ACCIDENTS REVEAL SAFE DRIVING NEED

Lansing Points out Most of Fatal Crashes Caused By wee Oversight

Some violation of a simple highway regulation most often brings highway accidents and fatalities. Lieutenant Walter Lansing of the Oregon state police observed Saturday in commenting on a series of eight serious accidents which occurred within the last six weeks in the Salem territory. Nine persons were killed and several seriously injured in these mishaps.

Lansing pointed out that neither liquor or excessive speed figured in the majority of these accidents. In the one near Stayton where five persons were involved, three fatally, the driver of the ill-fated car merely attempted to pass a truck going in the same direction without proper clearance.

The officer who is in charge of public education for the prevention of accidents, opined that it is through education rather than traffic officers and laws that safety eventually will come for the traveling public. He emphasized the importance of traffic regulation at the present time, however, by pointing out the rapid increase of traffic accidents and fatalities in the last decade.

Drunken Driving — Lansing said that the drunken driver on the public highway eventually would be subdued. "The state police have been conducting an effective drive against the drunken driver for several months," Lansing said, "with the result that a large number of them have been arrested. In a majority of cases, these drivers have been convicted, and in several instances were sentenced to long terms in jail.

"The drunken driver is a potential murderer, and his presence on the highways is a serious menace. The public can assist the officers materially in eliminating this menace by reporting promptly all cases of drunken driving."

Lansing is a strong advocate of safety education in the public schools. Two years ago he assisted in such a program, with the result that school safety lanes were established, and organizations of juvenile traffic officers were formed.

"The results were remarkable," Lansing said, "and traffic accidents near schools were reduced materially."

Officers Address Groups of Six Tests — Lansing and other traffic officers spoke before the school children on traffic problems, and charts were exhibited illustrating the traffic regulations. Essay contests also were conducted in the schools, and the winners received substantial prizes. It is our purpose to continue the education program indefinitely," Lansing continued.

Lansing presented data to show that the largest number of accidents were caused by reckless driving. This infraction included excessive speed, failure to give proper hand signals, backing out from the curb without proper protection, and traveling on the wrong side of the highway.

"Excessive speed," he continued, "is definitely certain to result in serious trouble," Lansing declared.

Lansing said the courts had cooperated with the state police in the campaign against the drunken driver, and the results had been very satisfactory. He also lauded the municipal police and the operatives of the various sheriff's offices.

Bishop Johnson Speaks Tonight Last Time Here

Bishop Eben S. Johnson, in this country on a furlough from Africa, will preach tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the pulpit of his son, Rev. S. Darlow Johnson of the Leslie Memorial church.

Bishop Johnson has appeared here before in the past few months, but the visit tonight will probably be the last one before he returns to Africa, as he will be in Iowa in March to spend some time in one of his former conference charges.

Bishop Johnson will speak here tonight largely about African music, and will tell particularly about the marimba, which is derived from an African instrument.

Miss Edith Findley will also offer several mandala selections.

CARD OF THANKS We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to friends for the music, beautiful floral offerings, sympathy and other kindnesses extended us during our recent bereavement. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Oehler and family.

ROADS IN WESTERN OREGON PASSABLE

All western Oregon highways are virtually free of snow, according to reports received at the Salem office of the state motor association. In the wake of the snow, however, are muddy and rutty conditions.

The Silver Falls loop is passable but not in good condition. The Breitenbush road is rough and slippery above Mill City.

To the west of Salem, the Dallas-Williamina road via Buell is in good shape except for a rutty mile and a half on the east end, and the Coast highway is reported good from Astoria to three miles south of Yachats.

CELERY UNION HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Officers Elected at Annual Meeting Here Saturday; Banquet Enjoyed

Lalish Meadows Celery union last year enjoyed the best year in its history, according to reports presented at the annual meeting, held all day yesterday at the chamber of commerce rooms. The sessions terminated with a banquet held at the Marion hotel, with Henry Crawford, guest speaker.

Officers were reelected for 1932 as follows: M. Shishido, president; J. Terusaki, secretary; M. Hashimoto, treasurer.

The union, organized in 1931, last year made profit of nearly $2200, in contrast to 1930, when the books showed the organization barely broke even. Operating expenses last year were about $4,600.

"The fine condition of the Union this year is due to the high price gained for the summer offerings of celery, when the market reached as high as $5.25 a crate. The lowest price during the season was $1.50 a crate on carload lots."

In 1930, the summer offerings proved too heavy and in part caused the poor showing that year. Last year the summer market was very strong, but the growers had a smaller amount of celery to sell.

Approximately 260 carloads of celery were handled through the Union last year, with this representing the holdings of 20 members and between 130 and 140 acres of land.

Plantings will drop off about 30 acres this year, and the member growers will be less by a few, because of drops. Some of the growers have gone to Japan to stay since the last harvest season.

Actual shipments by car from the tracks at the warehouse last season were 193, but storages in Salem and Portland and local sales brought the production up to the 260 carloads.

