Perhaps the hardest fought game in the history of athletic competition between Albany high and Salem high will ensue when the two meet on Olinger field this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Albany and Salem are both in the cellar as far as the Willamette valley title is concerned, as neither has won an important game. Silverton was defeated by the Cherrians at the start of the season, but it not generally counted in the same class as the larger schools.

Coach Ellingsen is from Washington State college and has the support of the Albany townsfolk. His team fired up against Corvallis high and was noosed out by only one point, 7 to 6. Corvallis high had previously trampled Salem.

The Cherrians have looked good on offense all season, but have lacked consistency on defense and several bad bobbles have spelled disaster in the games played. The present backfield is perhaps stronger defensively against a running attack than any previous one, though it has yet to demonstrate what it can do against passes.

On offense it should be outstanding if the backs and the line-men get to work as a team together. DeMaris is an excellent ball advanced and is not afraid to smack into things. He has a lot of leg drive, as have Weisser and McCaffery. Chuck Reed is the best broken-field runner and his pivoting and spinning make him hard to stop.

Jim Reed comes back occasionally to do the punting and has been getting away some nice ones. He can also run from punt formation and might throw passes. Jim and Chuck are expected to lead both seniors. This is the first game in which both were in the starting lineup.

Injured Men May Get in for While
Emil Otjen, who plays tackle, was not out to practice Friday on account of headaches, but will probably be in today's game. In case he is not able to play, his brother, Rein Otjen, will play that position. Rein is a good man, though not quite aggressive enough as yet.

Suzal, Payne and Nicholson will be in suits and ready to play if necessary, though they have injuries and Huntington wishes to save them for Chemawa if possible. He has another good reserve back, Eckstein, who is only a sophomore.

Albany is planning to win this game as Coach Ellingsen insisted on certain officials and a large number of Albany people will be here to witness the contest.

BASKETBALL START DELAYED FOR W. U.

Coach Roy S. "Spec" Keene of Willamette university is concentrating on football and the Whitman game to the exclusion of all other interests at present, including the oncoming basketball season.

"Let's all concentrate on football and let basketball go now," stated Keene the other day when an inquiry was made concerning prospective chances for his "cage team."

Most of his basketball players are doing just that for a number of them also play football. And right now those football men don't care much what happens in basketball just so they can smother Whitman on the gridiron.

Perhaps the best thing now for basketball would be for the Bears to pull through with a hard earned victory over the Missionaries and carry that same fighting spirit into basketball practice when it comes. For the public's information, let it be said that some of the basketball men who are not playing football, have already started to get into condition and with the football men already in good shape, no time will be lost in getting ready for the early season games in basketball.

Find Englestad Played in 1928; Held Ineligible

CORVALLIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ed Englestad, substitute left guard on the Oregon State college football team, was declared ineligible for further play by action of the state college board of control today. The announcement was made by Professor Charles Johnson, acting chairman.

Careful perusal of past playing records, occasioned by recent allegations of ineligibility against Bill Brington and Buck Hammer, regulators on the varsity team, revealed that Englestad had played a total of nine minutes in games in 1928 and, consequently, was not eligible this year.

The Irish have torn through all opposition this season—with the exception of Northwestern, which game ended in a tie—and the U. S. C. gridsters are considered the most formidable opponents to face the great football machine to date. The game will feature a brilliant galaxy of the most colorful stars in both teams. Captain Tom Yarr of Notre Dame will lead the attack that he hopes will result in a repetition of the 27-6 victory scored last year over Southern California. With

SILVER FOXES WIN BIG GAME

Defeat Woodburn 7 to 0; Kollin's Line Smashing Is Leading Feature

SILVERTON, Nov. 20—The Silver Foxes of Silverton high now consider their football season a success, following victory today over Woodburn's bulldogs, 7 to 0, in a hard fought revival of this time honored classic. The game was not decided until the final period when Kollin punched his way for the lone touchdown and added the extra point in the same manner.

