

JAPANESE TAKE HAND IN CHINA

Demand General Mah Turn City Over to Rival, General Chang

Scant hope for peace from the newest British-Yokohama conversations was felt in official circles. The foreign office announced a reply to America's latest note was nearly complete.

The war declaration was dated Saturday and signed by Mah Chan-Shan, commander of the Heilungkiang province army which was defeated by the Japanese last week at the Nonni river bridgehead on the Taonan-Angan railway in western Manchuria.

The manifesto contained Mah's assertion of determination to "fight Japan to the very last man."

Attempts to Make Mobilization General

The Rengo news agency said General Mah also had wired to Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, ordered by the Japanese, Chang Tso-Hsiang, commander of all Manchurian forces north of the great wall, and Wan Fu-kun, nationalist governor of Heilungkiang province, all of whom are believed to be at Peking, requesting that they order the mobilization at Taitshih, Heilungkiang capital, of all troops of Kiang province, the middle province of the three which constitute Manchuria.

The newspaper Asahi said Chinese bombardment of the Japanese positions above the Nonni bridgehead at Taitshih actua'y had begun. There was no confirmation of this report. The Asahi said the Chinese were using field artillery and machine guns, and had established their base at An-gachia, 17 miles south of Taitshih, provincial capital.

grange represented the farm farmers through admitting "the top is not what it ought to be, but the bottom is solid." W. A. Jones also defended the grange.

A. A. Geer, committeeman, said that assessments were less on cuts should be made on that account. He also thought that the bounty on animals had been made a commercial proposition.

Mr. McClellan of West Stayton expressed opposition to the educational levies and nurse levies, scored higher education and declared that "educational system has gotten away from us."

T. E. Cole of Salem urged the necessity of careful economy in expenditures.

In closing, Ed Porter raised the question of the salaries paid deputies and other officials about the court house, whether they had been readjusted to meet the times. The county court pointed out that the salaries of deputies were fixed by the individual officers who appointed them. Porter also questioned use of the prohibition law, doubting if proper returns were received.

MRS. TAYLOR LOOKS BACK ON 90 YEARS

After 90 years of this life Mrs. Josephine Taylor is having a "grand time, I assure you," although she said there had been times when it had not been so fine.

Mrs. Taylor celebrated her 90th birthday Monday at her home. "Open house" was observed and "the house was full, and I wish you could see the flowers and presents," observed Mrs. Taylor. And she continued, "I am so thankful and happy to have so many wonderful friends."

Mrs. Taylor made her home in Salem since 1882. She was born in Buffalo, New York. Mr. Taylor died 19 years ago and since that time Mrs. Taylor has made her home with her daughter, Miss Grace Taylor. Her other daughter, Mrs. E. E. Harlow, lives in the east.

Mrs. Taylor has been an active member of the First Congregational church. For the open house Monday Mrs. M. D. McClellan, Mrs. L. E. Smith, Miss Catherine Kanton, and Mrs. Plack Eibby assisted in receiving. Other members of the church assisted in serving.

The committee, of which Miss Beatrice Walton will act as secretary, will file its report with the department heads at another meeting to be held next week. The contributions would cover a period of five months.

The proposal to raise the relief fund was made by Governor Meier, and the meeting was called by Henry Hansen, state budget director. Officials said the contributions probably would exceed $10,000 a month.

MAUDE ADAMS' BRILLIANCE UNDIMMED

WHEN MAUDE ADAMS RETURNED TO FOOTLIGHTS.

The return of Maude Adams to the footlights she deserted 13 years ago at the height of her glory is a refutation of the cynics "They can't come back." Opening at Cleveland, Ohio, with Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," in which she portrayed the role of Portia, Miss Adams proved beyond doubt that her long retirement has not dimmed the brilliance that won her undying fame in a past generation. Maude Adams is principally remembered for her playing in many of the works of Sir James M. Barrie, notably as Lady Babbie in "The Little Minister," and as Peter Pan, the boy who wouldn't grow up, in the magic Never-Never Land. During her long absence from the stage, she has been experimenting with a new lighting system which she introduced at Cleveland with great effect. TWENTY NOT-TRUE BILLS ARE LISTED

Twenty not-true bills were returned by the Marion county grand jury Saturday while 13 indictments were made. By error Sunday, The Statesman omitted the word "not" in listing the 20 not-true bills returned. These cases are reprinted herewith. In none of them were indictments made.

Walp, robbery by force of violence, but not armed with a dangerous weapon; Frank Day, assault and battery; Charles Ward (assault with intent to kill); A. A. Bonney, assault and battery; Robert E. Taylor and Carson Staudtler, unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

C. F. Hafner, assault and battery; J. D. Wood, burglary; Jack G. Hughes and Frances Niermeyer, adultery; A. C. Muck, rape; John Harold Cook, non support; Jonas W. Krierer and Vera Hutchins, lewd and lascivious cohabitation; C. H. Martin, check without sufficient funds; A. M. Weissenfels, check without sufficient funds; Theodore Isaac, non support; L. R. Martin, check without sufficient funds; Arthur Little, larceny by bailment; Frank Kayler, reckless driving.

