PAGE FOUR

this paper.

The OREGON STATESMAN, Salem, Oregon, Saturday Morning, January 2, 1932

By EDSON Che Drecon an Statesman HERE'S HOW By Royal S. Copeland, M.D. MONKEY "No Favor Sways Us; No Fear Shall Awe" YOW 1932 is here! What are From First Statesman, March 28, 1851 you going to do with it? There can be no doubt THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING CO. that New Year's Day should be CHARLES A. SPRAGUE, SHELDON F. SACKETT, Publishers more than a holiday. A part of it, CHARLES A. SPRAGUE . . . . . . Editor-Manager surely, should SHELDON F. SACKETT - - - Managing Editor be given to solemn thought. Member of the Associated Press The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publica-tion of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in Do not fear, I shall not preach to you or at you! But Pacific Coast Advertising Representatives: I should be re-miss if I said nothing today Arthur W. Stypes, Inc., Portland, Security Bidg. San Francisco, Sharon Bidg. : Los Angeles, W. Pac. Bidg. about the importance of health Eastern Advertising Representatives: Ford-Parsons-Stecher, Inc., New York, Saimon Tower Bldg., 11 W. 42nd St.; Chicago, 360 N. Michigan Ave. Your educa-Entered at the Postoffice at Salem, Oregon, as Second-Class tion, influence Matter. Published every morning except Monday. Business and wealth will Dr. Copeland do you or the office, 215 S. Commercial Street. world little good if you becom shattered in health. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: Mail Subscription Rates, in Advance. Within Oregon: Daily and Sunday, 1 Mo. 50 cents; 3 Mo. $1.25; 6 Mo. $3.25; 1 year $4.00. Elsewhere 50 cents per Mo., or $5.00 for 1 year in advance. You cannot be cheerful, content er good-natured if you suffer aches and pains. By City Carrier: 45 cents a month; $5.00 a year is advance. Per Copy 2 cents. On trains and News Stands 5 cents You are not sane and sensible if you are absolutely heedless of your physical welfare. You are unkind to your family

and friends if you neglect your bod-

I am quite sure the year just ended brought to me personally more shocks than I experienced in any previous year of my life. I refer to the amazing number of sudden

Sudden death is not an accident in the ordinary sense. An automobile collison, the breaking of a wheel on a railway train, a slip on the ice-

most of such accidents cannot be anticipated ad prevented. But deaths from Bright's disease, heart disease, tuberculosis, cancer

and other serious ailments are preventable. In most instances early attention will give complete relief.

On the other hand, if neglected,

these diseases lead to sure disaster.

Their ultimate effect is to shock and sadden the friends of the victim.

deaths among my acquaintances.

ily welfare.

avoided.

ease.

physical examination.

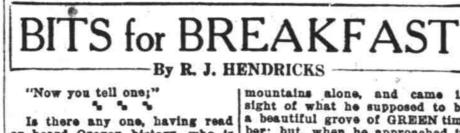

you an overhauling.

A Prosperous Winter ROM reports that come trickling in it is apparent that this is going to be the best winter in years for the knights of the road, the panhandlers, and the professional idlers. Cities and towns all along the way from Blaine to Tia Juana are set in high gear for the provision of creature comforts for those who travel by the jerk of a thumb or in lumbering box cars. The story of grim need has touched the hearts of well meaning citizens and the response has been such that there is no current depression among those whose major occupation in life is to dodge employment.

The other evening one of these gentlemen panhandlers made us a personal call. He insisted on a private audience, explained in detail his unfortunate plight, how eager he was to get some employment, professed experience in newspaper solicitation, told how extremely humiliating it was to be in such shortened circumstances, explained how he disliked to go and ask for charity at the regular institutions. Well, we thought to help him over the hump and offered him a chance at work enough to give him sustenance for a little time, gave him a coin for lodging and eats, with instructions to report the next morning. With profuse thanks and assurance that the advance would be repaid he departed; and he is still departed. For days have come and gone, but the man has not returned. In our experience they never do,-so we grieve but little, and the advance was not large so we are out but little.

