be able to turn back the associations to their stockholders in a permanently sound condition. Public announcement of all matters affecting the interests of the investors of these associations will be made from time to time, and the department earnestly hopes it may have the full cooperation of these investors in carrying out its program for their benefit.

Mutual Association Control Released
Mott also announced that the Prudential Savings & Loan Association of Eugene and the Mutual Savings and Loan Association of Salem would be returned to their former owners and managers, the officers and directors of the Prudential Bank corporation, while the Mutual Savings and Loan Association of Eugene would be returned to its former owners and managers, the officers and directors of the Prudential Bank corporation.

Plans for the continued operation of the three Portland associations have been prepared and will be put into effect immediately, Mott announced. J. H. Callahan, deputy corporation commissioner and building and loan supervisor, will be in full charge. He will be assisted by Oscar Pederson, savings and loan auditor for the state corporation department.

The three associations will at once be disassociated from all connection with the Prudential Bank corporation, which heretofore has held all the reserve fund stock of the three Portland associations as well as the Eugene and Salem institutions.

Johnson Resigns From All Offices
Carl H. Johnson, president of the Prudential Bancorporation and of the five savings and loan associations connected with it, has resigned and in the Portland associations, Commissioner Mott will be in charge while local officers in Eugene and Salem assume full control of the companies.

In Portland, the 126 Sixth street headquarters for the Prudential, Union and Federal associations, will be surrendered to the leaseholder, the Prudential Bancorporation, and the three associations will be moved back to their former headquarters at 311 Stark street where the affairs of the three associations will be conducted.

The corporation commission said he substituted the present management of the companies to prevailing business conditions and to grossly extravagant management. He said he felt certain the companies at an overhead cost not to exceed 50 per cent as much as the one the three Portland associations have been carrying.

It is understood that Johnson as president of the affiliated companies has been receiving $24,000 annually. Mott proposes that this charge be greatly reduced by his new administrators, and the three associations will be moved back to their former headquarters at 311 Stark street where the affairs of the three associations will be conducted.

The corporation commission said last yesterday that it might be necessary to pass dividends to shareholders for some time until proper reserves would be built up but he felt assured that in time all assets would be paid and the three associations made liquid and strong.

The Federal, Union and Prudential associations in Portland have demands for withdrawal of notices from their shareholders since February of this year. Mott, after thoroughly investigating the Prudential Bancorporation, ordered the suspension of its permit to sell stock in September of this year.

The condensed statements of the three Portland associations as made to the state corporation commissioner, June 30, 1931, follow. Mott said he thought that there had been comparatively little change in the financial condition of the three companies since the statement was filed:

SADLEM will retain one of its most notorious citizens. Tusko has decided to remain here, rather than to leave for the local fight promoter, decided the elephant's fate for him. Par value in the stock came up on a wolfish scale the past two days, from $12 to $200. Anyhow Tusko has been sold, and will not be executed.

Max Gehlar divulged the fact that Tusko was not live-stock, and for that reason the state could not file a lien on him. Tusko looked very much alive during the sale yesterday, but Gehlar said the court had once ruled that an elephant could not be considered live-stock. That Tusko is an all-embracing position.

But that is not the only legal entanglement that has confronted the various state departments the past few days. The banking department and the corporation commissioner are in a quandary over a new company which came to their attention through this column yesterday. They are trying to decide which department shall have jurisdiction.

The company is that referred to as Lindbeck-Pettit and Co., which was on the receiving end of a box of apples at the press room recently. Since the company is in the receiving business only—not in the hands of a receiver, however—A. A. Schramm, banking examiner, says he must take jurisdiction.

Business remains good, in certain sense, with this new company. Quite a number of new stockholders subscribed to the press room firm yesterday, but they likewise took more out than they put in. Since the banking examiner

Bank corporation November 29, 1930. He said there had been no diversion of assets of the local association into the Portland holding company's assets. Mott also said the loan policy of the local association had continued to be careful and prudent, indicating that its assets in Salem's realty were considered sound.

A. A. Lee, acting until last night as assistant manager of the association, and now manager of the local association under Mott's orders, said he had no statement to make, although he indicated he considered the association here as able as in the past to meet its obligations.

