LADD AND BUSH TO ISSUE BIG ANNUAL

Interesting History Data Included Dealing With First Capitol Here

In celebration of passing its fifty-third milestone Ladd & Bush Bankers is publishing an annual of forty-eight pages and cover, which as was true of previous editions, contains a great deal of material of historical character. The leading article is a history of the first state capitol in Salem. There are no pictures of this state house of the 50's available, but Murray Wade has made a sketch based on descriptions of the building in the records of its day, aided by the memory of Joseph A. Baker, who was 16 years old when it was burned and is the only person now living in Salem who remembers the building. The material for the article is gleaned from the files of The Oregon Statesman which was founded in 1851, at Oregon City, then the state capital. Various messages and government documents relating to the building are reprinted. Records of a meeting in Cham-poop 80 years ago which dealt with the controversy regarding the capital location, are published. An interesting sketch of the celebration of July fourth, 1853 in Salem is reprinted from The Statesman. There is a biographical sketch of Dr. J. W. Meredith for 46 years a dentist in Salem. An account of the dedication of the first M. E. church in the northwest in Salem, is given. The value of the annual is enhanced by reprints of old photographs of Salem scenes and people of days gone by. Murray Wade looks after the editorial work. The printing was done in the plant of The Statesman Publishing Co.

Under the Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

SENATOR ISAAC STAPLES was a visitor at the capitol yesterday. The senator was a townsman of Charles A. Lindbergh's father in Minnesota, and is well acquainted with the Lindbergh family. He is interested very largely in the state-aided charity organizations and spends much of his time working for these institutions.

The Oregon supreme court this month is passing its 10th anniversary in the new supreme court building here. The court moved into the quarters March 1, 1914. The first case heard in the building was an appeal from Marion county—the case of Cook and the City Land company against Dabney.

Arthur Benson, clerk of the court, is observing this anniversary in anything but a pleasant manner. It was reported, Benson is home ill with a bad cold, and is expected to be absent from his office for several days.

written from the Portland Medical hospital. Judge Hill has been confined there for a week for examination. He has been ailing for several months. Motion day in department two of circuit court handled by Judge Hill, will be in charge of Judge L. H. McMahan today. Judge Hill wrote Lamkin that he would try to be back in time to conduct the case of Johnson vs. Mott or else to let the clerk who had time so another judge could be appointed.

EYERLY RETURNS, TELLS OF MISHAP

Lee Eyerly and Frank Hrbetz reached home Saturday night from Oakland where they had a narrow escape from drowning when their plane was forced down in San Francisco bay. Not lack of gas but motor failure forced the plane down, said Eyerly. As he came down through the fog and found himself over the bay, he headed for a ferry boat which loomed up. The plane could not reach the boat however, and the people on the boat failed to see the plane. Eyerly and his three companions got out through the door of the cabin, came to the surface and got up at top of the wings. The plane settled slowly and fortunately for them a few minutes later a ferry boat traveling in the opposite direction from the cabin, came to the surface and got up at top of the wings.

Reckless Driver Cannot Pay Fine So Goes to Jail

Ross Kuhn of Dayton, who was arrested Sunday on a charge of reckless driving, yesterday pleaded guilty in municipal court and was fined $100. Being unable to pay, he was remanded to the city jail to serve out the sentence at the rate of $2 a day.

Kuhn's arrest was the result of a collision between his car and another driven by M. Klorfen, 481 State street, at Liberty and Court streets. Charles Williamson of Salem, arrested Sunday on a charge of being drunk, was sentenced to five days in jail.

Howard F. Tong of Aumsville was arrested the same day for reckless driving and cited to appear in municipal court this afternoon.

SCHOOL FOR DEAF WORK IS REVEALED

Lip Reading Demonstrated And Also Dancing by Rhythm Method
Principles of the early training which helps to make less than half of one per cent of the deaf population a burden to society were demonstrated to the chamber of commerce yesterday noon, when pupils of the state deaf school appeared in an unusual program. Supt. and Mrs. J. Lyman Steed of the school directed the children. Several dances with piano accompaniment were well executed, although the children were unable to hear a sound. The pupils are taught rhythm, and then piano keeps time to this rhythm, instead of the usual procedure, Mr. Steed explained.

Demons-trations of actual class work in the primary and third and fourth grades were given, showing how the boys and girls learn to read lips. An interpretation of "Alice Blue Gown" concluded the program. All students are taught some profession at the school, Supt. Steed explained, although they do not necessarily follow this work later. He indicated that many of the deaf students become proficient workers in some business fields.

Oregon has less than 2,000 deaf inhabitants, he said.

LEADING DENTISTS LAUD HILL MOVIE

A one-reel film, "The Life of a Healthy Child," produced here last year by Dr. David B. Hill has met with hearty response from officials of the American Dental association and may be utilized in that organization's campaign of education in schools throughout the nation this year. "I have nothing but words of praise for it: the whole thing is well planned, well acted and well photographed," writes Dr. A. Hoffmann, dean of men in the dental school at Northwestern university. Dean Hoffmann is former president of the American Dental association. In the film the day's routine of a child and the part played by care of the teeth in the child's activities are depicted. The Month Health quarterly is shortly to reprint in full a six-page pamphlet on care of the teeth, put out by Dr. Hill. Pictures from this pamphlet are now being used in lantern slides in the Portland schools.

The state grange is developing into a school for political office seekers, judging from the filings. The past two state masters of the grange are seeking positions. C. C. Hulet is after the republican honor in congress from the first district, and George A. Palmier is after the republican honor as secretary of state.

MRS. PIERCE NOT TO BE CANDIDATE
Mrs. Walter M. Pierce of La-Grande will not enter the contest for representative in congress from the second congressional district at the republican primary election, but will take an active part in the campaign.

Autogyro Seen By Crowd Here

Hundreds of people went out to the airport Sunday and saw the autogyro brought up from Portland by King Baird. Many took flights in the craft whose unique design attracted much attention. Four long rotor blades above the fuselage are used in ascending and descending and enable the plane to rise or light in very small space. Baird may return next Sunday.
