CONFERENCE HELD UPON JUNIOR HIGH

Principles and Standards To Guide Systems are Discussed Here

Thirty city school superintendents and junior high school principals gathered at the state department of education Friday, to discuss junior high school organization.

The purpose of the conference was to take stock of the junior high school situation as it now exists in Oregon and to fix certain principles and tentative standards for the guidance of school officials in organizing new junior high schools or in carrying out needed reorganization in those already in existence.

C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools, made it plain that it was not the purpose of the conference to promote or to discourage further organization of junior high schools, since this is a matter for each community to determine for itself.

Recommendations adopted by the conference will be published by the department of education. A desirable type of training for junior high school teachers, a suitable course of study for junior high schools, and tentative general standards were among the topics presented by experts in education.

Junior high schools are now a part of the school systems at Albany, Ashland, Astoria, Baker, Clatskanie, Dallas, Eugene, Grants Pass, Hood River, McMinnville, Marshfield, Medford, Milwaukie, Newberg, North Bend, Oregon City, Roseburg, Salem, Silverton, The Dalles and Tillamook.

The conference will continue until tonight.

TUITION LAW TEST SUIT TO BE FILED

Complaint Being Prepared; Unfair Taxation of Districts Claim

Complaint in the injunction suit designed as a friendly test of the high school tuition law is now being prepared, and will be filed in circuit court here within a week or so, James Heltzel, Salem attorney, is handling the case for the taxpayers' committee, which is handled by Mike Weinacht of McKee.

The suit will attempt to enjoin the sheriff from collecting taxes for high school tuition in non-high school districts.

A series of meetings in districts of the county around Woodburn, Mt. Angel and McKee during the winter led up to the decision to file the test suit.

Dissatisfaction in non-high school districts over large sums paid in taxes into high school districts as tuition brought about the meetings. As an example, the Mt. Angel district pays into the tuition fund around $5000, while only two or three students from Woodburn, Mt. Angel and McKee attend high school. In the McKee district there is an $800 tuition levy, but only one student goes to high school from there, Weinacht says.

Should the test suit which will be filed shortly fail to bring the result sought, word from Woodburn indicates that a move will be started for a union high school in that section of the county, probably at Mt. Angel.

Should this materialize, it will effect not only enrollment in Woodburn and Silverton high schools, but Salem high school.

GHANDI SUGGESTS SERMON'S SUBJECT

"Is Christianity in danger of losing its Christ?" This is the question which Rev. Fisher Galloway is asking in his message Sunday morning, a subject which he says was suggested by a recent statement of Mahatma Gandhi of India. "I can accept your Christianity," the question will not only be the subject for this Sunday but will serve as a general theme for two pre-Easter messages. Rev. Galloway is pastor of the Church of the Nazarene located at 13th and Center streets.

The Sunday school which is working for a new high attendance level, made a gain of 22 last Sunday. The local school is an attendance contest with the Sunday school of the Sellwood Nazarene church in Portland and so far is 179 points in the lead. Several special features are included on the program tomorrow, 272 persons were present last Sunday.

An evangelistic campaign is to begin in the local church Sunday, March 20, with Rev. and Mrs. Earl F. Wilde of Pasadena, California, evangelists. Rev. and Mrs. Wilde will give a concert of sacred music over KOIN Portland, Sunday afternoon from 3:30 to 4. They are recognized as leading evangelists in their own denomination and have conducted campaigns from coast to coast.

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

If the state gets many more portraits of governors before a new capitol is constructed, it won't have any place to put them. The portrait of former Governor A. W. Norblad arrived at the state house yesterday and a committee will be here soon to hang the $600 art piece in the hall of representatives.

There will be other portraits coming, the one of the late Governor L. L. Paterson now being in the making. It has been suggested that they hang some of the pictures in the press room, while some of the boys have made better suggestions for some of the pieces some painters call art.

This newspaper, as well as all others, would like to be able to use big black type in this issue, announcing to the world that the Lindbergh baby was safe and sound, and again in his mother's arms. And when and if that does occur, there will be lots of big type, long unused, brought back into service.

A story which would jar the finer sensibilities of any reader acquainted with the situation appeared in one of Oregon's afternoon papers yesterday. It was of Lloyd Eddy, slain in a drunken brawl, and Archie Eddy, jailed as an accomplice in the shooting of an officer, was used in the same sentence and the same manner as the mother of the lost Lindbergh baby.

The comparison was odious, not so much because Anne Lindbergh is a woman, but because she is a mother.

PRAISES PROGRAM OF RECONSTRUCTION

Davis Tells Realtors Plan Will Bring out Hoarded Money, Cost Nothing

The reconstruction finance corporation, organized largely as a confidence restorative measure to bring hoarded money into circulation, should not cost the people anything if wisely administered, R. W. Davis of the state treasurer's office told the Salem Realty board in a talk before that group at the Rose Cafe yesterday noon.

Mr. Davis sketched provisions of the bill which created the corporation, which with its capital of $500,000,000 has a potential of two billion dollar distribution, since up to three times the capital may be issued in debentures.

Pointing to the conditions which are causing bank liquidations over the country, and particularly the depreciation in bonds, Mr. Davis declared the loans which may be secured from the new organization, now functioning, will have much to do in putting many of these institutions back on solid footing.

The flow of money has got to resume before business will climb up again, and careful loans as provided for through the corporation should help materially, in Davis' opinion.

Loans may be made to banks closed or in process of liquidation at discretion of the board, but no loans may be made on any credit that has its origin after date of passage of the bill.

The money reserved for agricultural relief should have a marked influence for strengthening this phase of industry he indicated.

In the past week, Mr. Davis said by way of illustration of present conditions, over $2100 of hoarded currency has come to light in Salem in settling estates, and recently in Portland delving into one estate brought forth $400,000 hoarded currency.

FISH COMMISSION RECEIPTS LOWER

A report of the state fish commission for the fiscal year ending November 30, 1931, showing receipts aggregating $120,673.12, and disbursements totalling $143,276.61, was filed in the executive department Friday by members of the commission.

The decrease in fund balances or the excess of disbursements over receipts was $22,603.49, the report showed. Salaries and wages for the year aggregated $94,644.98.

A comparison of statistics of the fiscal years ending November 30, 1930, and November 30, 1931, follows:

	1930	1931
Receipts	$120,673.12	$120,673.12
Disbursements	143,276.61	143,276.61
Fund balances	277.41	21,955.99

The principal factor in the decrease of receipts was the reduction in poundage fees actually collected or received, amounting to $41,293.79.

"This extraordinary decrease in poundage fees is not wholly a decrease in such fees accruing to the state," the report said, "but due to the failure of the fish packers and canners to pay the amount of such fees as accrued."