Another story came to us from Seattle. A man was standing on a street corner and a fellow who seemed fairly well dressed approached and made the customary appeal for money for a bite to eat. The man he accosted was quick-witted and said: "Well I haven't been able to get anything either". The panhandler thinking he saw a brother in the same business said, "Well I've had pretty good luck; I've got $13.00".

Still another story came to us of a Salem merchant driving up from southern Oregon. He picked up a hitchhiker who was northward bound. At Cottage Grove the Salem man stopped for a bite to eat and with brotherly kindness invited his passenger to have a sandwich and cup of coffee with him. The other refused, saying that he was receiving enough in being given the ride. He was back when the car started, and as they journeyed along became more confidential, finally disclosing the fact that he had an orchard in the south, but the going was tough so he was "working" his way from town to town along the highway as far as Vancouver. He "works" the towns, and said he had collected $2.45 at Cottage Grove while the Salem man was eating his meal. Was it a hard winter? Well, not for this individual. His resourcefulness was proving equal to the "depression". We do not relate these cases to make people less thoughtful and less generous, but to make them more critical of chance appeals. Behind (or often in front of) those cases of real distress are others who are simply mooching their way the Empire Holding corporation through life, and the present is easy pickin's for them. There is nothing that corrodes character and self-reliance quite like charity. Accepted first with reluctance and apparent humiliation, later it is received without thanks and finally comes to be demanded; like the woman at Corvallis who sent back the canned goods and demanded "fresh fruits like other folks have". We must take care of the destitute, but we should pray long and earnestly that we do not cultivate a permanent pauper class.

heard Oregon history, who is not familiar with the peculiar character of the pioneer days known as "Black Harris?" $ $ $ every ailment in curable in its first

ON WITH THE DANCEI

COW-BELLS OF DIFFERENT

PITCH, HUNG ON SIMIANS'

NECKS IN THE ZOO AT

RACINE, WIS., FURNISH

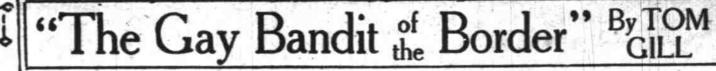

THE MUSIC

There was a well known gag in stage. By a change in the manner of living, by appropriate treatment, ater days. You would be asked, the otherwise inevitable result is Do you know the three biggest liars in Oregon?" and if your ten-There is : mystery about how to derfoot answer was in the negaescape the unhappy effects of dis-Its early discovery is the secret. That is effected by a careful On this New Year's Day, always a day of good resolutions, won't you permit me to suggest one? Have a thorough examination made this month. Perhaps you are not very busy just now. Go to see your doctor. Tell him you want him to give known and respected-and, besides, many bigger liars than the

In all probability you are normal in every respect, but won't it be a comfort to know it? On the contrary if he finds a defect, your good doctor friend will advise you what to do to get rid of it entirely. Make this resolution on this New Year's Day. You may add years to

SYNOPSIS

knew it, Adela Morales is his great- ] he is afraid for the women. Make The Mexican peons, grown tired est enemy. Without the love these Jito send them away." Slowly Morales turned toward the

of Paco Morales' oppression, await people bear her, the power of our the word from "El Coyote," their friend Morales might last no longer kneeling man. Deliberately he put masked protector, to overthrow him, than this cigarette. It's almost a his foot on the peon's shoulder and Morales has enlisted the aid of the worship they have for her-stronger kicked him into the dust. U. S. Cavalry to capture the notori- even than their fear of Jito. After ous bandit. Ted Radcliffe, a young all, they are like little children. They American, learns that Morales was love her because she is beautiful and responsible for his late father's ruin. kind to them, and so they endure Bob Harkness, Ted's friend, urges the slavery Morales puts upon them." him not to make an enemy of Mo- A quiet footstep sounded behind rales, as he has other plans. Ted is them, and Morales was offering them enamored of Morrles' beautiful niece, his cigarette case. "These, too, are my men ridden among you but you Adela. At a fiesta, Jito, Morales' from Spain," he told them. "I was wondering just now," said ward, jealous of Ted, challenges him to a wrestling match. Ted wins, and Bob, as he held a match for his host, with him. Morales informs Bob that | Coyote?"