Silverton played on the defensive in the first quarter but the complexion of the game changed suddenly with the opening of the second period. Woodburn did not get inside Silverton's 20-yard line, and made only three first downs during the game.

After the first quarter Silverton made yardage consistently. It completed six passes, with Irish outstanding in the receiving role. Woodburn completed two passes.

Kollin's line plunging was the big feature of the game. Silverton has one more game, against Independence here Thanksgiving day. Basketball practice is now being started.

The lineups:
Woodburn: Silverton D. Ramsdel, LE; Marahaj L. Koch, LT; Paulson G. Koch, LG; Egan F. Thomas, C; Pettijohn P. Coyne, RG; Fuller C. Larsen, RT; Scott G. Gearin, RE; Irish M. Ramsdel, LH; Rudishauser L. Skiller, RH; Green L. Halter, F; Kollin Referee, Mazon; umpire, Hauser; head linesman, Peterson.

Among the Dixie Flyers

By HARDIN BURNLEY

SOUTHERN STARS!

Don ZIMMERMAN -- THE FLYING DUTCHMAN OF TULANE -- A GREAT BACK AND A VERSATILE ATHLETE!

MINT-JULEP-LAND may well be proud of its premier football teams for they yield to none of other sectors in class or winning power. Tulane, Georgia, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Kentucky and one or two others are first class indeed, ably carrying on the competitive tradition set years ago by those famed Heisman-coached Georgia Tech machines. The "Rambling Wrecks" have been just ordinary in recent years, but Dixie's Green Waves and Crimson Tides have been among the entire nation's very best, thus far having a big edge in their intercollegiate battles with the best on the West Coast, the East, and elsewhere, including even the hardy Southwest, where Texas teams are among the grid's most awesomely thunderous herds.

CURT COMMENTS

Salem high's football team bears at least one resemblance to the great Notre Dame outfit this year—it has played most of its games away from home. But now the last two games will be on the home grid, starting with Albany high today. The next and last will be with Chemawa, Thanksgiving day.

Salem and Albany have engaged in some great epic battles in the past and today's game should be as good as some of those that preceded Albany's slump of the last few seasons. Carl Ellingsen has apparently snapped the boys out of it to a degree. At any rate on the basis of comparative scores against Corvallis, Albany holds an advantage over Salem. It's generally believed here that Salem's defeat by Corvallis was an upset, but that remains to be proved.

The chief redeeming feature of Willamette's showing against Albany college last night was that the Bears were in there with some apparent fight. We have a hunch that this year's Bears are so constituted that they will show no over-confidence of the disastrous kind in any game; if they think they are better than the other team, will start right out to prove it.

Let's hope so, for their sake in the coming contest at Walls Walls on Turkey day. Here is Whitman, stung by two upset defeats at the hands of more or less despised rivals; and Willamette with some basis for cockiness, in view of comparative scores. Yet Whitman has the capabilities, as shown by its victory over Pacific and Paget Sound, Whitman will be fighting. We think Willamette will be too. They are near enough equal that the one which fights hardest is going to win.

FOOTBALL SCHOOL

"A player may at any time pass (hand or throw) the ball in any direction except toward his opponent's goal, and any other player of his team may catch such a pass, or recover the ball if muffed or fumbled, and may run with it, pass it backward, or kick it."

"One forward pass may be made during each scrimmage by the team which put the ball in play from scrimmage, provided the passer is at least 5 yards behind his line of scrimmage."

"During a scrimmage the team in possession of the ball may punt, drop-kick or place-kick, and the receiving team may recover, run with, pass backward or kick the ball."

Those three sections of the rules cover the legality of passing or kicking at any particular moment in the game. Not all football fans know that passing backward, which includes also the so-called lateral pass, is legal at any time the ball is in play. Many are also surprised on those rare occasions when punt receiver returns the kick. Such occasions are rare, principally because there's no advantage in doing it. It is supposed to be a surprise play, but the original kicker on the opposing team is back in position for it and usually a couple of his team mates, so it's not usually effective.

Question—What good is football anyway?

And by the way, that is the last question unless some readers have questions they want to ask us.
