FIVE CLINICS FOR CHILDREN SLATED

Health Department Waging Campaign to Have all Immunized now

School clinics dominate the calendar for activities of the Marion county health department next week. Of the 19 clinics scheduled, five will be for school-children, four for toxoid treatments and one for preschool children. Three dental examination periods are set for the week.

The department is this month waging a campaign to have all preschool children immunized against diphtheria and vaccinated against smallpox. During September the health department immunized 86 children against diphtheria and vaccinated 89 children. Of the 17 cases of diphtheria occurring in the county up to October 1, two deaths resulted and neither of the victims had been immunized.

Only one out of the 17 children contracting the disease had been receiving toxin antitoxin treatments. Due to the more extensive immunization work being done, Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, county health officer, believes, 14 less cases of diphtheria were recorded during the first nine months of 1931 than in the same period of 1930.

The clinic schedule for next week is as follows:

Monday: all-day dental examinations at Parrish junior high school and all-day high school girls' clinic at the health center; Tuesday: all-day school and toxoid clinic at Mill City. Wednesday: morning, dental examinations at Sacred Heart academy, school clinic at the health center, 10 to 12 a. m.; morning school and toxoid clinics at Hubbard. Thursday: all-day dental examinations at Richmond and Washington grade schools, all-day school and toxoid clinics at Aurore. Friday: afternoon, preschool clinic at the health center. Saturday: regular toxoid and vaccination clinic at the health center, 8:30 to 10 a. m.

BACK TO CIVILIZATION

Under the Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

GOVERNOR JULIUS L. MEIER was disappointed yesterday. He told the writer over the phone he had backed the Cardinals to win the game and every-body knows what happened. In fact the executive thought so little of "Gabby" Street's strategy that he turned around and played a game of dominoes. That score must have been a blow.

At any rate the governor informs he is feeling better every day and expects to come to Salem soon to again take hold of things. He has been sitting up much of late and every day is permitted to stay out of his bed longer periods. Reports from the sick room have been very encouraging to the executive offices here.

The least said about that baseball game yesterday, perhaps the better, but it was anything but a game. Even "Pepper" Martin had an off day and on his last time up "Lefty" Grove walked him. Fans are pulling for Martin to get a hit today, regardless of the outcome of the series.

The press room radio station will stage a double-header today. Following the baseball game, the Washington-Oregon football game at Seattle will be on the air. What better service could be rendered state officials, particularly on a Saturday afternoon, so far the boys have received only one cigar for this special service.

"Jerry" Owen has fallen into line. Last night he staged his long-looked for housewarming. At the time of writing, the event was still to take place, but it will be history by the time readers get this particular report. Press members and several others were invited to the occasion.

Industry Death Toll Only One

There was one fatality due to industrial accidents in Oregon during the week ending October 8, according to a report prepared Friday by the state industrial accident commission.

A total of $80,101.65 in gifts was given to Ohio State university during the 1930-31 school year.

There were 620 accidents reported to the commission. Ed Cannon of Florence was the sole fatality reported.

Lawyers Beaten At Own Game by Young Farm Boy

Facing the arrayed forces of five lawyers, Herman Kieper, farmer boy, won a case in circuit court Friday before Judge L. H. McMahan and a jury. He and his father, H. R. Kieper, were sued for $300 remaining unpaid for a legal fee of $500. Young Kieper, being unable to hire an attorney, defended himself and father before the court.

The Alco adjusting company, plaintiffs, to whom the case was assigned by Guy O. Smith, Salem attorney, and J. R. Wyatt, Albany attorney, was represented by Allan Carson of Salem. Custer Ross, Ross, president of the Marion county bar association, was a witness for the plaintiffs as to the reasonableness of the questioned fees for the legal services.

The opinion was requested by Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state.
