

RECORD CROWD SEES THRILLER

Fishermen Advance to Final And Will Meet Salem Again as in 1930

Increasing every moment until Bergstrom, darting out of a mass of players, leaped up and scored the field goal that gave Astoria a 26 to 25 victory 20 seconds before the final gun.

Thus by two one-point victories on successive days the ever-fighting Fishermen won the right to compete against Salem tonight for the state championship, the third time in 12 trips to the state tournament that they have achieved that honor. Astoria has participated in every state tournament but one, and played in the finals in 1922 and 1930. It won the 1929 championship, defeating Salem 22 to 17.

Salem Playing in Final Eighth Time

Salem on the other hand will be playing in the final game for the eighth time and has three state championships to its credit. It is Salem's third successive time in the finals.

In Friday night's game which about 2700 fans will swear today was the greatest ever played, Astoria had a heart-breaking period in which its three field goals were all but snatched by four points Benson gained from the foul line. Then the Techmen, fighting just as fiercely as the Fishmen, found the range and moved ahead to a 10-8 half time lead.

All this time Benson had a big advantage in the tip-off, but "Honest John" Warren sent in his taller center, Averill, who robbed the Techmen of this "edge," and also figured in the subsequent scoring. Warren later tossed Cammer into the fray and he came through as he had done in the Medford game. Bergstrom's spectacular loop shots were working but Palmberg, apparently "off his feed," could do little in a scoring way though he hawked the ball brilliantly.

Patterson is Star of Benson Defense

Meanwhile Patterson, Wildt and Helser kept Benson's score on a par with Astoria's. McLean, like Palmberg, couldn't connect. Patterson, chiefly renowned as a point-getter, was also a tower of defensive strength. Benson getting the ball repeatedly when Fishermen's shot missed.

Benson moved five points ahead, Astoria came back and gained a four point lead. Benson tied it at 19-all as the third period ended. From there on neither team got more than two points ahead. Helser went out on fouls, which may have had a lot to do with the outcome. F. Courtney, Benson reserve, went in and put his team a point ahead with a minute left to play, but in that remaining minute Bergstrom swished the net for the winning points.

Astoria scored one more field goal than Benson.

FIELD GOALS AND PERSONAL FOULS

few all-time honors tucked in the background. Nohalem has shed more volleyball during the tournament than any other team and it will be interesting to compare the types of stars each five claims.

The tournament is a great education for basketball players who have seen sixteen different styles of basketball employed. Even more, we would say, for Hood River and Corvallis have employed several variations of offense. It's a wise coach too who can learn something from every game no matter how long he's been at it. Incidentally, Willamette's future coaches are getting a great basketball education.

"Field Goals and Personal Foul" old friend Professor Oliver of Willamette university has been a regular attendant at the tournament again this season and this time has a season ticket, so he claims. It must be true this time for he would stand little chance of crashing the gate with some of his flunked English students guarding the entrances. He requested that some mention be made of the silk pants worn by Astoria and others, which is just what we intended to do. However he helped us out a lot by divulging the information that silk pants were "Something we never saw when I was in high school." That's all right, prof, the modern boys see silk pants only rarely.

The "S" club dance was announced at the game and will be a jubilation close to the tournament. Whether Salem wins or loses, the games have been nothing short of sensational and if tonight's game is as hot as Friday's, Salem people will call this one of the greatest tournaments whether Huntington's men come through to win or not. The same good feeling which has pervaded the Willamette gymnasium will

EXHAUSTED AND SHIPLESS—BUT HAPPY

Obviously thankful for their deliverance from the clutches of Davy Jones, the thirty-four members of the crew of the H. F. de Bardleben are shown on board the liner Laganbank, which brought them to Boston after a thrilling rescue in a stormy sea 420 miles southeast of the Nantucket Lightship. The men had been fighting the storm for three days, their collars cracked having broken her rudder in the terrible gale that lashed the Atlantic seaboard. In set is Captain C. T. Knight, rescued skipper of the doomed ship, thanking Captain J. R. Alexander of the Laganbank for their deliverance.

Meteor Starts Timber Fire in Alaskan North

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, March 18.—(AP)—How a blazing meteor crashed into a heavy growth of timber, starting a fire about 450 miles north of here December 20 was told here today by a trapper named Loper.

Loper said the meteor had a diameter of about 200 yards and extended about 25 feet above the ground. He said he saw the huge blazing body rushing earthward, illuminating the surrounding area brightly for several miles.

STARTS RAIL RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—(AP)—President Hoover today launched a new and definite effort, climaxed by a conference with 15 outstanding railroad chieftains, to smooth the path toward economic rehabilitation of the carriers.

tending the tournament.

If you think the players are under a strain, think of the poor parents sitting on the sidelines. The father of Cannessa, Astoria sub who broke into the Medford game and saved it for the Fishermen, said he couldn't sleep at all Thursday night. From the same source it was learned that Cannessa is only 16 years old. He played some great ball against Benson also.

Teachers are wild about state tournament basketball, too. It seems. As pleased as the students were Salem high school instructors yesterday when classes were dismissed 30 minutes early in order that they might attend the 3 o'clock game. The activity period was cut from 40 to 10 minutes to make the early dismissal possible.

We feel it is proper to mention the weather Salem provided for tournament week. Western Oregon people will understand, but for the benefit of eastern Oregon visitors, we will explain that all that rain was dished up especially to prevent anyone from wishing he was outdoors instead of at the game.

