Gregory Reports Transients—Mayor E. M. Gregory yesterday reported to the police that two sleepy, hungry transients had been parked in an automobile on Baker street since early morning. The two men gave their names to an investigating officer as Peter C. McCauley of Burlington, Wash., and Charles Oberlin of Reno, Nev. McCauley showed ownership papers for the car and said he had picked up Oberlin, a hitch hiker, near Seattle. They arrived here Tuesday night and parked in order to sleep, they said. The mayor said he noticed them get out of the car and dig around in the ground as though seeking roots to eat.

INDIAN COUSIN TO ORIENTAL BELIEF

(Copyright 1932 by The Associated Press)
BOGOTA, Colombia—(AP)—A sensational theory and partial proof that may link the language of the ancient Mayan Indians of Central America with the tongues of Asia has just been developed here by Dr. Herman Walde-Waldegg of the Colombian national library.

Dr. Walde believes he has deciphered the hieroglyphics of the Mixtecs, cousins of the Mayans, and obtained a measure of proof that they used actual syllables in their writing instead of pure picture writing as heretofore believed.

The scientist says the Mixtec writing bears definite relations to Chinese, Japanese and Sanscrit. Should his claims be borne out by future investigation, Dr. Walde believes the dragon of China and the feathered snake of the American tropics will be the key that opens the door of kinship.

New Orchard Going In at Clear Lake; Berry Fields Too
CLEAR LAKE, April 6—Quite a few new orchards and berry patches are being put out in this part of the country this year. Pearce Colard of Mission Bottom has put out 12 acres of peaches; David Schlegel put out six acres of blackcaps, and Fred Hamcock five acres of loganberries.

This cloudy weather has been hard on peach trees, but it is believed they may come out all right. Neighbors and friends gave Orvil Herold a party in his new home, which he had just completed, Saturday night. They gave him a kitchen shower and served lunch at a late hour.

HISTORY BOUND UP IN OLD LANDMARKS

er; Grace, later Mrs. Fred Holbrook, and Miss Adalade Scriber. The second house was thought by Mr. Jory to have been built about 1855, by James Warner who married Phoebe Brey. "She was my Sunday school teacher," said Mr. Jory, "but after she got married she quit teaching; funny what married life will do to people."

James Jory was the next owner and 10 children romped and grew up in this house, six of them graduating from Willamette university, and one of them, T. C. Jory, later teaching in Willamette and in the public schools of Salem.

Mrs. Henry Humphrey of Stayton saved the deed at the last transfer of the property. Renters had occupied the house for several years. The house on the corner, Mr. Jory centred, was built about 1890 and by Mrs. Meade. It had never had any one family in it for very long, although Rev. J. M. Schultze, pastor of the Leslie church, lived there for a time. And now it is to be cleared. Memories of the past will be wiped out. The old trees that have grown there for years and given such valiant service for shade in summer and protection in winter will have to go. A modern store will carry on business where family life once thrived.

MOTT WILL OPPOSE CLASS LEGISLATION

Federal taxation in his opinion should be raised by personal and corporate income taxes and by levies on estates. He does not favor a general sales tax.

Past power legislation by congress Mott terms "class legislation of the most vicious sort, which is a further example of the surrender of government by congress to the income tax and government operation of hydro-electric power."

The candidate says he favors immediate payment to veterans of the balance due them on the adjusted compensation settlement.

On prohibition Mott takes the stand that the ultimate decision on prohibition must rest with the people who in turn adopted prohibition. His stand is for a referendum on the 18th amendment when and if there is sufficient demand to make it advisable for congress to resubmit the matter.

Gridders to Have Battle Test Friday

Spring football practice is coming along nicely at Willamette university with the small, compact squad showing fine spirit and learning rapidly the new system to be employed next fall.

Attention is now being given to learning half dozen plays and getting them timed all Friday afternoon there will be some real scrimmage to give the men a taste of the real thing instead of imitation or "dummy" scrimmages.

Many of the men are being worked in half dozen plays and those they occupied last fall. Loren Grannis has been moved from his position at center and is being used at fullback, showing promise of being even more valuable. He is speedy and a great blocker in addition to being a fair ball carrier.

Wallace McRea has been shifted from end to center and Boyd is being used at center. Carl Welser is being used at tackle and end. Welser, Worrell and Bob Houck each weigh 205. Jones weighs 200 and Loren has gained until he tips 195. Boyd and several others are heavier than they were last fall.

Welser is the outstanding punter, though all of the backs have demonstrated fair kicking ability. Little special work on passes has been accomplished yet, but will be taken up later.

Latitude in Law As to Medicinal Liquor is Asked

WASHINGTON, Apr. 6—(AP)—Limited revision of the Volstead Act to obtain greater flexibility in the use of medicinal whiskey was approved today by the government's chief prohibition officers.

Director Woodcock of the prohibition bureau and Dr. James M. Moran, commissioner of industrial alcohol, appearing by request before a house judiciary sub-committee, endorsed plans for regulatory rather than statutory limitations on the frequency of prescriptions. Present law permits not more than one pint for one patient every ten days.

DEADLY ENGINE OF WAR BUILT

Barlow, Creator of Depth Bomb, Requests Secret Commission Named
used as a weapon for procuring peace.

He said existing methods of warfare, such as heavy armored battleships would be of no avail against the weapons, which would place its possessor in undisputed command of military affairs.

The resolution to set up the secret commission, with four members sworn to silence, was sent to the military committee.

Even in time of war, the members could reveal their knowledge only to the president and the secretaries of war and navy. The measure provides, however, that after their investigation of Barlow's claims, they shall report to congress and the president without disclosing the nature of the invention.

On prohibition Mott takes the stand that the ultimate decision on prohibition must rest with the people who in turn adopted prohibition. His stand is for a referendum on the 18th amendment when and if there is sufficient demand to make it advisable for congress to resubmit the matter.

SENATOR STAPLES IS VISITOR HERE

State Senator Isaac C. Staples of Portland was a Salem visitor Wednesday. While he has filed for renomination on the republican ticket, and is one of 22 seeking the upper house logs from Multnomah county, with five to elect, Mr. Staples was not in Salem on a political errand, but on business.

Senator Staples has been for so long a member of the state senate, and on important committees, especially that on ways and means, that a session of the legislature would be the real thing without him. In fact, he has come to be recognized as representing the up state counties and districts as loyally as his metropolitan constituents. He takes a large view and acts for the state as a whole, and is familiar with all the commonwealth institutions, and so thoroughly grounded by experience that his absence would mean a distinct loss. If Marion county could vote for him, his renomination and reelection would be assured. This is equally true of a majority of the outside counties.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE TO BE ORGANIZED

Organization of a twilight league for regulation baseball became a reality last night when representatives of four teams signed up with R. R. Boardman at the Y. M. C. A. At first it was expected the new "kitten ball" might supplant the hard-ball game.

Teams registered were Kay Woolen Mills, Elks, Courthouse and 24th Coast Artillery. Post-office, statehouse and Salem Iron works teams are expected to enter the "proposed league soon. The woolen mills, postoffice and Elks already have teams entered in a kitten ball circuit.

Registration for the hard-ball league may be made with R. R. Boardman at the Y. A second meeting will be called next week.
