Receiver Appointed Thursday and Accountant Check up Affairs

country are concerned through loans to Archerd or through investments in his companies. In 1929 Archerd tried to float a holding company for his interests, the Allied Agricultural Associates, which was to hold the stock of his Salem and Portland stores, and engage in general business with farmers on an ambitious scale. Efforts to float the stock of the holding company failed, though some was sold.

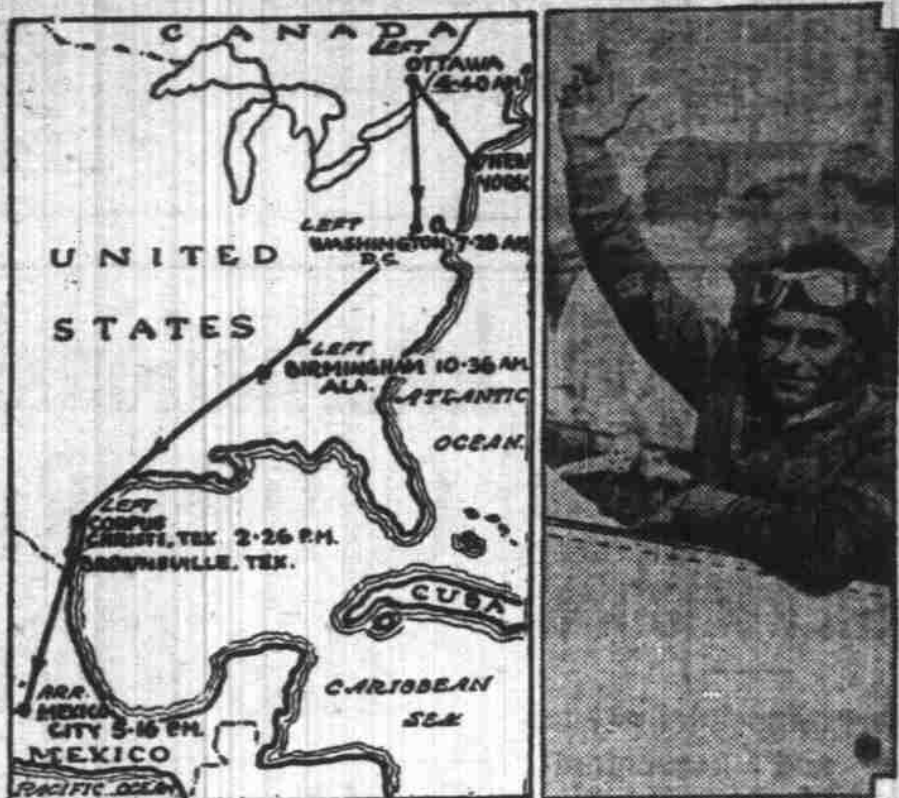

Will Not Finish Checkup at Once

"It will be 60 days before we know just how the company stands," was the comment of Receiver Whit last night. "We are taking inventory of the stock, will invoice the warehouse, and go over the receivables as rapidly as we can. Obligations will be footed up and report made to the court of the company's standing."

Archerd came down from Portland Monday, leaving that night. He wrote Tuesday night from Eugene that he would return Wednesday. No further word has been received. He had invested heavily in southern Oregon mines and friends thought he might be on a trip there from which he would return. They knew the load of worry he had been carrying, and expressed regret that he had not remained even if his concern did find itself unable to weather the storm.

A year ago the mill and store-room at State and Trade were swept by fire. The damage was said to have been covered by insurance. The building was owned by Frank Derby, who rebuilt it, and the implement company recently purchased. The crisis in the company's affairs came this fall with the filing of suit for $16,000 by the Eena company, a subsidiary of the Bush interests.

PA TIME THROWN FOR LOSS

Major "Jimmy" Doolittle made such a successful onslaught on Old Father Time in his last speed flight that he linked the capitals of three countries in a remarkable dawn-to-dusk hop from Ottawa, Canada, to Mexico City, by way of Washington. The map illustrates the fast time made by Doolittle, who landed at the Mexican capital 12 hours and 25 minutes after taking off from Ottawa. A typically grinning "Jimmy" (right).