Two junior high schools and revision of curriculum along modern lines; introduction of a definite system of supervision; organization of a health program program in the schools; classification of pupils into ability groups; adoption of a vocational guidance program which Ohio State university has recognized as a model plan; organization of an extension division of the University of Oregon here; introduction of a system of vocational and industrial education; introduction of a plan for visitations of leading educators of the country for conferences with Salem teachers.

Mr. Hug, a native of eastern Oregon, obtained his educational preparation at the University of Oregon. He has done graduate work there and at the University of Michigan, the latter under a Commonwealth Fund scholarship in recognition of health leadership.

Formerly Principal at McMinnville, Eugene

Prior to coming here, Mr. Hug was superintendent of schools at McMinnville for five years and principal at Eugene for eight years. He has instructed classes at the University of Oregon summer school and the Oregon state normal school summer session.

He retired this year as president of the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Education and has been a member of the state textbook commission, member of the executive council, Oregon State Teachers' association and director of the National Education association for Oregon.

He is a Rotarian, belongs to the Elks lodge, Salem Golf club and the chamber of commerce, and has been active in work of the Y. M. C. A. here.

These facts were learned tonight as a fresh batch of clues seemed to be leading the official investigators where all others have led—into blind alleys.

After police in Pocatello, Idaho, quoted a burglary suspect as saying he drove the kidnapping car, and after a Newark, N. J., police official had questioned the man by telephone, two Newark detectives were sent to Idaho to investigate that new lead.

POCATELLO, Idaho, March 18.—(AP)—

Ignace Blaustein, held here on a burglary charge, today repudiated a statement that he had been associated with the kidnaping of Charles J. Lindbergh, Jr., and in disposing of the baby.

He gave an account of his movements immediately before and after March 1, the date of the abduction, which was partly corroborated by a check of hotel registers in Denver, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Salt Lake City.

UNIVERSITY QUEEN NOMINATIONS MADE

May queen nominations at Willamette university Friday proved to be the prominent student activity of the day, even eclipsing the large drawing of reserve library books which were taken out for study during spring vacation which begins today.

Gertrude Oehler, Helen Stiles and Edith Findley were nominated as the three candidates. Election will be held later and the two getting the least number of votes will be queen's attendants.

Gertrude Oehler and Edith Findley are both Salem girls and all three are prominent students and scholars.

Pola Negri is Relapse Victim

GREAT RALLY WINS FOR SALEM QUINT

But the crowd soon became absorbed in the contest and fathomed the little game of keep-away which the Corvallis Spartans were playing.

Bone had two foul shot chances at the start of the game and blew both of them. Wagner immediately grabbed the ball and dropped in a short shot which was followed rapidly by a scoring thrust at Torgerson's, which netted another field goal.

Sachtler gained the first point for Salem on a gift shot making the score 4 to 1 at which juncture Corvallis dropped into its percentage stance and whiffed away the time until the Salem defense got sucked off balance which generally proved fatal as Corvallis had its eye on the center of the loop. Back then the hands of Torgerson's Patterson's hands it lingered an extra space of time, just to get Salem nettled.

The score was 7 to 1 until almost the end of the first quarter when Bone got a follow-up shot, making the count 7 to 3 in favor of Corvallis the first time Cliff Parker's gun sounded.

Torgerson was the point gainer for Corvallis in the first half, scoring three field goals in stellar manner. Burrell and Sanford sank isolated goals in the second quarter, making the count 15 to 7 at half time.

Coach "Holly" Huntington never got excited during the first half and did not substitute once. He just allowed his men to get all of that kind of basketball they could stand and then changed their defense between halves so effectively that the Corvallis team scored only eight points in the last two quarters, while Salem was hustling in 25 of its own.

The net fairly stizzled at the start of the second frame when Burrell's luck changed and he started sinking short shots from all manner of contortions. Bone bagged a long shot which brought the count to 15-13 and he followed it up with a second shot, the two scores at 15 all.

Little Johnny Kelly, the last of the Salem high Kelly's, potted a long shot which brought Salem its first lead of the game at 17-15. By now the crowd was as frantic as it had been in the first game and Sanford's smooth speedy scoring thrusts past the sleeping Spartans for short shots, or his not-wishing long shots, lifted the Salem score and the Salem hearts out of danger.

Corvallis was not the kind of a team to lie down and Merryman slipped in a long shot which cut the local's lead to a 21 to 15 figure. But Salem could not be denied and now Burrell started hitting his sweet shots and Sanford continued to sneak in occasionally for crimples, also doing marvelously clean and effective guarding at the other end of the floor, not having a foul against him all evening.

Burrell and Bone continued to bounce the ball off the backboards for scores and Kelly caged kitchonish shots from the corners. Torgerson, high scorer for Corvallis with nine points, crashed through for the final basket of the game.

her few passengers were flown out to Nome where they boarded a "rescue" ship. The captain and other members of the crew stayed in a camp ashore near their vessel, but were brought out by plane to Fairbanks and train and boat to Vancouver after their vessel disappeared.

William Graham, Alaska airman, and Mrs. Edna Christoffer, Portland sportswoman, are in Alaska now preparing for a flight to salvage the vessel, which was reported to hold several thousand dollars in furs. Officers of the ship and of the Hudson's Bay company, owner of the vessel, said all valuable cargo was removed before the Baychino disappeared.
