CURT COMMENTS

The Willamette-Whitman basketball series at Walla Walla tonight and Friday night is looked upon as a championship affair, but Linfield is still in the running although not every follower of Northwest conference sports realizes it.

Linfield has lost just one game, the one to Willamette here, so if Willamette and Whitman should divide their series, that would throw the whole burden of settling the championship on the Willamette-Linfield game to be played at McMinnville next Tuesday.

In that case Willamette could win the gonfalon by beating Linfield, but the Wildcats could get nothing better than a tie with the Missionaries by beating the Bearcats. However, if a tie should result Whitman and Linfield, who for some reason have nearly always failed to agree on basketball relations, probably would play to decide the matter.

Here are the present standings:
W. L. Pct.
Willamette 7 0 1.000
Whitman 6 0 1.000
Linfield 5 1 .833
Pacific 3 0 .375
Albany 1 7 .125
Puget Sound 0 9 .000

Willamette teams have lost only five conference games in six seasons that Spec Keene has been at the helm. Knock, knock. There may be another to add to that list by tonight. Four of the games lost have been to Whitman.

The District 15 championship in the state high school basketball race may be the first to be decided. Medford and Ashland will play Friday night at Medford, and reports from there say this one game will decide the district title. Usually several games have been the rule down there. That district is one which will have no tournament.

After writing yesterday that the Salem Senators were planning not to enter a league this year, we learned that the Eu-
