Turner, Stayton and Ankeny Grangers Hold First Joint Meeting

TURNER, Jan. 11-Saturday was a big day for Turner grange, it being host for representatives of Stayton and Ankeny granges, as the new officers of the three granges were installed by Mrs. Ellen Lambert and her team of Stayton, in an impressive man-About 150 were at the ner. noon lunch served in the Masonic hall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Richards of Stayton gave violin and piano music. Mr. Wright of Ankeny grange sang solos and Mrs. Earl Cook of Surprise grange gave a piano solo.

The new masters, J. F. Richards of Stayton, O. Fair of Ankeny and Fred Mitchell, Turner, each spoke briefly. Mrs. Ethel Gulvin, local lecturer and a member of a committee to select pins for lecturers to wear, made a report and showed the diamond shaped style chosen, and graciously passed hers on as is to be the custom, to the new lecturer, Maurice Townsend. At the February meeting he expects to have a speaker on agriculture. from Oregon State college.

Earl Cook, Mrs. C. T. White and Mrs. W. F. Gulvin were named to plan for social activities outside of grange day programs.

Surprise grange in its business session voted to accept a gift of ground given by Mrs. Cornelia Turner Davis for a future building site. It is located south of the old gravel pit one fourth mile east of Turner. The hall fund is growing but no date has been set for building.

New officers installed were: Surprise grange: Master, Fred Mitchell; overseer, U. E. Denyen; lecturer, Maurice Townsend; -secretary-treasurer, Mrs. For the 52 weeks of 1931 these A. AURORA, Jan. 11.—Pigs is pigs, even when they are in brine.

And when four of them, in brine, showed up missing from the Loran Giesy place near here, Constable Dewey and other officers were called upon to help solve the mystery.

The theft was discovered this morning by a Chinaman who had been tending them. Whether they were stolen last night when the caretakers, Mr. and Mrs. S. Brosseau, were in Woodburn at a show, or early this morning is not known, although the Brosseaus said everything seemed all right when they returned about 9:80 o'clock. Loran Giesy and his family, with his father, Chris Glesy, have been in Los Angeles since the holidays.
