Linoleum Being Laid—Heavy linoleum is being laid in the halls of the courthouse this week. The pattern, a mosaic of varied colors, is being more favorably commented on by the visitors to the courthouse than was the dull, rather drab color of the linoleum recently laid in the various courthouse offices. The selection and purchase of the linoleum was made by the county court after the county grand jury recently criticized the linoleum used in the offices at the courthouse and the lack of linoleum in the halls.

Colonel Alfred E. Clark, the man who is seeking the Republican nomination for United States senator, had the unsolicited endorsement of all seven members of the Supreme Court of the state of Oregon for the office of Solicitor General of the United States, when it was vacant in April, 1929. These eminent jurists said in part, "He stands high in public estimation, is a man of unquestioned integrity, and in his selection the government will secure an officer in every way qualified for the position, both by reason of extraordinary talent and integrity." (P. d. adv.—Clark for U. S. Senator committee, 820 Yeon Bldg., Portland, Ore.)

PIONEER MOTHERS WILL BE HONORED

Statue Presented by Burt Brown Barker to be Unveiled Today

Coming at a most appropriate time is the dedication of a statue to "pioneer mothers" which will be unveiled on the campus of the University of Oregon, this afternoon.

The statue is being presented by Burt Brown Barker, vice president of the university, and it is in memory of his own mother, a pioneer of Salem and a mother whom he feels represents all those qualities which are so happily observed on May 8, "Mother's" day.

A. Phimister, Proctor, noted sculptor, is the producer of the work, a new study of the theme, indicating the "pioneer mother" at rest following her years of toil and sacrifice and joy of giving to the development of her sons and daughters and to her state.

Mr. Barker tells in interesting fashion of how he "grew up on a farm across river from Salem, attending Salem schools, and graduated therefrom in 1899. The next four years I spent attending Willamette academy and Willamette university."

He tells how he grew up without ever having seen an oil painting or a piece of sculpture. And then after law was concluded, law being his chosen profession, he married and for the first time was brought into contact with an interest in art, that of his wife.

Hopes to Pass Along Appreciation of Art

Through her he discovered another interest in life equal to the greatest he had ever found, that of art and sculpturing.

Mr. Barker continued in his remarks:

"Then I began to reflect. I tried to recall my boyhood days in faraway Oregon. I tried to paint in imagination what must have been pictured all about me. I could recall flowers and trees and mountains and valleys and streams and waterfalls, sunsets, and autumn leaves I remembered distinctly, but not a single picture could I recall. The sad truth was that I had lived amid the most beautiful of pictures and had not seen one. Of course, I could not recall any."

Thus it is easy to see how I chose a work of art. If the sons and daughters of Oregon are to learn their lesson, then it must be where the sons and daughters gather to learn those lessons.

It is my opinion most appropriate that this work should be encouraged by adding objects of art to the campus as a part of the tools in the laboratory of art appreciation.

My mother endowed me with powers which teachers trained in to a love for beauty. My mother pointed out the schoolhouse with a whip, and a flagging interest therein was promptly flogged. Therefore, I wish to do honor to my mother, for without her zeal I would have fallen by the way early in life. Accordingly, I wish to dedicate the statue of the Pioneer Woman of the State of Oregon in memory of my mother, Elvira Brown Barker.

ROAD RULINGS ARE MADE AT SESSION

The regular road day session of the Marion county court on Thursday was well attended by delegations from the road districts interested, with the Hubbard-Woodburn and the Hubbard-Broad-acre - St. Paul market road discussions drawing the limelight. The court stood with the reports of the viewers against claims of property owners on the Hubbard-Woodburn road. They recommended damages to the amount of $400 for George and Louisa Grimps and $353 for Albert Johnson. Each had asked for $500.

The court upheld a former decision for locating the Broad-acre road on what is known as the Jackson route, and ordered it viewed and surveyed. One faction was for locating the road on the Shute's corners route instead of the Jackson.

The court approved the viewer's report on road No. 45, or one of the North Falls route. Two miles of this road will be improved this year. The South Falls route, which has been much in controversy, was continued until road day, June 3. A road up for re-location in the lower Brooks was entered, as also orders for the Hubbard-Woodburn and the Hubbard-Broad-acre for a road in district No. 14 near Silverton was dismissed, as the court held that the location is too expensive for the road.

STATE EMPLOYEES GIVE BIG AMOUNT

Total of Contributions is $125,000; This County Apportioned $3600

State employees contributed approximately $125,000 toward unemployment relief during the five months beginning last November, according to a report prepared Friday by Thomas E. Riley, chairman of the committee in charge of the voluntary fund. The contributions were made on the basis of one day's pay each month.

Approximately one-third of the total fund was contributed directly to civic organizations by employees. Reports of these contributions were filed with the committee. The cash payments aggregated $84,441. The latter amount was distributed among the various county courts and county relief agencies.

Employees of the state highway department contributed $39,082, which was the largest amount received from any single state department or institution. Oregon agricultural employees contributed $13,122, while employees of the university of Oregon contributed $5335. In addition to what was given locally in Eugene.

Among the other departments credited with large contributions were the Oregon State hospital, $2707; industrial accident commission, $2207; Monmouth Normal school, $1968; department of agriculture, $1574; state police department, $1632; university of Oregon medical school, $1237; and state home for the feeble minded, $1033.

The other 47 institutions and departments contributed amounts ranging from $5 to $1000. Last month's donations totaled $18,000.

All counties in Oregon with the exception of Multnomah received a share of the total contributions. In lieu of allowing Multnomah to share in the contributions, the committee presented $1035 to the Sunshine division of the Portland police department, $500 to the civic building service bureau, and to other agencies located there.

The distribution to counties was made on the basis of requirements, as set out in unemployment reports, General Riley said. The county distribution ranged from $420 to Jefferson county to $4500 to Clackamas county.

PEDESTRIAN DEATH IS BASIS OF SUIT

Damages of $5000 are asked from Charles Andresen of this city in a suit filed Friday in circuit court by Ada M. Newton, administratrix of the estate of the late James M. Newton. Newton was struck January 14, 1932, as he crossed the pavement at Court and Commercial streets here. He died March 3, 1932, the complaint alleging that the accident occurred here.

The plaintiff alleges Andresen was driving more than 20 miles an hour and was hindered in vision by mud and rain on the windshield. The right of a pedestrian to a traffic lane on a crossing is also at issue since the plaintiff contends Andresen did not give Newton opportunity to cross the street after he had begun his walk across it.

Retha Nash filed suit yesterday against George A. Schulz asking damages of $5184 for alleged injuries received in an auto accident collision February 16, 1932, at Perry and 14th streets, Salem.