Baillie Dismissal Is Voted Again; Holman Avers Hoss Voted Proxy

written up by the secretary of the board. There was no agitation on the part of the old political machine as a result of this action.

"Secretary of State Hoss was the first to renew this practice when I became a member of the board. Hoss was ill at his beach home, and in order not to retard the transaction of state business, he was permitted to record his vote. For Hoss to raise this legal question at this late hour comes with ill grace. It has all the appearance of a personal and political persecution, with apparent intent to harass the governor."

"But perhaps Hoss merely is running true to form. Or perhaps he is functioning," this speaker, in reference to the mercenary mandate of the old political machine. Governor Meier is committed to progressive and economic policies, and I am cooperating with him.

"It was this same old political machine which was responsible for the extravagances and inefficiencies in state affairs, which Governor Meier and myself are attempting to correct."

Holman issued his statement just prior to leaving for Portland to attend the meeting of the board of control called by Governor Meier.

WARNER BROS. ELSINORE Today—Mae Clark in "Waterloo Bridge."

WARNER BROS. CAPITOL Today—Evelyn Brent in "Traveling Husbands."

THE GRAND Today—Joe E. Brown in "Broad Minded."

THE HOLLYWOOD Today—Ken Maynard in "Arizona Terror."

The studio preview made a hit at Warner Bros. Elsinore Theatre tonight in his presentation of "Waterloo Bridge" is one moving picture which will give value received for two reasons: first the acting is superb. Mae Clarke does one of it not the best emotional scenes in this play that is so different in his presentation. She is so very realistic that one is torn with her in her helpless plight.

Frederick Kerr is another whom one should not miss in this play and Kent Douglas is no different in his presentation of youth unspooled that one has to take time to realize how splendidly sincere he is.

ADVERTISE TRUTH, PROFESSOR URGES

Advertising should be truthful. Advertising should be preceded and backed by wise merchandising.

Such were the highlights in an informal talk made Friday noon to the Salem Advertising club by H. T. Vance, professor in the business administration department of Oregon State college.

"Merchants really know more about advertising than is indicated in some of their finished products," Vance said. "Knowing, they fail to take the time and effort needed for effective advertising copy."

Vance commended the study and application to business of retail merchandising data made available from the 1930 census reports which for the first time included a survey of all retail trade in every district in the United States.

Before the talk, the club voted to rescind its recent action, in which support of a measure licensing bill and poster distributors was recommended by the city council.

GHOSTS WILL WALK BUT IT'S ALL FUN

have trouble sleeping but—Hallowe'en comes but once a year and by next year the scare will only be a very funny memory, and he will be ready for more fun.

To be sure there will be a few poor crows that themselves occurred up the steps of schools and other places of dignity; balls will be rung, and if too many tempting things are left loose it may be a few days before their whereabouts is known. But even all this is in the spirit of fun and wise ones will take it so.

And while the young people are out at their pranks the older ones may very likely be found recounting the episodes of their own youth and reliving the past—for them too the ghosts will walk—ghosts of memory.

CHEMAWA, Oct. 30.—Robert N. Service was a business visitor from Toledo Wednesday. Mr. Service is doing extension work in the territory of his home, working in conjunction with the Sagon Indian school and the state college at Corvallis. which building permits were issued cost $21,330.

The drop in building is accounted for by the fact that during October 1930, construction of two new church structures, the Castle United Brethren and the First Evangelical, and of the Schunke building on North High street was begun, while in the same month this year no such large projects were started. In October 1930 building permits totalled $77,559.46 and in 1929, $32,046. Discounting the three largest October, 1930 jobs, permits amounted to but $16,943.

The October figure is $11,341.18 under that of September.

Nineteen permits for new construction costing a total of $18,015 were issued up to today in the present month. Twenty-six repair jobs amounted to $2618 and