Sales handled then by Union represented about $100,000. The Lalish Meadows Celery union, is the parent distributor of the crops of lettuce and celery grown on the rich Lalish holdings. The younger unit, the Lalish Celery cooperative with Ronald E. Jones as manager, broke away in 1928 to form the second organization.

Action Delayed On Punchboard Legality Issue

Hearing on the punchboard cases scheduled for municipal court yesterday morning was postponed on request of City Attorney William H. Trindle, who said he wanted opportunity to investigate the matter more thoroughly. No formal complaint was issued against I. N. Sturtevant and George Patterson, alleged punchboard operators.

Alderman Watson Townsend, chairman of the police committee, yesterday said he would call a conference of his committee to consider what action might be taken against the punchboards.

Three Licenses To Wed Issued Here Saturday

Marriage license business continued brisk in the courthouse Saturday, three couples receiving official permission to wed. Harry P. Gustafson, 34, proprietor of an auto wrecking house here, obtained permission to wed Grace Burns, 30, 1106 Leslie street, Rev. G. C. Birchtell.

CHANGE ANNOUNCED IN TURNER PROGRAM

TURNER, Feb. 20 — The Turner school has changed the date of the Washington bicentennial program. It will be held at 10:30 Monday morning, with appropriate exercises for a tree planting; also the high school and grades will give a joint literary program. Dr. James Mathews of Willamette university will give the address. All are welcome.

Word is received by Turner relatives that Oscar Cole of Coquille is dangerously ill, suffering from a tumorous growth on the brain. Mr. Cole and family were residents of Turner a number of years ago. Mrs. Cole and Mrs. I. H. Small of Turner are sisters.

Wallace Chandler a former pupil of the Turner school, has been calling on old friends before leaving for San Diego to join the marines.

House guests at the Hans Jensen home during the week, were Miss Bernice Carlson of Sacramento and Carl Carlson of Spokane.

Robert Standley, a young lad who has been seriously ill with lung trouble since the middle of December has improved enough to be able to be about part of the time. He with his parents, came from Montana last fall.

Many of the Turner people attended the funeral in Salem Friday afternoon of Mrs. Tina Edwards, who had lived with her family near Turner most of the time for over 30 years.

Turner school has its share of "flu" victims. All are hoping to be ready to resume school work following Monday's holiday.

WEST STAYTON, Feb. 20 — A large group was present at the Growers club, Wednesday night at the Darley office. It was decided to pay 85 cents per hundred for bean picking this season. Several matters pertaining to the growers were discussed.

The Birthday club met at the home of Mrs. Minnie Allen. Mrs. Christina Forrester and Mrs. Jennie McClellan were appointed on the present buying committee for the next two months. Mrs. Stella Martin received a nice birthday gift from the club. Thirteen women were present.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Vera Asche March 2.

Mrs. Ed C. Hinkel was called to New Era last week to visit her brother and sister and Friday night her brother, David Le Bean died suddenly. She returned home on Monday. Mrs. Hinkel's two sisters are coming in a few days to make their home with the Hinkels.

A group from the West Stayton Community club went to Aumsville Friday night, to entertain at the Aumsville Parent Teachers meeting.

The West Stayton Community club is sponsoring a minstrel show Thursday night, February 25. There will be a small admittance.

RURAL CARRIERS OF STATESMAN GUESTS

Special guests of The Statesman on Saturday were its suburban news carriers from districts adjacent to Salem. While in the city the boys visited the Oregon Pulp and Paper company's plant here, enjoyed a swim at the Y. M. C. A., went over The Statesman's plant and were special guests of Warner Bros. at the Elsinore in the afternoon. They also had lunch as guests of The Statesman.

The boys' trip and entertainment came as a reward in a recent carrier contest for subscriptions in which each lad obtained at least five new "starts" for his paper.

Carriers here for the day were: Eldon Harrison, Aarora; Edward Hamilton, Dallas; Vance and Dean Smith, Independence; Vernon Thompson, Silverton; Robert Nelson, Silverton; Durrell Jordan, Stayton; John Peterson, Turner; Wayne and Ernest Lively, Woodburn.

CANNING SITUATION IS CHAMBER TOPIC

The canning situation in a number of its phases, will be explained at the chamber of commerce luncheon Monday noon by William G. Allen, veteran Salem canner and recognized as one of the most expert of his trade.

Owing to the change in postoffice service, effective yesterday with little advance notice, chamber members will receive their weekly bulletin until Tuesday, although these went into the mail at the usual time.

Mr. Allen began his canning experience in Newberg in 1890, then going to Eugene for a few years, and in 1911 he came to Salem, taking over the plant known as the old 12th street cannery, now owned by the Oregon Packing company. He is the inventor of Allen's system of canning, which is in use in some of the plants here and in other canning centers.

Building Permit Rate Helped by Spring Weather

Fair weather last week threw a nose around the slaking building permits and hoisted them to the highest week's level in February. Eighteen permits were issued by the building inspector for work to cost a total of $3584, more than four times as much as during the previous week and twice as much as in the first week of the month.

Of last week's permits, three totaling $1780 were for new construction. During the previous week no new construction was announced.