STATUS OF CLASS OFFICERS VIEWED

With the student council at the high school apparently cleared of secret society members, Principal Fred Wolf has begun an investigation of the status of class officers and announced he believes at least half of the senior class heads to be members of the taboo societies and therefore ineligible to hold office. He says he will take up the matter with the seniors at their next class meeting.

As soon as the principal has finished with the senior officers, he will investigate the affiliations of the leaders of the junior and sophomore classes with reference to the secret societies, he intimated.

The names of three new student council members published Saturday have the principal's approval, he declared. These names, Dan McCarty, Reid Hansen and Walter Cline, who are senior, junior and sophomore representatives, respectively, recently were submitted by the council for the approval of the principal.

The present flareup of the secret society problem is a continuation of the campaign Principal Wolf has conducted since he came to Salem high school three years ago. He is determined, he says, to keep the societies out of student politics, and is legally bound to enforce the state law prohibiting such organizations in high schools.

at midnight Sunday. The highest yesterday was 59 degrees. The storm did considerable damage to two cables of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, and sent crews scurrying to restore service to normal.

The telephone and telegraph cable on South 13th street was all cleared up about mid-afternoon, and Manager H. W. Collins said trouble on the South High street cable, caused by falling of a pole, would be cleared up before late evening.

General Wire Trouble Noted

A number of miscellaneous wire troubles were reported in, in some places wires being down and in others broken because of havoc brought by the wind. These things were pretty well taken care of as fast as the reports came in.

The repair offices of the Portland General Electric company reported but one trouble call, almost an unheard of minimum in such high wind. This call came from the O. K. Grover district in Polk county, and was occasioned when a wire turned out after the wind blew a tree across it.

FROSH HOOPERS AT WILLAMETTE START

The freshmen hoopsters of Willamette university held their first practice at the university gymnasium Monday under the direction of Coach Les Sparks and assistant coach George Seales.

About 25 players turned out and a large number of tall men were in evidence. Prospects are a little brighter than usual with half a dozen men who do not need a great deal of training in fundamentals. However as usual the bulk of the squad is weak in this department.

Coach Sparks plans to get his team into shape for the inter-class games which come the week before Thanksgiving.

Terry Edwards, Bud Reickay, Walter Commons and several other tall boys will make things interesting for the other class teams in the play-off. "Squid" Kitchen from Salem high is the smallest man on the squad.

Pep Bonfire of High School to Be Under Guard

If numbers can accomplish the task, the pep bonfire for the high school students' rally tonight will be a huge one. Seventeen more boys yesterday were signed up to work on the pile and guard it until time to light it. Following the students' downtown rally at 7:30 o'clock, the bonfire program will be held, probably at 8:30 o'clock.

Boys signed up yesterday were: David Williams, Robert Smith, Lewis Cross, James Beall, Glenn and Donald Woodry, Kenneth Coffey, George Miltonberger, Harold Jepson, Elton Embrey, James Haley, Harry Wesley, Laurence Blaisdell, Melvin Engel, Melvin Hanson and Ed King.

ISAAC CHILD CASE DECISION DELAYED

Hearing on habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Theodore Isaac to regain custody of his infant daughter, Wanda, Loone Isaac, was postponed in Circuit Judge Hill's court Saturday to November 17. The action was taken after a return on the writ had been made by the grandmother of the child and defendant in the proceedings saying the state of health of the child would not permit its removal from Woodburn to the courtroom.

Denying any debt and averring the action illegal, Isaac intimated when he instituted the proceedings that the child was being held away from him as hostage for a debt.

Mary Hockett, who has the child in her possession stating that the mother of the infant is her daughter, says the child is but nine months old and that the father has refused to support it. In fact, she declares the father was arrested for non-support and is not a fit person to have custody of the child.

No Clues Found To Hit and Run Case of Sunday

Investigation yesterday of a hit-and-run accident in which Warren Pahtaher, 33, resident of the old people's home, on Sunday night was knocked down in the street near that institution, revealed that the three youths in the car turned off the lights of their automobile immediately after striking the elderly man and hurriedly drove away. Police last night reported no clues as to the identity of the trio.

Mr. Pahtaher was hit just as he was about to step onto the curb in front of the home. He suffered painful bruises and shock. Attendees last night stated he was resting comfortably and "holding his own."

Answer is Filed To Foreclosure Action by Falki

Answer to a foreclosure suit brought by John Falki and Anna Falki was filed yesterday in circuit court by Marie Amend, one of the three defendants named in the action.

Mrs. Amend contends that she has a prior lien on the real property on which plaintiffs seek foreclosure. Her liens, Mrs. Amend says, consist of $292 due her on a judgment secured against Theodore C. Amend in circuit court together with $320 due her on a settlement ordered by the court after she secured a decree of divorce from Amend in August, 1931. Missbeth Kelly is the third defendant named in the action.
