

RILEY DENIES HE DESERTED HOLMAN

Never was in Treasurer's Camp and Solicited no Patronage, Claim

Denial that he ever was in the "Holman camp", and denial that he or any authorized representative of his solicited advertising from Rufus Holman, state treasurer, was made by Dr. P. O. Riley of Hubbard, editor of the Hubbard Enterprise, who last week was accused by State Treasurer Holman through the columns of the Woodburn Independent of deserting the Holman standard after Holman refused to take a $25 ad in the Hubbard Enterprise "prosperity edition".

Dr. Riley is now manager of the Milt Scherping for treasurer campaign. His denial of the story in the Woodburn Independent is contained in a letter to the Independent a copy of which has been received by The Statesman, and is as follows:

"Editor Independent, Woodburn, Oregon.
"My Dear Friend:

"Regarding the article in last week's Independent as to my not supporting Mr. Holman for state treasurer, and as to my defection from the Holman Camp, I wish to state that I was never in the Holman Camp and consequently there could be no defection. Furthermore, I never solicited advertising from Mr. Holman nor had anyone authority from me (either written or verbal) to do so.

"The Hubbard Enterprise, of which I am the editor, endeavors at all times to live up to the most honorable ideals of journalism, and no amount of money can sway its purpose. The only reason I am interested in Milt Scherping's campaign is on account of the fact that he is a clean cut, progressive business man with every qualification for the office of state treasurer, and a man who will bring harmony out of chaos by working in cooperation with Governor Meier and Secretary of State Hal E. Hoss. I have known him for years and can conscientiously vouch for his honesty and sincerity.

"As stated above, no one ever had authority from me to solicit Mr. Holman for advertising space either for $25 or 25c. I hold no ill feeling towards any man. It is not in my character to do so. I am interested in Milt Scherping's campaign for state treasurer and will do all in my power to help elect him. As far as I am concerned, it will be a clean campaign with no mud slinging or bitterness injected, and in saying this I also speak for Milt Scherping. I think the friends I have in Oregon know me sufficiently well to realize that I have never stooped to things mean or low, but have always endeavored to do unto others as I would have them do unto me. I feel that this is the biggest thing in life and that shall always be my goal.

"Trusting you will kindly give this space in your good paper, and thanking you for such consideration, I am

SALEM HIGH WINS HONORS IN MUSIC

Three of four state high school contests in ensemble musical work were placed in by Salem high school at Forest Grove last week end. First place was taken in girls' glee and third in both mixed chorus and girls' quartet. Four of six individual contests were placed in by local prize aspirants.

Marie Patton won first in girl's medium voice, Earle V. Potter second in boy's high voice, Carl Mason second in boy's medium voice, and Helen Benner third in girl's low voice. Stiff competition in classes ranging from 15 to 25 contestants each was met. The school made no entry in three events.

Pacific university, where the contests were held, acted as an excellent host to the young high school folks, according to Miss Lena Belle Tartar, Salem instructor for the high school groups. Several interesting social events were arranged including a program and dance Friday night.

Welcoming address to the high school students was made by Hugh McGilvra, Willamette university graduate and editor of the Forest Grove newspaper.

WAITING LISTS OF HOSPITALS LARGE

There are now 80 persons on the waiting lists at the two Oregon state tuberculosis hospitals at The Dalles and Salem, which is unusually high for this time of the year, Dr. G. C. Bellinger, superintendent, reported to the state board of control Monday. Beds for 35 additional patients are now being provided at The Dalles institution.

Bellinger said that other patients would be taken care of as soon as the new building now under construction at the local tuberculosis hospital is completed.

The situation is being given careful study by Dr. Bellinger and his staff, and some solution may be worked out.

DUCK-BILLED BELLES WITH CIRCUS

TWO TYPES OF BEAUTY UNDER THE BIG TOP
Rosemary and Christine Belmont, equestriennes, pose with the Ubangi sisters, Jennie and Hot-Cha, from the Congo district of Africa. They are with the Al G. Barnes show.

A whole tribe of monster-lipped Ubangi savages from the Congo district of Africa will be with the Al G. Barnes circus when it visits Salem, Wednesday, May 11. It will be the first time that a tribe of the duck-billed women has been exhibited in the west.

Traveling from the village of Kiya Be, French Congo, Africa, the Ubangies reached California several days ago to join the circus. They are shown in the menagerie tent with a native bamboo hut as the last remaining link between civilization and their un-Christianized jungle nativity.

