Willamette has $116,000 in annuity funds which will eventually become permanent possessions of the college. At the present time much of the Willamette endowment is in a precarious circumstance because of the scarcity of good safe investments. Some schools which have gone ahead with building programs to the exclusion of strong endowments, are now cutting the number of professors or are slashing their wages, he stated.

Under the Dome . . . Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

WHEN a deputy sheriff's own son escapes from him and steals his car, while the officer is taking him to the state training school, something should be done about it. This was the experience yesterday at Salem of W. E. Marcell, a deputy sheriff at Pasadena. He was still looking for his son and his car late yesterday.

The governor apparently was so busy yesterday trying to restore harmony within the state highway commission that he had no time to come to Salem. He is expected here today, however, and there will perhaps be several board meetings awaiting him. Spaulding went to Portland yesterday to attend the conference called by the governor.

Just what the transaction at this conference in the governor's hotel room was yesterday would no doubt make interesting reading. Mr. Spaulding was very anxious not to be late at the meeting, and secured one of the members of the state engineering staff to drive him up there so and sons Jackie and Gordon of independence; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Wells, Eugene; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wells and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Strawn and daughters Lorraine and Jennie, of Salem, and friends, Mr. Peters of Eugene, and Mrs. Lisney and Miss Pansy Lisney of Salem; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Elkin and family of Portland were unable to attend because of the illness of Mrs. Elkin.

Plans for the great get-together dinner of state departmental heads are developing rapidly. Charles M. Thomas, public utilities commissioner, has been elected toastmaster for the big affair, and he has accepted the honor, which in reality will be a difficult task. He was chosen for his dignified appearance and his reputation as a good presiding official.

There will be nothing serious at this dinner, nor will there be any politicians. All politics will be hung outside the door as members enter. This will be a fun party which will have for its purpose getting acquainted with the Oregon supreme court is being deluged with cards demanding the freedom of Ben Boloff, serving a ten-year sentence at the penitentiary on charges of criminal syndicalism. A regular Oregon Tom Mooney affair, so to speak. The court now has a petition for rehearing of the case. It previously upheld the conviction in a 4 to 3 opinion.

There were plenty of bids for wood for state institutions when consideration was given them yesterday. About 25 farmers and wood dealers entered bids, more than enough to supply the 4,000 cords needed in 1932. The awards will be announced later.

Home of many national tennis champions, Santa Monica, Cal., now has a wrestlers' colony, including Joe Savoldi, Everett Marshall, Dr. Karl Sarpolis and Wladek Zbysko.

Gregoire Estate Hearing is Held Here on Monday

Wilquet was displaced as administrator by Ladd and Bush Trust company on charges that he refused to file final account and turn over certain properties. Wilquet was later arrested and held in jail but was released on a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Gale S. Hill, who held that the statute