shoulder and made as if to turn Adela, sensing Jito's hatred, exacts "if you realized the formidable en- away, but suddenly Adela's eyes a promise from Ted never to fight emy that Adela must be to El blazed. Her slender figure stiffened. "I will not have it. Mother of "Enemy?" his men will join in the search for God, is there no end to the madness "I mean the love these peons have of those vaqueros of yours? This "El Coyote" and that Jito has dedicated himself to kill the bandit, for her. Might it not be this love time, my uncle, we will make an end Adela tells Ted he must not let his of theirs that keeps them loyal and of it."

ote's band?'

lack of wealth keep him from love. holds many from joining the Coy-To Ted it seemed that suddenly into her voice had come some note Morales barked a short laugh. "It final and resolute. She flung Mois fear, not love, with these vermin, rales's hand from her shoulder.

The fragrance of her seemed very my friend. The one thing that helps near, and for a moment all life keep them is that here their best in-"I will not have these people made sport of by a drunken horde of cowseemed to wait breathless with ex- terest lies. They were born to be pectancy. He took a half-step for- slaves and to need masters who are boys. Do you understand me? I ward, watching the white arm that stronger than they. You must forwill not have it, I am going down rose to her neck, and paused there. get such weak sentiment when deal- to the village. No, you cannot stop His own hand covered hers. He ing with these people, senor." Then, me, my uncle." Her car was standing at the end bent forward and his lips touched as if suddenly remembering, he her trembling hand. For a fleeting handed a piece of folded paper to instant he felt the touch of swift, Don Bob. "A rider has just brought. of the broad driveway, and, throwing off her shawl, she ran and flung light fingers in his hair. Abruptly this," the Spaniard told him. "He she swerved away. warts outside." With a little frown Bob tore open

Silence for a time. At last he asked in a voice not yet grown the paper, and as he read the frown steady: "What would you think if deepened. He looked up and tapped a penniless man like myself should the message with his finger. "This may take me away for an tell you that he loved you?" hour or more-with your permis-Adela turned with a half-sigh from sion." the window. "I should think it very exciting," she whispered. That night for Radcliffe was like a page tora from romance. The gar- horse." And as Bob hurried down den, illuminated with a myriad tiny the walk he turned again to Ted. he found it to be a petrified forlanterns, had been thrown open, and "We were speaking of how to handle est; and so SUDDEN had been since dusk the villagers streamed in these people. You see those gates?" the process of petrification, that the green leaves were all petrito the music, laughing among the iron gates hung open. "More than fied, and the very birds that were shadows, feasting and drinking, a one man has been chained to them then singing in the grove were constant flow of color and eager as a lesson in behavior." gaiety. It was their day of happi- "Have they no other use?" Radness, of rest from toil and from cliffe asked. fife's implacable demands, and they

CHAPTER XX

the moment with its song and need of them in repelling attacks. the horse munching apples and pears, laughter. "Black Harris" was one of the A few Yaqui Indians, tall and un- rather strong fortress with those by, alternately murmuring curses principal characters of Moss's fabending, stood in their blankets, gates closed." mous old time novel, "The Prairie Flower." Though Harris "had no watching the women dancing to the Ted looked up curiously. "But they soft music, while their own longonly hang on those hinges. A strong haired stolid squaws squatted at man could lift them off." cakes that Morales's servants of-Incredulously the Spaniard raised their feet, silently accepting the his shoulders. "A strong man infered them. "Straight, clean - limbed, untamed fellows, these Yaqui," Don Bob was do that. Yet I remember-" saying. "These at least our host has The words were lost in the madnever brought under his thumb. Mo- dened pounding of horses' hoofs. Be-open the door. Without a word the two men jumped to the runningboard, and in another minute the little car was racing down the dusty, bumpy road. Already above the hum of the engine shouts came to them from the village, and now a volley of shots rattled far down the street. The girl redoubled her speed.