The Mutual here became a reserve fund organization August 25, 1930, when directors of the association subscribed to reserve fund stock in the total sum of $10,000. Subsequently the association was sold early in November, 1930 to the Prudential group. The association shortly removed its headquarters from the Will building on South Liberty street to new quarters in the Patton building on State street. It has retained its lease on South Liberty street.

Directors in the Mutual when it became a reserve fund company and before it was acquired by the Prudential group included T. M. Hicks, W. H. Dancy, E. M. Page, U. S. Page, Carl E. Miller, George H. Graberhorst, A. N. Moore, Edward Schunke, A. A. Lee. The association is the oldest in the city, being organized here in 1910. Until January 1, 1926, it was housed in offices on State street, back of the United States National bank. It then moved to the Will building on South Liberty street.

A. A. Lee, its present manager, was one of the original incorporators of the association. J. P. White was secretary and manager from 1910 to 1925. Mr. Lee was with the association for a number of years before being named manager in 1927.

More members of the God-Acquainted Dinner committee were announced here yesterday by the chairman and vice-chairman. The departmental heads who will be called upon to provide aid to the unemployed, will be placed on that committee automatically. So those favored will have a double duty.

The Under the Dome column got a break yesterday. The Salem business man who had nerve enough to admit in the "New Views" that he reads this column whether he reads anything else in The Statesman or not, should be commended for his fearlessness. Anyhow, Mr. Otto Hoppe, the statement was much appreciated, and this column may yet survive the depression.

If state savings continue to be reported by Henry Hansen, who have come from his office in statements recently, the taxpayers will get most of their money back. Yesterday Hansen announced the eastern Oregon state hospital would return about $116,644 to the general fund or an announced saving of 25 per cent.

Colonel J. W. Everington of Washington, D. C., of the federal prohibition division, and W. H. Newell, in charge of federal enforcement in Portland, visited the state police today. Everington said that in states where the police constabulary is in effect, local officials are looking more and more to the state police for aid.

PLAN OF CREATING EMPLOYMENT TOLD

the property owners shall pay whatever hourly wages they can afford. If Sim Phillips, agent for the Federal employment bureau, who is now busy with the county and state emergency road work registration, can fit into his schedule, he will be asked to supply the contact between the property owners and the unemployed men for whose reliability the committee will vouch.

Advocating a move by the city council whereby funds can be secured to improve Emmons park, the river front, clean ditches and order any other emergency work possible is the fourth point of the committee's plan.

Joseph H. Albert was appointed chairman of the committee for creating emergency employment for Salem men. His committee will be divided up with men in charge of the several phases of the program.

Getting into action at once, the committee will meet on Saturday morning to further outline the work and take up the matter with industrial men. The group will cooperate with Governor Julius L. Meier's unemployment committee for the county which includes J. C. Stegmann, county judge and chairman; B. E. Sisson and E. F. Slade.

Present at last night's meeting were: Douglas McKay, Community Service committee chairman; S. Ellis Parvins, B. E. Sisson, H. Allen, William M. Hamilton, J. N. Chambers, Joseph Albert and C. E. Wilson.

WILQUET IS FREED, MAY SUE OFFICERS

Release on Writ of Habeas Corpus Is Honored by
Circuit Judge HIN

J. P. Wilquet, former administrator of the estate of Mary F. Gregoire, and who Thursday was discharged from the county jail on a writ of habeas corpus by Circuit Judge HIN, will file a suit for damages against the officers responsible for his incarceration, his attorney, Walter L. Toose, has indicated.

Wilquet has been in jail for the past three weeks under a warrant from the county court charging contempt of court for failing to file a final account and the failure to turn over assets of the estate to the new administrator, the Ladd & Bush Trust company.

Wilquet was named administrator of the Gregoire estate as a brother. He was removed from the county court as such administrator after the filing of a charge that he had failed to properly carry out the trust, and the trust company was named to succeed him. After demands were made on him for a final accounting and for the turning over of certain assets of the estate, a warrant was issued and he was jailed October 16.

Judge HIN held that the warrant was broader than the statute under which it was issued. Under the statute provision is made in event of failure to file a final account and he can be held in jail until he consents to do so.

"The county court should not have made an order requiring Wilquet to turn over assets of the estate until his final account as administrator had been passed upon," said Judge HIN in his opinion.

