To Review Book—Albert Schweitzer's book, "The Forest Hospital in Lambaréne" will be reviewed Sunday night by Rev. J. R. Simonds of the First Congregational church. Schweitzer has achieved prominence in three fields of human efforts: he is the leading authority on the work of John Sebastian Bach and his organ recitals are events in European capitals; he is a great testament scholar whose book, "The Mysticism of St. Paul," leads all others in sales of the Religious Book company; and he is also a missionary physician, who founded a hospital in equatorial Africa.

Young people are realizing more and more these days that a business education pays. The best is none too good. Investigate what the Capital Business College can do for you. Some are registering for next week.

Special Endeavor—The senior Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church will have charge of the program at the Sunday night meeting, when a bird's-eye view of world-wide Endeavor will be given. Special emphasis will be on the power of the gospel to cement the peoples of the world into a federation of Christian brotherhood. A number of people from foreign lands, including Asia, Africa, Australia, South America, England and the Isles of the sea are expected. Dr. Greyer C. Birchett will bring the closing message.

PEACE STUDY WILL START NEXT WEEK

Places Where Classes Will Meet Announced; Much Interest Aroused

Places in Salem precincts where the study classes in connection with the city-wide disarmament education program will meet were announced yesterday by Rev. Hugh B. Fouke, educational director.

In connection with the program, Willamette university library and the Salem city library are cooperating by placing on a three-day shelf all material dealing with the question.

All classes will meet for the first time Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, and will gather one night a week for six weeks, with further meeting days to be decided at the first session. Teachers for each study group will be announced Saturday.

The entire movement is non-sectarian, and classes are open to any and all who wish to attend, without further invitation, the leaders say.

Mass Meeting on Sunday High Point

A mass meeting will be held at the high school auditorium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock as a finale to opening of the classes, when Rabbi Henry J. Berkowitz of Portland will deliver an address, "The Greatest Moment in History," on the forthcoming arms conference. S. B. Laughlin, representing the Salem Council for Prevention of War, will meet with all teachers at the rear of the high school stage immediately after the rally to assign them to class meeting places.

Places where the peace study classes will meet are:

Salem Heights community club; Pringle, grange hall; Liberty, grange hall; residences, Dr. C. A. Downs, 2121 South High; Mrs. Mason Bishop, 1359 South Commercial; Dr. Ray Pemberton, 1455 South Commercial; E. T. Prescott, 1064 Oak St.

W. C. T. U. Rooms, Ferry and Commercial; Y. W. C. A.; St. Vincent de Paul parochial school; West Salem community church; Residence of J. M. Myers, 1375 Market; First Methodist Episcopal church, State and Church; Jason Lee Memorial M. E. church, Winter and Jefferson; Chestnut Farm on Garden Road; residence of Mrs. Ethel M. Ritter, 1120 Hood.

Mrs. I. L. McAdams, 245 D; Knight Memorial Congregational church, 19th and Ferry; residence B. C. Miles, 993 Court; Professor S. B. Laughlin, 1705 Court; Dr. M. C. Findlay, 225 North 14th; Mrs. Roy Lockenour, 465 North 14th; Oak Grove chapel.

Not yet determined, there will be two in the Englewood school district, one in the Highland school district and two in the North Commercial street section.

NEWBERG FIRM TO REVAMP FINANCES

Revamping of the finances of the Spaulding pulp mill at Newberg was discussed at a directors' meeting there this week, Charles K. Spaulding, president, reported yesterday. Tentative arrangements have been made to place a first mortgage bond issue on the property to refinance $175,000 in loans outstanding against the mill. At present there is no bonded indebtedness on the plant.

The mill is not now running due to an extremely low price on pulp. Until the majority of European nations went off the gold standard, some profit could be made on pulp sold at $43 a ton, f. o. b. the eastern seaboard, but the present rate of exchange pushed pulp prices down to $35 a ton and made operation at a profit almost impossible.

The major part of the money advanced to the Newberg mill has been loaned by stockholders. These men have indicated their willingness to take the plant's bonds in exchange for notes they now hold.

