

HEATED BATTLE MARKS SESSION

Vote Taken After Many of Delegates Gone; 35 to 32 Ballot Result

"It's time to quit pussyfooting," shouted Fred J. Schwab. "Before prohibition went into effect it was considered a disgrace to be drunk; now girls at dances will not go with a man unless he has a bottle. The present generation of youths knows more about making liquor than their seniors do." Schwab pointed to the Lindbergh baby kidnapping as evidence of disturbed conditions and warned "It will not be long until they are here."

Fears Congressmen Will Face Puzzle McShane warned against the evil effects of "booze," said he saw no good in the party raising the liquor question and urged representatives to oppose it. Chris Kowitz pointed to the fact that other counties might adopt conflicting planks on re submission and thus make it impossible for republicans to congressmen from Oregon to know on which plank to stand.

B. W. Macy pleaded with the party to dismiss the liquor plank and to turn to fundamentals. "The party should make its plea on the economic principles which have brought prosperity in the past and will bring it again," Macy urged. "If the democrats should get control of the government next year conditions will be much worse than now."

For to the report of the platform committee, the convention listened with interest to a dozen different candidates for office who either were introduced or who made short addresses. Included in the list were Allan G. Carson, Carie Abrams, W. C. Pettijohn, Otto K. Paulsen, Romeo Conner, Frank Davey, Charles A. Ratcliff, Howard Zinser and Ed A. Jory. The majority of the speakers approved heartily the calling of the convention as a return towards party government in the country and almost all of the speakers pledged themselves to work for lower taxes, lower government salaries and more efficiency in the conduct of governmental affairs.

Hal Patton Made Convention Chairman The meeting was called to order by Hal D. Patton, who was temporary chairman. Along with Chris J. Kowitz who was named temporary secretary, Patton was named permanent chairman when the credentials committee reported. On the credentials committee were L. S. Lambert of Silverton, R. J. Hendricks of Salem and Dr. Smith of Mt. Angel.

MOTORING WILL BE CHIEF ATTRACTION

Roads to Mountains and to Seashore Reported in Best Condition

With fair weather predicted and the inspiration of the past two warm days, motoring is expected to be a leading sport today. Roads to the mountains and to the coast are in fair condition, so that a variety of drives, short or long, may be taken today, according to reports of the Oregon State Motor association.

Wildflowers should be found easily now. April is considered the best month for them. They are expected to be most numerous and at their prime later in the month.

Coastward, the Corvallis-Newport highway is good silted macadam excepting between Pioneer mountain and Toledo, which is good dry macadam. The Salmon river cutoff to the beaches directly west of here is a good gravel road, only a little choppy towards the western end.

From Seaside to Hebo and on to Newport, the road is reported in good shape. The free ferry is in operation between Waldport and Newport.

For shorter drives, there are the highway in good silted macadam from here to Mill City through Breitenbush rough. The Santiam highway is silted macadam to Foster and plain macadam into Cascadia. Motorists planning to drive to Siletto must go via Jefferson, since the Healy-Crabtree-Lacrosse road is closed by recent washout of the Sanderson bridge on the South Santiam river.

For northward drives off the main highway, the Wilsonville road may be taken. The ferry is now operating.

Travel on the Mt. Hood loop is possible as far as the junction. From there to Cooper spur, it is closed.

The McKenzie highway is good as far as Nimrod, closed at the summit by snow.

All nature is constantly changing . . . The growing child . . . the budding flower . . . everything that lives and grows undergoes a continuous transition. You eyes too change with the passing years. To obtain the "maximum" of normal vision . . . intelligent and constant care must be given to your eyesight. If you have never worn glasses . . . yearly eyesight examinations are a form of "eye-sight insurance." If you are an eyeglass wearer . . . remember that your glasses cannot change. And that to wear lenses fitted several years ago, that may not be suited to the PRESENT condition of your eyesight will cause eyestrain and may impair your vision. The cost of new lenses . . . if you need a change . . . is trivial indeed . . . compared to the eyesight conservation and comfort of mind they will give you.