"Only that?" he asked contemptuously. "Por Dios, if I carried a whip

some wayside inn that you should rush upon me and my guests with your whining? Get back to your have come crying with fright to me."

He put his arm about the girl's whimpering people. Never once have would cut you to ribbons. Is this

"Dios," muttered Morales. "This Morales bowed. "I had feared as thing they call impetuous youth may much. Your rider brought a setdled break all our necks before the night is done."

The street was filled with riding men, great swarthy fellows with red and out, dancing on the flagstones He led Radcliffe to where the tall and purple shirts and chaps chosen -Jito's vaqueros. They rode not only in the street but upon the narrow pavements, singing and shouting, laying about them with their rawhide quirts. One had driven his "No longer. I hope they never pony among the wares of a small gave themselves whole-heartedly to will. Once my forefathers found fruit store and contentedly watched Still, this hacienda would make a while the helpless proprietor stood upon the vaqueros and prayers to his saints. As the car swung around the corner, one of the cowboys, lurching a little in his saddle, began shooting at the lanterns with indifferent success. He swore loudly at each undeed-perhaps Jito or yourself might successful shot. Farther on rose a roar of deep laughter, and the rattle of shattered glass. As if on some secret mission the main body of Jito's vaqueros

Disease is not a savage, stalking its victim, setting on him suddenly, striking him down without warning of any sort. Almost without exception, the first evidences of fatal disease date back years before the disastrous end. Further, practically ive, the reply would be, "Well - is one of them, and - - - - is the other two." In Salem the same wheeze was current, with a local man for the first and another local man for the other two. The writer mentions no names, for the reason that descendants are well slandered persons employed the formed many unselfish acts of accusing ancient joke. But many old timers can supply the names. N N

But taller liars than any of grandfathers of some of the presthem were here in still earlier ent leaders in our state and natimes. They were the "Rocky tion. More about him later on in mountains alone, and came in sight of what he supposed to be a beautiful grove of GREEN timber; but, when he approached it, also petrified in the act of singing, because their mouths were still open in the petrified state." 5 5 5 That story was told and retold many thousands of times around pioneer campfires and firesides.

TAKE PHOTOS IN THE DARKS

AN INFRARED RAY FILM

LATELY PATENTED IN THE U.S.

NEEDS ABSOLUTELYNO LIGHT

End of a Gesture

THERE remains only the pronouncement of the federal L court accepting the findings of Judge O. P. Coshow as referee in the Portland street car case in which he overturns the order of Public Service Commissioner Charles M. Thomas for a 7c fare in Portland, to finally bury what was chiefly a political gesture of the commissioner in an effort to comply with the mandate of the people. If the Joseph platform was to give free electricity without cost to the taxpayers assuredly it also could give street car rides at the cost of the streetcar company. In view of previous court decisions which have protected utilities from confiscatory rate regulation no other decision than that now rendered by Judge Coshow could have been expected. We do not really believe Judge Thomas anticipated anything else; but as he had his duty to perform to the Portlanders who made their strong protest vote against utilities in 1930, he can now declare that he is absolved from responsibility.

The ruling of Commissioner Thomas has perhaps accelerated the movement toward granting a new franchise by the city to the car company. Judge Thomas was frank in his decision, and urged the city and company to get together for the joint solution of the problem of the street car operation now rendered acute everywhere because of the competition of private automobiles. The present ruling of Judge Coshow when finally upheld as most probably it will be, will perhaps speed up the negotiations between the company and the city indicted by the grand jury and the franchise now under consideration be worked out, not to the satisfaction of either party, but as a working compromise which each must accept.

an honorable and upright life. He We said at the time the referee was appointed that there is inherently honest. We believe was no need for an extensive hearing, that the federal judges he was roped into this enterprise merely sidestepped the issue, and ran up a bill of expense. the same as were the investors. Since Coshow's findings merely repeat past decisions in similar cases our comment seems confirmed in what eventuated.

