Bits For Breakfast

off," into the Willamette valley over the crossing of the Cascades to the west what has since been known as the Mintz pass, but which at that time had not been discovered or used since the Hudson's Bay companies had gone that way in the late twenties and early thirties.

Meek thought he could find it from the east side of the Cascades. He led the covered wagon caravan by way of the Malheur river and the Deschutes. He and the escaped and securing horses from the Indians hastened to The Dalles. Says Bancroft's writer: "He succeeded in finding a guide in the person of Moses Harris, who had deserted White's party (Dr. Elihu White's party on the way east) the first day out from The Dalles. Harris gathered a few horse-loads of food and hurried to the relief of the immigrants." He found them about 35 miles from The Dalles, near where the Deschutes, and they were discouraged and enraged, many good judges afterwards believed, they led them to their promised land had requested it.

"I said in my haste, all men are liars," scolded the pessimist of holy writ. All men who romance are not to be properly classed as liars. In fact, as goes the old saw, there are degrees of liars—for instance, "plain liars, damned liars, and politicians"—or was it statisticians?

The Bits man worked long with a certain old time Salem newspaper man. He was truthful and reliable in his work as a reporter. But, like Black Harris, he was a romantic. Once, by prearrangement, he was led on to tell of all the things he had done in his life. He was then, say 35 years old. One of the little party of listeners kept tab on him—and the total of years he had lived up to that time, taking for granted all the things he had done, and the length of time he was engaged in each case, 1351! And he was not told, and does not know to this day, that any one who listened to him did not believe every word of his story.

SOVIET FORD PLANT NOW IN OPERATION

Built by U. S. Engineers, Factory Will Supply Russian Fords

NIZHNI-NOVGOROD, U. S. R., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's newest and largest automobile manufacturing plant, reared in record time by American engineers to turn out Ford cars, officially began operation today after the ceremonies with which Russians always greet the opening of new industrial enterprises.

Officials hailed the new factory as the foundation of a motorized era for soviet Russia. In speeches at the plant and in formal reports to Joseph Stalin and government leaders.

Construction of the factory, which occupies 300,000 square yards and is said to be the largest of its kind in Europe, is being built a new city some 14 miles from the old city of Nizhni-Novgorod, once the great marketplace for middle Asia and China.

Construction and equipment of the plant, named "Molotov" after Premier Vyacheslav Molotov, cost approximately $119,000,000. The construction, under the direction of the Austin company, of Cleveland, Ohio, was completed November 1, fifteen months after the work started.

The production schedule for the first quarter of this year concentrates on the manufacture of necessary factory instruments, contemplating an output of only 700 automobiles. After that the production calls for progressive production on a scale commensurate with the factory's capacity of 144,000 machines annually of which 94,000 will be ton-and-a-half trucks and the remainder passenger cars.

The automobiles will be manufactured under an arrangement with the American Ford company under which the Detroit manufacturer permits the Soviets to use his patents in exchange for an order for a larger number of American-made cars. Russian made materials will be used.

LEE AND SILKE IN CARS THAT CRASH

FRUITLAND, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Paul Lee and Eugene Silke, each driving new cars and a resident of Salem, name not learned, driving a sedan crashed together at Myers' corner, west of Fruitland New Year's day. The sedan was badly wrecked, being caught between the two other cars. The windshield in the sedan was broken and the elderly man's face was cut and bleeding, though not badly hurt. He was shaken up.

Wrecking crews removed the disabled cars and Mr. Silke was able to go on home unassisted. Clark Bundy is spending a few days in Toledo.

Mrs. P. R. Coulson entertained a number of guests with a radio watch party New Year's eve.
