Bearcat Hoopers Report; Will Play Oregon State Early

TEAM IN NEED OF REVAMPING

Only two of Last Season's Regulars Reporting for Initial Meeting

Varsity basketball candidates at Willamette university were called together for their preliminary meeting Monday afternoon, and today will start strenuous prepartions for the opening game of the season, against Oregon State here December 19, just three weeks away.

Willamette's basketball hopes are not tied up exclusively with the Northwest conference as is the case in football. In the court game the Bearcats for the last several seasons have been practically on a par with the Staters and with the Webfeet of University of Oregon, beating both occasionally. Two years ago they defeated the Webfeet two games. Last eason they had no regular games scheduled with the university quintet, and lost the one game played with the state college, 35

There is no evidence so far that the Bearcats will be up in the big college class this season, but "hope springs eternal" and the opening game will be fraught with a lot of interest. However Oregon State has the advantage that Coach "Slats" Gill already has his squad well organized, with several weeks of practice already behind

Year Regulars Out
Of last year's Bearcat squad, only six men including two regulars reported for Monday's meeting: Scales who will be playing his fourth season, Kloostra who was regular center after Cardinal's departure last winter, and Moore, Kaiser, Faber and Hartley who were reserves.

Keene announced that he would call out for varsity practice all members of last year's varsity squad and all of last year's freshman squad members who are available, along with several promising freshmen. Later he will cut the varsity squad to 15 players and this will include, if it can be worked out, five freshmen who will play as a unit team and may enter some varsity games in-

Considerable rebuilding will be ams, Gibson and Cardinal, Kloostra filled in admirably in Cardinal's place late in the 1931 season but the old Scales-Adams-Cardinal scoring combination was broken up and some late season games which otherwise would have been easy victories were nip-and-tuck affairs. Conference Promises

Much Competition Meanwhile, although the Bearcats wil go stalking bigger game early in the season, the Northwest conference which they dominated the last two seasons promises to be a different matter-this year.

Along with Whitman which handed Willamette its only conference defeat last winter, Linfield. College of Puget Sound and Pacific are expected to come to the fore this year-especially Linfield, which started slowly under a new coach last year and gave Willamette a big scare in their second game. Linfield has been winding up in third place in the conference with fair regularity which invariably slows down basthough it doesn't do so well in ketball players, according to other sports.

The conference schedule will lings. be made up at the annual conference meeting in Portland Friday. But here comes Jenne with a chance to grab the Northwest conference football championship in post-mortem fashion and he doesn't grab it. At least he says he won't grab it. Well, maybe we don't know the full story. Maybe Jenne told Coach Sandberg of Puget Sound to go ahead and use Gagnon, and isn't in position to protest now. But that's unfounded suspicion. The author of "Under the Dome" knew Jenne in college and says Eldon is a swell chap, so we'll take his word for it.

> Some followers of the Bearcats here are more disappointed than they were a year ago when the boys were nosed out of the championship. We're not. This season we haven't found it necessary to raise the question as to whether any player happened to be doing his best. The boys may have let down in practice sometime, but we heard of no suspicion that any were loafing or crabbing in the games. And in our sports catechism, it's no disgrace to lose, but it is a sin not to try.

Start Final Training Grind For Charity Contest: Utes Send Trains

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 30.— (AP)—Stiff scrimmage practice today started the Oregon State college football team on a fiveday training grind for the benefit game with the University of Utah at Portland next Saturday.

Coach Paul J. Schissler, who saw the Utes trounce the Utah Aggies last Thursday, warned his men tonight that both high-grade football and plenty of fight would be necessary to hold the strong Utah team, which has just won its fourth Rocky Mountain conference championship.

Schissler said tonight all his men are in good physical condition. Joslin, who was injured in the game with Oregon, apparently has recovered fully but Schissler said he would not use him Sat-

Referees Will Take Course Under Keene and Maple; Standard is Sought

The Upper Willamette Valley Officials association held its first meeting at Willamette university Monday night with Coach R. S. Keene in charge and plans were made for election of officers and thorough organization of the group Wednesday night. About 15 recommended officials were at the meeting and a number more will be at the Wednesday session to take part in the election of officers.

Roy S. "Spec" Keene, head coach of Willamette university and Howard Maple, assistant coach, will conduct a referee's school and those passing the tests will be admitted into the association under certain conditions to be prescribed later. In the past many schools have complained about officials for one game being lax in calling fouls and then the team perhaps being subjected to a strict official in the next contest. Many of the coaches would like to see officiating standardized in the section so they would be able to coach their players accordingly.

Second Group of Kind in Oregon

Many disagreements have arisen in the past concerning officials and on some occasions schools have had difficulty in agreeing on referees. It is also felt that for untrained novices to call games, hurts the style of play and eventually retards the game.

At the present time similar organizations are working effectively in a number of states, but outside of Portland, this will be the