A Cook county judge has declared the 1928 and 1929 assessments in Chicago fraudulent and inequitable and hence illegal and has ordered them vacated. This is about the last straw for bankupt Chicago which doesn't seem able to tax itself. Seldom has municipal government in such a large city made such a complete breakdown.

hundreds of conservative business Harry Daugherty is the latest to "tell the truth" about the Hardmen put their money into it, it ing regime. Our guess is that Harry knows most all the truth but the Lord only knows if he is telling any of it.

The Japs have taken Chinchow. Now the Chinese will do both chinning and chowing over Chinchow.

nually.

The law provides that these sealers shall receive $1500 a year

salary and expenses of $850 an-

Four of State Deputy Sealers

utation were distinct assets.

guard.-Astorian-Budget.

Chief

JUDGE COSHOW INDICTED

pire Holding company have been charged with conspiracy to defraud. Among them is former anybody. He was not a business man and he trusted too much to those who were trying to put the thing over. Too, the plan of operation in itself may be all right.

It sounds good and inasmuch as Recollections," wrote of these THE COSHOW INDICTMENT most altitudinal of all prevaricators in Oregon history. Quoting Though Judge Oliver P. Cosh-Burnett sketchily: "When we arow and several other officers of rived in Oregon (with the Applegate train in 1843) we found have been indicted on charges of there a number of Rocky moundevising a scheme to defraud in tain hunters and trappers, who the sale of stock, it will be diffiwere settled in the Willamette cult for many people to believe valley, most of them on the Tualthat the ex-chief justice of the suatin plains (where Burnett himpreme court ever deliberately conspired to defraud anyone. Tech-self took his land claim.) . . . These trappers and hunters connically guilty he may be and censtituted a very peculiar class of surable, but we incline to the bemen. They were kind and genial, lief that Judge Coshow was as brave and 'ospitable, and, in remuch a victim of others as pergard to serious matters, truthful haps the stock-buying public was.

and honest. There was no malice Through a life time spent in in them. They never made mis-Oregon, "Ped" Coshow built up a chief between neighbor and neighreputation for integrity and he bor. But most of them were givhas a long record of unimpeachen to exaggeration, when relating able service to the state. Defeated their Rocky mountain adventures. in the election in which he sought They seemed to claim the privito remain on the supreme bench, lege of romance and fable when principally because he was a demdescribing these scenes. As excepocrat in a republican state, he actions to this rule, I will mention cepted an offer to become presi-Judge O. Russell . . . and Robert dent of the newly-organized Em-Newell. Their statements could be pire Holding corporation, and we relied upon implicitly." (Russell have not a doubt that he was conwas one of the provisional govervinced that it was being organnors (member of second executive zed on sound principles. The fact that he had spent his life aloof committee) of Oregon, and was afterwards prominent in El Dorafrom the business world may have do county, Cal. Newell's land made him more gullible than claim was at old Champoeg, and some men would have been, and, he was a leader in many ways in if the organizers were designing early Oregon.) schemers, they could not have done better than to persuade him Quoting Burnett later along: "I to join them. His name and repknew, in Missouri, the celebrated 'Black Harris,' as he was famil-Unless and until he has been iarly called, and was frequently convicted of deliberate intent to in his company. He, perhaps, inlefraud, we shall sympathize vented the MOST EXTRAORDINwith him though blaming him for ARY stories of them all-and not having been more on his thenceforward he had no rival.

5 5

5 5 S "He said that on one occasion was hunting in the Rocky A group of directors in the Em-

New Views

Justice Coshow. That's Do you believe there is any tough. Judge Coshow has lived hing to this Leap Year stuff?" was the question asked by Statesman reporters Friday.

Mark Smith, visitor: "Heck no. We believe that he would rather But it's something to pass words sacrifice everything he has than bout. knowingly to attempt to defraud

> J. B. Smith, route 2: "I don" know. I've seen a good many the "high, wide and handsome" leap years, but nobody got me in one of them."