Only the female species of the Ubangi tribe resort to the practice of developing monster lips. It is a mark of beauty and the larger the lip and mouth the greater is their social caste. According to Miss Hot-Cha Ubangi, only about 2,000 of the saucer-lip women remain in the French colony of Africa. Their vocabulary consists of only 200 words.

PIONEER PICTURED AS BUSINESS MAN

Burt Brown Barker Points To Thomas Cox, man of Concrete Vision

Painting the pioneer not as a trapper with buckskin jerkin and leather leggings, but as an empire builder who came west with a specific purpose, Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the University of Oregon and scion of Oregon pioneers, yesterday noon addressed the largest and most successful of the Salem chamber of commerce's seven annual Salem Founders' days.

Because the painter, the poet, the artist and the musician have painted the pioneer in terms of the covered wagon and glorified the trail over which he came west, this popular conception of the pioneer as a trapper has come about, Mr. Barker said.

Mr. Barker, telling specifically of the background of business and sound judgment held by his great grandfather, Thomas Cox who came across the plains to be Salem's first merchant, held pioneers in general rather of this type—men of business experience to whom the trail was not a thing of glory, but rather an instrument to an end.

Mr. Barker told of Thomas Cox's business enterprises and experience in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—each time a bit farther west—and eventually to Oregon and Salem where he set up the first store, his stock being brought across the plains in 11 of the 13 wagons he brought out. He brought the stock west because Chicago merchants refused to give him a fair price for it. Books in possession of Mr. Barker and Chester Cox of Salem show the strict business accounting made by Thomas Cox in his early store work here.

Judge Peter H. D'Arcy presided at the meeting, at which 40 pioneers were in attendance. Brief remarks echoing the sentiment of Mr. Barker were made by George H. Himes, curator of the Oregon Historical society.

Heads for Alaska on Foot And Will Accept No Lifts; Girl Finds Smile Helpful

Hiking from San Francisco to Alaska—and that means hiking, not hitch-hiking, Miss Thea Francis smiled at Salem people Monday—a smile that attracted more attention than her attractive blue traveling costume.

Miss Francis has required nearly a month to make her way here from San Francisco, for it is part of the task she has set for herself, that all her traveling shall be done by putting one foot ahead of the other, mile after mile. Occasionally she allows one of the many motorists who offer her rides, to carry her knapsack into the next town and leave it for her in some designated place; it awaited her in the Statesman office for several hours Monday.

In addition to accepting no rides, Miss Francis is testing out some rather unique theories. She eats only a few oranges, the yolks of a few eggs, or a glass of tomato juice at a meal, and maintains her daily average of about 25 miles a day without undue fatigue. Her belief in that connection is that energy which would otherwise be used in digesting heavier foods, is conserved for traveling.

She carefully abstains from meat eating, partly because she doesn't like it and partly from a theory that abstinence from meat causes one to get along better with animals—which, if true, may prove fortunate when she penetrates the wilder fastnesses of Canada and Alaska.

Outstanding among her conclusions gained from hiking—she had previously hiked from New York to San Francisco—80; this trip is nothing new—is that almost every human being will respond in kind to a gracious attitude, which is something of which she has an unlimited supply.

Olson's Estate $4502 Declares Appraisal Made

Ole Olson, declared an incompetent in the management of his affairs by the probate court here, has an estate of $4502, an appraisal filed yesterday in probate court shows. This amount would have been augmented by $4000 had not that sum been stolen from Olson, the appraisers declare. They state that Olson was unwilling to act as chief witness against the alleged robbers and thus their indictment was rendered impossible when they were brought before a grand jury in Portland.

Olson has $3202 of his property in cash. Al O. Nelson is guardian of his property. The appraisal was made by C. A. Reynolds, M. G. Gunderson and J. A. Campbell. The court has granted him and his wife a yearly allowance of $360.

DO YOU INHALE?

Why is this vital question so much avoided by other cigarettes?

EVER since Lucky Strike created that special process for purifying fine tobacco and told the full facts about cigarette smoking—the industry has been in an uproar. For Lucky Strike has dared to mention things that were considered "taboo" in the cigarette trade.

You may have noticed a striking avoidance generally of the word "inhale" in cigarette advertising. Why? Goodness only knows! For everybody inhales—knowingly or unknowingly! Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

That's why it's all-important to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question—for it gives you the protection you want... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!
