

Fall Society Feels New Impetus

A FRESH impetus has been injected into the society of the capitol city this fall and while the activities creating this new state of things are quite opposite yet they are making for active new interests, the influence of which is being felt in women's circles.

The first vitally new activities are politics, and economic interests on the part of a large number of Salem's socially active women. In stead of so many card parties more time is being devoted to evening meetings for discussion of Oregon problems or to luncheon meetings and political club meetings.

These activities are forming a large part of this week's social calendar. The Greater Oregon association of which Mrs. Carlsson Smith is president, is working steadily toward a splendid booth at the state fair in which will be exhibited all the products manufactured in Oregon.

Gold and blue will deck this booth and each day prominent women will act as hostesses to greet the public and explain the exhibits. The association members are asking Salem business men to put in window displays of Oregon products and prizes are being given by Salem business men for the best exhibit.

Mrs. Leon Gleason is chairman of the arrangement committee and announces that the awards for winners will be made Wednesday, September 30. A group of three or five judges is yet to be selected to pick the winning exhibits.

Then Wednesday of this week a purely political club will be organized with the arrival of Nellie Talge Ross, who will lecture here, be given a noon luncheon at the Marion hotel, and otherwise feted. Many of the prominent women of Salem are participating in this organization and will supplement their social club activities for the coming months with political interests.

Charity is another thing that is adding much emphasis to club activities this fall and winter. More than the ordinary amount of interest is being shown in this work because of the additional need for such work as demonstrated through the economic situation. Relief work is being considered by clubs which have been for the most part "socially" minded in the past.

The long stop-over of prominent people of the east and south who are here with horses for the state fair horse show is also introducing a new and exhilarating social impetus to entertaining.

Plans are already very nearly completed for a large dinner dance which is planned to be given at the Marion hotel Wednesday night. The dinner and dance arrangements have been under the direction of the state horse show committee of the fair board.

Exhibitors and people here with horse show horses will be the guests. This will be a very smart affair and it will mark completely new note in society during fair week. Dinners, informal parties, and all the other social activities will be a part of fair week and because of the long stay-over of visiting exhibitors at the horse show no doubt much entertaining will follow for them in the weeks to follow the fair.

Musical Organizations Will Present Salem Programs of Distinction

THE record of the past winter and spring musical season, is one which allows for much pride on the part of Salem. Two symphony groups, a junior and senior grouping, three brilliant performances of the Neah-kah-nie string quartet, the MacDowell club and an unusually fine music week program all left a creditable and inspiring memory of what Salem can do musically.

With the first falling leaves of the autumn when people are again driven to indoors for their pleasure, one of the first things to be revived is the season of music.

This year is as yet a splendid beginning with the action of the state federation of music clubs in sponsoring a daily program of music at the state fair, with artists and exceptionally fine amateurs presenting their art for the joy of the public. Prominent women of the state will be hostesses each day in the booth and there welcome the public who come to enjoy the programs. Four programs will be given every day in the booth located in the northwest corner of the Agricultural building, according to Mrs. Walter Denton of Salem, chairman of the committee.

The other members of the committee are Mrs. John Huxtable, Mrs. Andrew Wolfe and Miss Eda Trotter, all of Portland. All the programs will be free, Mrs. Denton said, and the public is invited to enjoy them in the booth which will be attractively and comfortably furnished and provided with seats. Fair visitors are thus able to enjoy good music while resting after interesting tours of the grounds.

The hours of the daily programs are 12 to 1, 2 to 4, 5 to 6, and 7 to 8 o'clock. Greetings will be given by a group of prominent hostesses each day.

Outstanding programs will be presented by musical organizations, instrumental and vocal ensembles, trios, quartets, and artist soloists. Among the larger groups will be the Monday Musical and Allied Arts chorus, Paul Hutchinson's chorus, Walter Bacon's chorus and ensemble, the Franklin high school chorus directed by Robert Wain featuring John Clifton Emmel, pianist; the Alicia McElroy string ensemble, and others.

The opening day, Saturday, September 26, will be Junior day in the music booth, featuring many talented young people.

A second thrilling thing to be announced is that the Neah-kah-nie quartet will return for several engagements here according to present plans.

An invitation was extended to the club to sponsor a poster contest but it was decided not to do this as it seems to be so many more important things to which the club should give its undivided attention.

A rummage sale is being planned to take place within a short time.

Woman's Club Will Hear Interesting Program

MAHATMA GANDHI by One Who Personally Knows Him" will be subject of an address by Mrs. W. B. Norton at the Women's club of Salem, Saturday, September 26, at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Norton spent two years in a round-the-world tour with her husband, Dr. W. B. Norton, who was at that time religious editor of the Chicago Tribune, 15 months of that time traveling in India. Because of Dr. Norton's connection with a great newspaper, they were given the opportunity of association with the great leader of the time by launching his first non-cooperation movement with the British government. Dr. and Mrs. Norton have a daughter, Mrs. S. W. Clemens, who with her family has lived for the past seven years in De'hi, the capital of India, and this has enabled the Nortons to keep in close touch with recent events of such importance in the crisis of this revolution.

Mrs. Norton is a graduate of Northwestern university, Evanston-Chicago. For many years she was a principal and teacher in the high schools of Chicago. She has had an extensive experience as a platform speaker and lecturer on India. She is a member of the Illinois Woman's Press association, because of her own work on the Chicago Tribune.

A keen interest is now felt in everything that pertains to the work and personality of Mahatma Gandhi, the most noted world figure today. For many years she has been the acknowledged leader in social reforms in South Africa and in India and is now the central figure in the round-table conference in London which is considering the independence of India. It is not only a great leader but the peculiarities of his dress, food and customs make necessary an understanding of the ideas which determine his course of action. In London he appears at the court of St. James wearing only a dhoti. He brings with him two goats and cases of nuts and fruits and always his spinning wheel. Mrs. Norton in her address will explain why Mr. Gandhi has adopted this mode of living.

Following the program and lecture by Mrs. Norton there will be a social hour, the first for the club this season. The committee in charge of the tea hour is Mrs. Edwin Smith, chairman; Mrs. William McGilchrist, Jr., Mrs. E. C. Cross, Mrs. G. E. Hart, Mrs. Ronald Glover, Mrs. C. H. Robertson, Mrs. Thomas B. Kay, Mrs. William J. Busick, Mrs. F. A. Elliott, Mrs. George L. Arbuckle and Mrs. C. A. Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knox are at home after their recent wedding and a wedding party two weeks ago. They have taken up their residence in the Royal Court apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fugro were dinner guests of M. and Mrs. Pratt Friday evening. Covers were placed for eight and a line party followed the dinner hour.

Miss Dorothy Kellogg will leave for Eugene this weekend where she will begin a course in music supervision in the University of Oregon.