"Such an order should not have been made until it was determined what property of the estate he had. This man was incarcerated for failure to file an account ordered by the court and given to the county court. He failed to file such an account and failed to file it. Afterward he filed such an account but no one knew anything about it. I take it is not a question as to whether the final account was what it ought to be but if he filed it, it was not. The question is how can this man purge himself of this contempt? Contempt is in the nature of an insult to the court and it is up to the court that made the order of contempt. The court that made the order should satisfy itself if this is the final account. If this petitioner should go into the county court now and say he had filed his final account and was refused his discharge from jail and he appealed I would discharge him. If it was up to me I would say he had filed his final account."

"The statute says he shall stay in jail until he 'consents' to file his final account. This statute was made to punish a stubborn man who refuses to obey the order of the court. I don't think it wise to make it so that a man can consent to file it and get out of jail. It is a question of how to place him in jail."

"The trouble here is an order making him in contempt until he files his final account."

SURVEYS STARTED, HIGHWAY WIDENING

While everything feasible is being done to expedite starting work on the road widening between here and New Era, it will be on matter of some time before the matter can start, Klein opined yesterday. Surveys must be made, new alignments determined in many places and right-of-way obtained.

Spaulding expressed himself in favor of securing right-of-way along a stated stretch of road and then hurrying work through there rather than attempting to secure all the right-of-ways before beginning the road widening project. Klein agreed with this point of view.

The Pacific highway widening is expected to be a prominent topic when the commission meets November 12. Bonds for $1,000,000 are to be sold then and a considerable portion of the proceeds will be applied to the widening of the Pacific highway between here and New Era.

The Call Board . .

By OLIVE M. DOAK

WARNER BROS. ELISINORE
Today—Joan Crawford in "This Modern Age."
WARNER BROS. CAPITOL
Today—Edmund Lowe, Lois Moran in "Transatlantic."

THE HOLLYWOOD
Today—William Haines in "Just a Gigolo."
THE GRAND
Today—"Africa Speaks."

A man who probably has played more diversified roles than any other actor on the screen is enacting one of the featured roles in "Transatlantic," the Fox romantic drama, which comes to Warner Bros. Capitol today with Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran in the leading roles.

He is Jean Hersholt, who started his career as a portrait painter and who now applies his artistic ability to his astounding makeups such as the one he wears in this production.

Hersholt, who has been in pictures since 1914, has played almost every conceivable type of role. He and the late Lon Chaney started experimenting with makeups together. They shared the same dressing room when they started their careers with Universal and used to try out disguises on each other. Chaney tended to play the sinister, while Hersholt played more lovable characters.

In "Transatlantic" he portrays an old German lens grinder, who has invested his life's savings in a trip to the fatherland on a de luxe ocean liner in the company of his young and beautiful daughter. Aboard ship he learns that the bank which issued his letter of credit has failed and that the passengers of the bank is a fellow passenger.

Other passengers who further complicate the delicate situation are the banker's wife, his mistress, a Robin Hood type of gambler and an infamous international crook. The cast, in addition to Hersholt, Lowe and Miss Moran, consists of John Halliday, Greta Nissen and Myrna Loy. William K. Howard directed.

In "This Modern Age," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle starring Joan Crawford which is being featured at Warner Bros. Elsinore today, a decided record has been set in the choice of the cast. A Parisian comedy with all English speech recording, over half of the cast is French. Joan Crawford, playing the most carefree role of gay youth yet in her career, is of French ancestry. Pauline Frederick, the youthful mother who plays along with her daughter and her daughter's companions, is of French extraction.

Albert Conti, who plays the debonair man about town and companion of Miss Frederick in her gay escapades, is a native of France.

CALIFORNIA EDDIE STEWART CAUGHT

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 5.—(AP)—James "California Eddie" Stewart, said by police to be wanted in New Jersey on a murder charge and sought by federal authorities in connection with a Southern Pacific train robbery at Nobel station, Calif., November 7, 1930, was arrested here tonight.

Stewart is the last member of a gang of five masked bandits who held up the Southern Pacific train at Nobel station and robbed a United States railway mail clerk, police said. The leader of the band, Frank P. Ellis, was killed November 30, 1930 while attempting to evade capture at Oakland. His wife, Ellen Ellis, now is serving a 20-year prison sentence at Salem, Ore., in connection with the robbery.