GUY R. OSBORN DIES AT LEWIS HOSPITAL

Word was received here yesterday by Mrs. Laura R. Osborn, 571 Union street, of death of her son, Guy R. Osborn, Jan. 27 in the Fort Lewis hospital at Osborn. A technical sergeant in the Coast Artillery corps, would have retired from army service in seven more years. He joined the service in 1909.

He is survived by his widow, Lenora C. Osborn, of Fort Worden, Wash., where he was stationed; his mother, a sister, Mrs. Dell Baxter of Spray, Ore., and three nieces and two nephews.

Funeral services will be held at Ft. Worden early next week, and the body will be shipped to Iowa for interment. His mother will not be able to attend the funeral.

Guy R. Osborn was reared in Salem, and his mother has long been a resident here and prominent in the work of the Christian church.

Osborn had been seriously ill for some time, but hope was held for his recovery.

Defendants Win In Auto Injury Damage Action

A 9 to 3 verdict for the defendant was handed down here Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in circuit court in the case of Clara Nies against R. E. Chittenden and A. M. Jerman. The plaintiff asked damages of $20,000 for injuries alleged received in an auto accident for which Pot-luck Supper—All members and friends of the Englewood United Brethren church are invited to attend a pot-luck supper to be held at the church tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Wants Mortgage Paid—Suit to foreclose a mortgage of $1500 was begun here yesterday by B. W. Jewell against D. A. Kayman, et al. Costs, interest and taxes also are asked.

Under the Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

SALEM came in for some fame or at least notice in Theodore Dreiser's latest book, "Dawn," which is a biography of the author. In it Dreiser says that when he was a boy he had an uncle and aunt living in Salem, Oregon, which he says was "away-away west, perhaps farther than any bird could ever fly."

Dreiser's book, which traces his life from his birth till about the time he slumped into the clutches of the "big game" trust, is an interesting narrative about himself and his family. He does not paint a pretty picture of his forebears, but possibly a correct one. "Dawn" is an interesting discourse on family life.

Salem could readily say that it has the poppies "in the bag," at least according to the large order placed for bags to be used for this purpose at the Western Paper Converting company. Well, maybe Babson was really right this time. We hope that prosperity is actually coming in sight around that corner.

Willard Marks was more than busy his first day as governor this time. Business affairs at Albany, his home town, called him back there during the afternoon, and may keep him there most of today, he said. The governor held two board meetings and inspected the state hospital yesterday.

At the board of control meeting, Rufus Holman asked for a report on the consolidation of telephone systems for state offices, which was recently suggested by Hal E. Hoss. Secretary William Elzing reported the telephone bill here for the state was about $25,000 a year, which should be reduced materially, he said. The survey will be completed in about a week.

Father T. V. Keenan stopped into the press room yesterday to ask when another state stag dinner would be staged. He said he had such a good time at the big affair early in December, that he would like to attend some more like it. Well, the next one will be most anytime now, as soon as more interest like his is shown.

Father Keenan who was chairman of the state parole board during 1931, announced C. F. Wright was elected chairman for the coming year by the board members. Wright was appointed early last year by Governor Meier. The parole board is the organization which passes upon all paroles, and which recommends pardons and commutations.

Jerry Owen returned from his visit over the state with a voice like a fog horn. One had to listen to the bonus commission secretary several minutes before being aware it was a voice and not just a noise. And that is some cold says Jerry, who really has a fine voice, even for singing.

Charles Thomas housewarming dinner tonight will have the dignity of state formality of the press for atmosphere. Governor Willard L. Marks himself is a combination of state and press, and he used to be a news hound. Also General George A. White is a former cub as well as a general. What a party that should be. Needless to say the present press gallery will be well represented.

W. F. Turner, president of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railway system, announces, effective Jan. 1, the establishment of a new department to handle land settlement and immigration work along the company's lines in Oregon and Washington.

This new department will be consolidated with the agricultural and livestock work handled by Kenneth C. Miller, and will handle all local contacts, correspondence and follow-up work of the inquiries received by its parent lines, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. These lines each receive from 250 to 1000 inquiries per month for literature or information concerning Oregon, and in the past they have all been referred to the Oregon state chamber of commerce.
