains a school called is interesting at the present time. the Oregon Orphans' Asylum. This school will probably become in some future day a literary insti-Salem and the school that became tution for the Congregational denomination. (One of the "benevolent friends" was the saintly Tabitha Brown, and the little log tist university he was planning to "orphans' asylum" school became found there-which he did found Pacific university at Forest and which flourished for a time Grove.) Rode 14 miles, visited and then gradually grew less, to two families and arrived at Brother Lenox's.

"20th. Walked 28 miles to Orecreek to the north fork of the gon City. Spent the remainder of Santa Am (Santiam) river; visit- the week in visiting in the city ed two families and attended the and vicinity and in preparing to in this city last night was evic funeral of a young married lady go down the river, 23rd, Preached twice for Brother Johnson . . from the states, Made a short ad- 24th, Left Oregon City for Clatfire department was called out to dress and offered up a prayer at sop on board the launch of the unfortunate ship Peacock." (The

"Equity left charity without an oc-

"Looking Backward" and Sir Thomas More's "Utopia". They "They're making a new home a are the literature of the perfect society. One might delve farther Poverty." Now is a propitious time for reading the plans and specifications of these architects sages read. Bellamy in his intro-

> 'Some of these desponding observ-"Some of these desponding observ-ers went so far as to predict an im-pending social cataclysm. Humanity, they argued, having climbed to the top round of the ladder of civilisation, was about to take a header into chaos, af-ter which it would doubtless pick itself up, turn round, and begin to climb again." That has a familiar sound today, And Sir Thomas More rethough phrased in Tudor English, sounds strangely modern:

So each charts the path to a better order, and each describes I have been reading again the perfection which he imagines, Bellamy in the Boston of the year 2000 A. D., and More in Utopia, a word which has become key-word of common speech for Henry George's "Progress and the unattainable ideal. In these days the callagain is for more "equity". People run for office, editors wage journalistic campaigns for the "more equitable distribution of wealth". The usual formula is to take from those who have and give to those who have not, on the theory that those who have acquired great possesstons are not in good morals entitled to them.

Alas, equity will not come factorily for Salem as it has for through a formula. Christ himself some towns, it would be a splendid gave no solution for the perplex- thing-the plan is ideal and ing problem of wealth, or rather his words dispute themselves. laes his in his book as an example Equity will come through the enof what the Utopians have es- lightenment of the people and caped from, and the passage, through the cultivation of the manager form of government-I deeper charity which substitutes have lived in a town where it has the law of brotherly kindness to "The Czarina's Rubies" By SIDNEY WARWICK a fog blowing in from the sea. In a time of ancient glory the Under the white, drifting veil He did not finish the sentence. rubies belonged to a czarina. They the flat country through which His fingers went out to the bell were great and glowing red-red the road led-stretches of marshy handle again. The loud, jangas blood, and through generations waste land veined with bubbling ling, metallic sound cut harshly blood had been shed for them.

Last to die was their owner,

Prince Murinov who defied a rev-

Federoff, escaped from the burn-ing eastle and hid them in a cave.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER V .

"Wish to heaven I knew. Sev-

ago and I met him at Victoria-he'd wired me from Newhaven,

' What do you mean "

had crept into Sant's face.

"Wynter, he wasn't like the night-shock."

easy!"

rattle."

Sant nodded.

Different Now

"That goes without saying, of

The haze was deepening as they

U. S. S. Peacock of the Wilkes

In another letter, Rev. Fisher

Turner. He wrote also of the need start a new church at the prom-of the highway, which, he said "is church, formerly called Rick-re-to the corruption, the Rickreall.

Creole, where it belongs, and left

1 1 1

ers thus located would always be near each other to counsel and give aid and at the same time would each have a wide and rich field on each side of the river.'

(Eola) and the other at Salem.

Meaning one at Clucinnati

Yesterday Statesman reporters

Don Morgan, visitor: "Seems ike cities with city managers get along all right. I notice by to-aight's paper there is a deficiency in Salem city finances. Maybe a city manager could have saved

James Preble, reporter: "I'm not so very hot for one myself.

It just puts another dodge beween the people and the ones who

Mrs. F. A. Elliott, housewife:

'If the city manager form of goveernment would workout as satis-

Mrs. Fred Erixon, housewife: "I am highly in favor of the city should work out very well."

that situation; and maybe not."

asked: "Do you favor a city manager for Salem?"

have the authority."

