SECONDARY ROADS LAW IS EXPLAINED

Fund Only Half of Former Market Law Amount, is Scott's Statement

The public probably will be disappointed in the amount of work that will be accomplished with the limited funds available under the secondary highway law, according to a letter written by J. H. Scott, market road engineer of the state highway commission, to J. E. Smith, Marion county commissioner, and secretary of the state association of county judges and commissioners. "Apparently about one-third of the total mileage will be taken on as secondary highways and the fund is less than half of what was used as market roads," Scott said. "The public will expect more in the way of maintenance, heavier types of paving, more grading, ditch cleaning, widening and such matters."

"It is realized that probably we have taken on too much mileage for the funds available but it will be the intention to accomplish as much as possible and maintain rather than to enter into construction programs of any consequence."

See Good Chance To Concentrate Work — J. H. Scott has offered the suggestion that it now is probably the best time in years to eliminate road districts and to get all of the county work centralized under the control of the court. The market road fund is the only fund he states which the county court can levy that does not have to be divided on a 50 per cent basis with cities and other road districts.

Another important phase of the new law, based on Scott's statement, is that the law definitely provides that the county courts shall procure the right-of-way for the secondary highways and funds for this must come from county funds.

Scott said the old market road law has been satisfactory and its repeal was merely from a standpoint of economy and the change to secondary highways as a relief to the county. He says that about $30,000,000 have been spent on market roads since 1920.

The total mileage at the end of 1930 was 6023 miles of which 266 miles were paved with bituminous pavement, 254 miles with heavy gravel and 505 miles graded to suitable standards.

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

The state police department is finding plenty of work to do. Another shooting yesterday caused another group to be sent out on a man hunt near Florence, in Lane county, while an intensive search is being conducted in southern Oregon for the slayers of Victor Knott, Ashland policeman, believed certain the men will be captured.

If the shooting keeps on, and juries return the just verdict for such cold-blooded murders, Warden James E. Lewis will have to enlarge his scaffold at the state penitentiary. Several hangings loom at the present time, with the possibility of three more coming up. It looks like a busy season for the executioner.

State Police Superintendent Charles Pray, who visited eastern Oregon the past week, reported on his return that Amos Helm, the officer shot at LaGrande by

CLASSIFICATION OF SWINE IS CHANGED

Changes in the commercial class swine exhibits at the Pacific International Livestock show in Portland to conform more with the market demand classifications were planned at a meeting of purebred swine breeders held at the chamber of commerce here yesterday afternoon.

Two classifications of commercial hogs will be shown, both consisting of 25 head, and one ranging from 160 to 180 pounds and the other from 180 to 200 pounds. These classes correspond more to the market demand, rather than do the heavy show classes that have been too large for the market.

ASSESSMENT RATIO SLIGHTLY LOWERED

Marion County's Reduced By Only one per cent, is Commission Report

Ratios of assessed to full valuations in the state of Oregon for the year 1931 show a slight reduction when compared with those in 1930, according to announcement made Friday by the state tax commission. Only one county, Harney, has been given a ratio in excess of the previous year. This increase is approximately 2 per cent. Marion county's ratio reduces from 54 to 53 per cent.

Malheur county has the most drastic reduction in ratio. The ratio of this county for 1931 is approximately 8 per cent below that of 1930. Klamath and Sherman counties have a 7 per cent reduction in the ratio of assessed valuations to the actual property valuations.

The ratios of the 36 counties for 1931, as compared with those in 1930, were announced by the state tax commission today, as follows:

That about sizes up the Saturday program around the station-house. The half day is seldom productive of any great news features, although the state police advised that attention to closing hour or holidays. Next week state employees will enjoy one day off to make up for the contribution they are making to the unemployed. Thanksgiving is the real occasion.

There is always some good coming out of any situation. So figures A. A. Schramm, state banking superintendent. During the recent banking crisis there has been noted an increased interest in banks by the individual business themselves, and in many instances this interest has resulted in improved banking methods in communities, Schramm said.

Don't get discouraged boys, that home warming even at the Charles M. Thomas residence will yet be a reality. Definite assurance was received this week, not from the public utilities commissioner this time, but from the one really in charge, Mrs. Thomas. And from all reports the delay will be well worth the while to press matters.

FORESTRY SUBJECT AT CHAMBER MEET

DALLAS, Nov. 20—George E. Griffith, of the United States Forestry service was the speaker for the joint luncheon of the Kiwanis club and chamber of commerce Friday noon. His subject was "Green Gold" or the wealth represented by our forests.

He stated that more wealth had been taken from the green gold of the state of Oregon than from the yellow gold of California. While Oregon still has one fifth of the merchantable timber of the United States, provision to maintain this flow of green gold in payroll dollars must be made, by a scientific tax on timber lands and to allow new growth timber to reach maturity.

Mrs. Charles N. Bilyeu, secretary of the local Red Cross, spoke briefly on the roll call and work of the organization. A quartet of boys under direction of Mrs. Alice McBride, music instructor in the schools played several harmonica numbers.

Mr. Griffith was accompanied by W. V. Fuller in charge of the educational program of the state forestry department, and for the morning they appeared before the assembly of the Dallas high school.
