

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE STARTED

Students From Several of Foreign Lands are Residing There

Students from other lands have organized an international house on the Willamette campus which serves to them as a fraternity and living quarters. A percentage of the club membership is American students.

The building itself is well known in Salem as the "old Albert place" and is located on South Winter street opposite the Deaconess hospital. It is the aim and purpose of the international club to make this house an ideal home for foreign students and American students who desire to know foreign students and their nations.

The management of the house is to be organized along cooperative lines. At the first meeting Kenneth Mackenzie was elected work manager and Seichi Yamaguchi, financial chairman for house improvements.

Those residing there are Kiyosa Artyama, George Cannady, Yung Ho Chiu, Mr. and Mrs. William Hall, Ronald Leask, Kenneth Mackenzie, Perry Smith, Wallace Turner, Seichi Yamaguchi and Dr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Schulze.

Managers for the board of trustees are E. T. Barnes and Paul Wallace. The Halls have assisted in the house furnished by subscription.

Money for furnishing the house is coming in from interested people in different parts of the state. Salem people are being solicited and various members of the Salem Alumni association have indicated their belief that that group either as an organization or as individuals will aid in the project.

The international club plans that the house shall not be a charitable affair. Once it is prepared for occupancy, students living there will pay its upkeep.

For a number of years, foreign students, especially Japanese, Chinese and Filipinos have made up a small portion of the university student body. Very few of them have lived in sorority or fraternity houses; the women were provided for at Lausanne hall but the men have been scattered in various boarding and rooming houses.

Shortly after founding of the international club, its American born members discovered that foreign students were not receiving opportunities to observe the best or even the mediocre customs of this country that they had few friends and that outside of the classroom they took little part in university life.

Mr. Hall, who is first counselor for the group, tells of foreign boys from excellent families religiously, socially and financially, who, after spending nearly a year at Willamette have not known a single student well enough to call him by name. Many of them, he says, have the idea that all Americans are materialistic and greedy to a disgusting extent simply because they have not come in contact with Americans except when having to pay for something.

Hope to Improve General Feeling

Hoping to do away with this atmosphere and to send these students back to their own countries with more nearly true conceptions of Americans and their customs and to give American students at Willamette a better understanding of their guests from the orient, the international house has been established.

It is the ideal of the organization to do away with these handicaps which have previously greeted foreign students and to make the house a genuine meeting place of all the cultures represented. It is planned that men of note will visit the campus and Salem will be welcomed at international house as guests of honor for a number of months that the students may come in contact with them, their ideas, and their ideals.

Several of the boys who will live at the house this winter are musically inclined, so the musical atmosphere created in the other campus houses will not be lacking.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall, who have done much of the actual soliciting of funds, have found most people considerably interested in the project. It has been pointed out to them a number of times that Salem, as an industrial, agricultural, political and educational center, is an ideal spot for the location of such a house. Only four others are known of here. One is at the University of Southern California, one at Columbia university in New York city, one is being built by John D. Rockefeller at the University of Chicago and one is located in Eugene.

Most of these are described as "palatial mansions" and at least two resemble hotels. Mr. Hall says the Willamette organization members are emphasizing the fact that Willamette's international house is not to be the hotel type; neither is it to be a fraternity although residence there will be limited to students of excellent repute. It is to be a clubhouse and home for foreign students and American students who desire to know foreign students and their nations, with its first purpose service to its residents.

Miss Miller was a graduate of Perrydale high school in the class of '29 and later attended Linfield College where she was a member of Alpha Sigma Phi sorority. She was also a member of the Sheridan Junior band of the Perrydale orchestra and of the Linfield Glee club.

Mr. Kittinger's parents live at Oakland where the young couple will later spend their honeymoon. He is now stationed in the United States coast guard at Iwaco, Wash.

Startling Doings of Hats Hold Spotlight on Fashion's Stage

Scorn Back of Head, Cover eye, Nose or ear; Some Variations Permitted

By ORMA L. MCINTYRE

More has been said about hats this season than any other part of the wardrobe, and they are still a practically inextinguishable subject.

The reason why they make such good copy is that they are always doing such startling and amusing things. Who ever heard of a hat scaring the back of the head and tip-titling itself over the eye or the nose, especially in this generation? Or perhaps, it clings affectionately to one's neck in fact it can do everything but settle down at the back of the neck as in the days back in 1930.

Hat-makers are chortling as they bring out trimming that hasn't been seen for years and years. Feathers, that must be treated and curled and dressed to meet the modern demands, grograin ribbon to bedeck sport hats, creamy gardenias. There are crisp looking quilts that cut a sharp horizontal line across the hat, and tiny feathers that float straight up in the air (now don't you feel foolish for laughing at the Gay Ninety aigrettes?), then there are perky ribbons that stand straight up and pretend they are feathers.

If you don't like the idea of going about with the back of your head bare, you can put hats with ribbon draped around, a sort of an under-the-brim affect that will overcome the deficiency.

McAdoe won high scores in 500, Eva Zellner and Martin Oetrich took high scores in Pedro and George Hauptman held the lucky number for the door prize. The community "500" club will open its season in the Masonic hall Tuesday evening, October 18, with Mrs. M. H. Henning and Miss Sophie Nibler as hostesses.