Rev. Fisher wrote: "Two minis-other man.

creeks from the estuary, from through the frozen stillness withwhich flights of disturbed sea- in. No other sound. birds would rise wheeling with desolation. Jim Wynter thought of that un-

Ten years have passed. Federoff returns and recovers the gems. nerved figure Sant had pictured With him is Frank Severn, who for him. Through Beggar's Court, represents Prince Murinov's set in this lonely, sparsely-popugranddaughter, to whom the rub- lated corner of Essex, might ofles now rightfully belong. Feder- fer desired hiding for a man with off undertakes to smuggle them enemies-or was it the police?out of Russia. He disappears and to throw off the scent, it could Severn secretly returns to his hardly be the best place in its delonely country home in England, pressing isolation for one whose Beggar's Court, He urgently sumnerves had all gone to pieces. mons his friend, Jim Wynter, who If Sant were right-and he was meets Felix Sant, Severn's lawthe last person in the world one could call imaginative-the mysmenacing that had sent Severn inern came back secretly two nights fear. Yet Sant had seen him two which was my first intimation he was on his way home. I only saw Severn himself, its poignant ap- dow open. He climbed through, him for half an hour, because as peal, "For God's sake come!" luck would have it I had to go up Wynter could not shake off a haunting sense of foreboding. to Scotland that night. I'm just back, earlier than I planned, so as to run over to see Severn to-"Then Severn told you noththe gates was in darkness; it had loudly: "Not a thing. I suppose he felt been unoccupied even before its late owner's death. The two cars there wasn't time to go into it turned into the long drive. The then-or in so public a place as a old, irregular house loomed out grill room. But I can tell you the to their eyes, little more than a sight of Severn brought me a vague blur of shadow in the ragged mist, broken by the light from two or three windows streaming A frowningly thoughtful look out into the night.

Forbidding It was a picturesque house, as same man of ten months ago when Wynter remembered it, at least a last saw him, All gone to pieces. couple of centuries old, that on a A man on the rack of unnerving bright sunlit day might be attracsuspense, if those haunted eyes of tive enough. But tonight the his meant anything—a man living gloomy old place in its brooding ing, found the fugitive out in his with fear at his elbow. Sober loneliness and isolation seemed alfacts, Wynter, melodramatic as it may sound. Fear of what? God Sant jumped down from his car knows. I'm all in the dark, yet. and ran up the steps to the mas-Maybe Severn'll tell us tonight. But it's something big and serious sive hall door, "After all, things may not be so most forbidding.

-and I'm uneasy, Wynter-unbad as we fancy," he said suddenly to the younger man as he raised Wynter's face was both startled the heavy knocker. "And anyand bewildered as he stared at the way I'm not going to believe that. whatever his trouble, poor old "All gone to pieces? But some Severn's so d.ep in it that you and how I can't imagine that of Sevwon't be able to fish him out." Of course, I know you're

Through the hushed stillness of not joking-but it seems so unthe mist-wrapped night, as they like him. Always so imperturbably waited, they could hear faintly the cool with any amount of pluck suck of the estuary between its and nerve-the sort of chap one high banks as the tide came racing there?" would have said nothing could in from the sea.

Sant knocked again and pulled the hanging iron bell by the side of the door. "I know. But you'll find a dif-

No one in the house seemed in ferent Severn tonight; that's the any hurry to answer the sum- in the garden and house." eradication of the disease in ani- ing year. The school at this time country to the south fork of the devil of it—that's what makes me mons. The echoes of the bell died The seconds passe S##11 no answering sound from within, old house; every room, every at-"Queer. What can have happened to ev ryone?" Wynter said suddenly. "I should have thought there would be a dog on the premises, a lonely house like this." "But there is a dog, an Alsasaid Sant, His usually cheerful smile seemed to have fallen away, his voice had a sudden strained note. "Of course, one of the servants may have taken the animal for a run, still-" He raised the knocker again and waking a troop of echoes within. "That should fetch someone." The moments passed as they stood waiting. Still unbroken sil-beat a heavy tattoo on the door.