G. D. Baker, cannery worker I don't think much of it."

would appear that others thought Dr. H. C. Epley, dentist and the idea of a holding company horister: "Not in my case." combination insurance group was all right. The only grave error Charles Gill, Red Cross swim we think Judge Ceshow made ing instructor: "I don't know. was in taking an oath to the ef-fect that he had put $20,000 in There ought to be lots of marriages." cash into the enterprise. This he had not done nor did any of the Clinton Standish, special deliv-ery postal carrier: "This is the if only to record the useful serother directors who took the same oath. As an eminent lawyer, the this article-or series. His true mountain men" who settled in name was Moses Harris. the valley after silk hats were invented and the fur trade pinched N N

Burnett related several of the famous stories of Joe Meek, probably entitled to second place in lost all their clothes; and towards the last they had nothing in that the roster of monumental liars among the mountain men of early Oregon, who was the here of the famous book "River of the West"

rival" in all the charmed circle of pioneer prevaricators, he per-

high service in early Oregon-saved the lives of the mothers and fathers and grandmothers and

A BED 9 FT.

LONG, &FL

WIDE, SAID

TO BE THE LARGEST

IN THE WORLD, IS IN

THE WHITE HOUSE

PRESIDENT LINCOLN

BOUGHT AND USED I

Peter H. Burnett, in his famous by Oregon's greatest historian, at least of her day. Joe told Burnett, circumstantially, of an occasion when he was out hunting, 400 miles from Brown's Hole, in the Rockies, headquarters of his company. One night, he said, his horse escaped-an he started home on foot; but he lost the lock on his gun, so he could kill no game. So he walked all the way to camp, and without anything to eat, except one thistle root, and that purged him like medicine-walked all the way, though towards the end of his journey he would often become blind, fall down and remain unconscious for some time; then recover and pursue his painful way; and that at last he reached a point within 15 miles of camp, where a comrade happened to find him and gave him a ride the rest of the distance-and that the whole terrible trip of 400 miles, less 15, was made in eight days! Burnett said, not seeming to doubt his veracity, he inquired of Joe if he might not have made some slight mistake in time while he was unconscious-that 400 miles in eight days, with nothing at all to eat, and being physicked into the bargain, was the most extradordinary feat ever performed by man. was reported. 5 5 5 Burnett wrote: "He said no man could tell how much he could stand until he was forced to try; the wide expanse between the Ca nadian border and the Texas panand that men were so healthy in handle. The storm ranged eastthe Rocky mountains, and so used ward from the Pacific coast to the to hard times, that they could Mississippi valley, leaving drifts perform wonders!" Mrs. Victor as high as 25 feet in some sections told of Joe Meek's reply to a of Idaho, blocking highways, young Englishman who, in a rathgrounding airplanes, endangering er affected manner, was inquiring human life and catching livestock of him concerning the changes away from shelter. In some parts which he had seen in Oregon. of western Nebraska snow "Changes?" said Joe, wi'h the drifted over the housetops.

great animation, "Why, when I The fury of the cold last night came to Oregon, Mount Hood was had reached far eastward into the a hole in the ground!" That is Dakotas and Minnesota where still current as a classic pioneer lie. The two mentioned are only communication lines were broken samples of Joe's repertoire; harmby sleet driven by heavy winds. The extreme western section exless arrows from his quiver shot perienced moderating weather, from the long 'w w which it was sun having replaced rain in parts his habit to draw-and stretch. of California.

But his brother, Stephen H. L Meek, who was the first person to Holiday Period buy a lot in the first town laid out in the Pacific northwest, Oregon City, and also a mountain man, was not far behind Joe in art of harmless prevarication. One of Stephen's famous stories was of a Rocky mountain, Indian belle with hair 18 feet long, which was folded up every morning in the form of a pack, and carried on the fire marshal, announced in a re-shoulders of an attendant! Burnett mentioned many of the stories of the "mountain men;" but lack of space forbids further the credit was due to the work of rehearsing of them. "There were the fire chiefs, firemen, press, pulpit and other agencies which giants in those days," surely-giant liars. have spread the gospel of fire prevention.

rales's reign ends with the foothills youd the gate a hatless rider had pushing steadily on toward the farpulled his pony to a halt. Flinging and his domination goes no farther ther end of the village, leaving bethan the docile, lowland people, himself from the saddle, he ran hind them a trail of wreckage and There is something in the mountains toward them, then catching sight of that breeds freedom and impatience Adela, threw himself to his knees with servitude. The slaves of the before her. His upturned face was world have always come from the dust-stained, and in the light of the lanterns it gleamed with sweat and lowlands."

