Portland Symphony to Play November 16

With the first concert of the Portland Symphony orchestra proving that Willem van Hoogstraten has the best organization in Portland music history the announcement of the program for the November 16 concert is being awaited with interest. Mr. Hoogstraten has chosen the Brahms Symphony No. 1, considered by many critics as one of the master's greatest works. Composed in 1855 immediately after Brahms had heard the Beethoven Ninth, some hearers have declared that Beethoven's influence in the work is marked, but at the same time it is not strong enough to make it other than typically Brahms'.

The symphony has been played here in Portland. Interest shown at that time, Mr. Van Hoogstraten declared, was responsible for the repetition at this early date.

Last Monday's opening concert won many new friends for the orchestra. The program of the concert was kept busy Tuesday accepting congratulations on the improvement this year. It is felt that the conductor has an instrument worthy of his undoubted skill and reputation throughout the music world.

The attendance, almost a capacity house, proved that Portland interest in better music is not on the decrease.

ALMOST OFF

The eyes have it—provided it is only the left eye that is allowed to peer out from under this fetching red beret which has set gay Parry by the ears. The chapeau is worn far down on the right side that it appears to be about to slide off. A jaunty feather of bright hue lends a piquant touch.