The strange, almost uncanny which each was conscious, as though this house, for all its lighted windows gleaming out into the told of stopping on Mill creek, in mist, was utterly deserted and his tour of the valley, about 10 empty, made Jim Wynter suddenmiles out of Salem, with a Bap- ly give a little involuntary shiver. tist family, and forming the nu- An insistent feeling like a premoncleus of what became, Aug. 31, ition, a deepening, disquieting 1850, the Shiloh Baptist church of sense of something amiss behind that closed door as they stood of a preacher to organize a Bap- waiting for the answer that was tist church in Salem, and one to so long in coming, that perhaps struggle or violence. Only that would not come at all, was beginising new town of Cincinnati, ning to pluck at his nerves. In which later became Eo'a, and is the misty dimness he and Sant exnow a filling station by the side changed glances.

"What does it mean?" Wynter in the bounds of the La Creole broke out. "What are all the servants doing? Sant, I don't like all." It has long since gone back the look of things!" No more did Sant, if his face It should be changed back to La was any indication,

> "Yes, it's dashed queer. I'll ring just once again, and then if school,

A thought made Sant stoop and olutionary mob while his servant, their harsh, mournful cries- raise the flap of the letter-slit in seemed the last word in dreary the door. He peeped through into the lighted hall. Then an exclamation broke from him, and the metal flap snapped down again with a click as Sant turned a startled face towards the younger man

"My God! Look, Wynter, look!" Wynter stooped to look through too, and caught his breath. In the hall the Alsation lay, quite evidently dead, with froth about its jaws.

Poisoned! In a flash the significance of it had brought to a head all those vague, disquieting terious threat must be strangely wars that had been waiting for them on the threshold of this silto hiding-a man, Wynter would ent house. It was no time for have said confidently, who did not standing on ceremony. Wynter know the meaning of nerves or snatched up a stone and shivered the glass of the nearest window. days ago. And there was the Thrusting in his hand, he unfascorroboration of that letter from tened the catch, pushed the winfollowed by Sant,

In the wide hall, its silence touched now vith a sinister breath Two great iron gates set in a of menace, they stood for a mohigh wall proclaimed Beggar's ment listening, with taunted Court at last. The lodge behind nerces. Then Wynter called out

"Severn, Severn!" But even as he cried out the name he knew he would get no ahswer. An instinct told him that except for themselves there was no living soul in all this lighted house. That dog lying there poisonedthese empty echoing rooms-what dark thing lay behind this unnerving mystery of silence and desolation?

That fear Sant spoke of having seen in Severn's eves-had it materialized suddenly without warnhiding place here? It was as though they stood on the edge of. the dark, not knowing what secrets lay hidden in the shadows beyond. Wynter met Sant's eyes. "We've got to search the house, of course; but we shan't find any one here."

"Severn may have gone out to stretch his legs; be back any moment," suggested Sant uneasily, But evidently he had little faith in his own possible explanation.

But he expected me-had sent that urgent message. And then, too, no servants," retorted Wyn-"How many servants are ter.

"Only three; more weren't ne cessary with Severn abroad. man and his wife, who were here in his uncle's time, as well as a younger man who does edd jobs

They made a systematic search of the whole of the great rambling tic, every cupboard. Their suspicion was now definitely confirmed. Not a trace of Severn, or the servants.

Significant The two men were left helplessy bewildered and baffled.

In the dining-room they had found a cold supper for two laid on the table. "Evidently laid in readiness for you and Severn, Wynter," said Sant. "But why should it have been laid in advance unless the servants were going to be out? There's a possibility of that, of that, of course; that they'll turn up presently. But Severn himself, expecting you, wouldn't have left the house like this of his own accord. And that dog . . . " Sant drew a deep breath. "God knows what's been happening here-but we've come too late. Except for an overturned chair in one of the rooms-a room where apparently Frank Severa had been sitting, for there were several cigaret ends lying on the hearth where a fire still smouldered, and on a small table near stood an unfinished whiskey and soda-there was no sign of any grimly significant, that. (To be continued) MRS. WALLACE HOME RICKEY, Aug. 29 .- Mrs. Wallace and daughter Miss Lettle Wallace have returned from an extended visit to Boston and other eastern points. Miss Wallace is an instructor in the Brooks poisoned dog in the hall . . .

OH DEAR-SURE! THEY LEFT US DIDN'T THE BURGLARS LEAVE ANYTHING? AGENCY

If you've got a wife like this you probably don't need bur-glary insurance. But if you haven't, stop taking chances and take out insurance instead. Every type of policy for every type of burglary protection.

HOMER H. SMITH INSURANCE AGENCY

Tel. 9181 Over Miller's Store

Merrill D. Obling