There was an informal discussion on the project of widening the highway. Most members being in favor of the state widening the present highway by putting tile in, and filling up the deep ditches that already exist and are a menace to public safety.

The means and ways of lowering taxes were also discussed in formally. Mrs. Charlie Andreason, Mrs. Marshall and Miss Evans are to buy enough material for new curtains for the stage. The Wo man's club has offered to make them before the next meeting.

A clever skit was presented by the teachers and young people, followed by community singing. Following the meeting cookies and cider were served.

Two Log Cabins Nucleus of Town

On the east side Pacific highway, 16 miles south of Salem, is the city of Jefferson, located on the east bank of the Santiam river. It is also on the main line of the Southern Pacific railroad Ferry Gave Name The town was started in 1851, and was built on the donation land claim of Jacob Conser and James Bates. Conser and Bates each built a log cabin, and around these two houses, the town was built. During the first year, 1851, Conser built a ferry across the Santiam river, and the town was at first called "Conser's Ferry." Transportation before 1870 was accomplished by river navigation and the stage coach, and in 1890 the bridge as at the present time was built. A Mr. King had the first general store in town, though the exact date is not known. It was described as consisting of a few bolts of red flannel and calico and some salt.

In 1859 the Jefferson Institute was built, and after this school had been built, the Democrats Step in name of the town was changed from Conser's Ferry to "Jefferson", and the first use by the county of the new name was made in December, 1859 by the county surveyor. The choice of a name is easily explained by the strength of the democratic party at that time.

In 1870 the town was incorporated. The first charter was granted by the legislature Thriving Village Oct. 29, 1870, providing for four annual elections, and officers: mayor, six aldermen, a recorder, marshall and treasurer. At that time the building of the railroad and the mills running made the town flourish, so that the two hotels, two blacksmith shops and three stores were kept busy. Other early pioneers of the Jefferson com-

First Flag Story munity were the Jesse Looney family, Thos. Holt, T. M. Ramsdell, Rev. E. E. Parrish,

Milton Hale, the Holdens and others. Mrs. Looney is said to be the first white woman to enter this community. Susan Looney and Mrs. Mary Holden had made the first American Flag ever made in Oregon. They presented it at Salem, July 4, 1846, to the newly organized infantry company known as the Oregon Rangers, who carried it on parade that day.

A pioneer still living in Jefferson is Mrs. Julia Ann Vaughn, wife of Ell Vaughn, deceased, and daughter of James Bates.

- Farming, dairying, fruit growing and hop raising are the principle industries in this district. The hop fields and prune orchards furnish employment for many men, women and children. The population of Jefferson is about 400; it