But Ted wasn't listening. Instead with a darker streak of blood. The he was watching Adela, who, in her man was speaking to her quickly, inrole of hostess to these strangely as- sistently, his face upturned in supsorted guests, moved quietly among plication. Once he raised his hand them, giving the children little pres- and grasped her shawl, and now the ents, giving gracious words to all, girl had put both hands before her eyes and swerved. The silenced And always, as if she were something more than mortal, the hats of crowd of peons was falling back, and through them Morales and Radcliffe all the peons swept the dust before pushed their way to the girl's side. her, and the women as she passed Adela turned an agonized face reached out and reverently touched toward them. In supplication her the fringe of her Spanish shawl, arms reached out to her uncle. They followed her with their eyes, smiled when she smiled, each eager "The vaqueros," she crieo, "This for a word or nod.

"How she is loved," Ted murbroken into the cantina and are drivmured.

(By The Associated Press)

Winter took its final fling at 1931, a year of generally mild

weather, with an onslaught

Thursday along a front covering

15 western states. Only one death

The passing year was swept out

Passes Without

Fire Casualties

There was not an accident or casualty resulting from fire in Oregon over the Christmas holiday, Lester B. Davis, deputy state port prepared Thursday. Davis said this established a new rec-

Davis declared that much ord in the state.

Bob nodded. "With good reason. ing the people through the streets. She loves them. If El Coyote only He says they are wild with drink and destruction. Suddenly from beyond the village the sky blazed and a shower of sparks flew upward toward the stars. The vaqueros spurred forward, and with flashing eyes Adela looked at her uncle. "They have fired Dominguez' ranchhouse," she cried, and sped out the hard-baked road. As the car topped a rise Ted saw a solitary dwelling outlined in the lurid glare of flames. But the ranchhouse itself was not burning. Two stacks of hay were ablaze, and as the car swung toward them the roar of flames grew louder. Already a crowd of halfdrunken vaqueros rode madly about the solitary ranchhouse, while from the village streamed the rest of Jito's man says that Jito's vaqueros are dreaded band, yelling and snapping raiding the village, that they have their quirts, eager for whatever new entertainment the night might afford.

(To Be Continued)

Here's Chance For City to Get Greater Revenue

If the improbable should happen and the Marion-Polk counin swirls of show, sleet and rain in river should be washed away, the Japanese capital. ity of Salem might profit thereby, scrutiny of old ordinances reveals. A measure dating back to the bridgeless and ferry era many years ago provides for collection of an annual license fee for ferry boats operating on the river. The ordinance has never been repealed.

WATERLOO, O., Jan. AP)-Three men were killed and two others badly injured today when the roof of a cave, scene of a card game, fell o them.

The dead were Amos Woolum, 26, Samuel Cooper, 63, and Par-is Cooper, 55. Roy Woolum, 24, and John Woolum, 21, were taken to an Ironton hospital.

Here is little David Piper, aged four months, who was kidnaped from his home at Hobart, Indiana, The men had gone to the dirt cave a short distance from town to play cards. They built a fire ambassador to Tokyo, has informed the state department of his intention to resign as soon as he can be spared from his duties. He has mentioned a two months' period as the maximum ties bridge across the Willamette he would care to spend in the State department officials were eluctant to discuss the subject.

They regarded it is a delicate one in view of the part the United States has played in the diplomatic moves relating to the Sino-Japanese troubles and the necessity of the American embassy maintaining the full force of its normal influence as an im-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1-(AP)

W. Cameron Forbes, American

portant mission in Tokyo. However, department officials scouted suggestions that the ambassador was at odds with Secre tary Stimson over questions of policy in the Manhurian situa-

