Shop Tour Reveals Myriad Articles for Husband, Son and Father

By STEPHEN C. MERGLER
Redecorate your man this Christmas. Sounds more like houses and offices. But when one looks in shop windows, eyes counter wares, she sees that Christmas might too be a time for brightening up "hubby," dad or son. About the only items of men's clothing left dull and dark these days are shoes, suits, overcoats and hats. And those are but half his apparel.

Bright, warm colors take the chill out of winds and fogs and rains. A word might be offered the wise, however. That is, observe the colors your man likes and buy accordingly. Although he might not tell you, he would be sorely vexed at receiving a shirt, suspenders or tie of the color he always has detested.

With the price of textiles so very low, selection of those nice garments is assured.

At getting-up time, the man might like having a gay pair of shorts and shirt to don, neat checked silk-and-wool hose of either garter or no-garter type, the new smaller-pattern shirt with collar-attached or collar-to-match, and a new necktie.

On the way to the office, the soft folds of a muffler come to the rescue in keeping out the chill of winter days. Silk mufflers are both warm and smart-looking. Gloves this year are not expensive. Pileskin continues to lead the list of materials in popularity, with new shades such as the cork color being offered. Grey suede and mochas also have their demand. A neat silk handkerchief jazzes up the austerity of a dark winter overcoat.

Now your man may like to take his coat off in the office and, if so, he needs a light jacket to keep him warm and protect his shirt from soiling. Coat sweaters are admirably adapted to this purpose and this year are unbelievably low in cost for the best of quality. Soft materials such as the alpaca, camel's hair and the fleeces, are the mode. Better tailoring stands out in these garments.

Handy little desk knick-knacks make pleasing Christmas gifts and give variety over the year-in-year-out neckties.

If your man delights in taking it easy around home in the evenings, he would be tickled pink at receiving a lounging robe—a flannel or silk one. Bright plaids and plain colors, some stripes, are being shown this year. And slippers, of course, in blacks, reds, blues, with soft or hard soles, are a necessary adjunct to lounging.

Twelve o'clock and time for bed. If you want your man to sleep in utmost comfort, give him a few pairs of the new pajamas. Beltless pajamas now featured in the shops are a decided improvement in comfort. Bright colors pop up again in this garment and new styles are being offered. Instead of the collarless coat which lets a man's neck shiver, the new coats have Chinese, Russian or shawl collars. Both slip-on and coat style pajamas are "in".

The task of selecting a Christmas gift for your man is made easy by the array of newish articles being shown in the shops. The variety is available; a distinctive gift will be found during a brief shopping tour about the city.

GIFTS FOR SMOKER NO HARD PROBLEM

If your man, be he husband, father or brother, smokes, gift problems already are solved. Innovations are few and unwanted by the smoker, but new gadgets always find good use. The luscious-looking pipes in store windows at this time of year make the smoker's mouth water. A shiny new pipe, whether briar or meerschaum, is welcomed. Soured pipes make for soured dispositions.

Or a lighter that has a high baiting average is a gift joyfully received. Cigaret cases, tobacco pouches, cleverly-designed ash trays—the accessory list is endless.
