conviction and before his sentence a minister of the gospel and a business man, who was formerly a lawyer, became interested in this case and concluded that they should help him, if possible. They went to McMahan and discussed the matter with him. McMahan advised them to discharge the attorney who had been retained by him at trial and have the defendant apply for a parole at the time of sentence, and that he (McMahan) would parole him.

Candidates: Their Training and Their Platforms

Published without charge by The Statesman with the view of affording voters more information before the primary, Friday, May 30

Howard M. Perry Candidate for Treasurer, Salem

Howard M. Perry, candidate for city treasurer, was born in Dubuque, Iowa, and was raised in Minneapolis, Minn. Later he attended the University of Minnesota. Then he worked for the Standard Oil company in the firm's general office in Fargo, North Dakota, and in Minneapolis, Minn. For three and one-half years, Perry managed a lumber yard in Montana. Then he served as deputy county treasurer, ran for the office of county auditor of Valley county, Montana, and was elected. Later he became manager of a lumber yard for the Boise-Tayette Lumber company in Idaho. For the last eight years he has been city salesman for Cobbs and Mitchell, lumber retailers.

Perry believes in cooperation with other city officials in the performance of the duties of the treasurer's office. He believes in courteous service to the public at all times since he is the people's representative in the office. He is elected to the office of city treasurer. It will be my determination to run it efficiently and economically," Perry states.

Joe Williams Candidate for Republican Nomination for Sheriff

Joe Williams, candidate for the republican nomination as sheriff, was born in Seligman, Missouri, July 9, 1890. He moved to Kansas when 15 years of age, then to Washington and Oregon in 1907. Mr. Williams located in Salem, January 1, 1923.

Mr. Williams has a daughter, 21, and a son, 11. He is a member of Elks lodge 336 and won national attention for his sales service in 1921 with the Willard battery company. William served in the sheriff's office in Pacific county, Wash., during the world war period. In his judgment, the use of good common sense is the important thing in handling any business, with a close watch being kept regularly over all departments and plenty of hard work used.

Williams, while a member of the school board of the Liberty district, has succeeded in reducing the tax levy 25 per cent each year he was on the board. The board and the faculty, nevertheless, have raised the standard of the school from thirteenth in the county to third. Williams considers himself an economist in public affairs, efficiency considered.

His statement on several mooted questions:

"As to the question that has been asked regarding prohibition, or the 18th amendment, I do not feel that that is a matter for me to answer, as well as I would like to, that is a question squarely up to the people. As long as the law appears on the statute books it must be enforced as all other laws, and is not for me to say whether it is good or bad, as I do not know and could have little to do with making a change if I did know just what was best. I voted for the law as we now have it, but do not know what I would do in case it should come up for a vote again. I would have to consider the matter as proposed. I have always been a law abiding citizen and believe in all things that are good and nothing bad. I have a family and believe in building men and women up in character instead of down. To my belief the man that answers the church questions, as the church would have them answered is doing an injustice to the cause in question, as I do not believe any one is in a position to know just what is best at this time about this question of prohibition. We have laws governing the subject which should be considered sufficient to cope with the situation."

Chester A. Page Candidate for City Councilman, Ward Two

Chester A. Page, candidate for the city council, was born in Whitinsville, Mass. June 30, 1881. He lived in the New England states until 1919 when he moved to Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Then he transferred to Columbia, Mich., in 1921 and stayed there until 1923. He was chairman of the school board during his residence there. Page lived in Missouri from 1924 to 1926, coming to Salem late in 1926.

For the last five years he has been superintendent of the Thomas Kay Woolen mills. He is a firm believer in having the city own and control its water works and have a plentiful supply of pure water. He believes the water works can be so managed that they will be a source of revenue to the city without increasing the rates to the users or taxes to the property owners.

Page declares himself as a man personally and politically dry. He believes that it is possible to have the laws enforced if an honest effort is made to do so. He is a Mason and a member of the Baptist church. "For many reasons I consider Salem the best place to live that I know of and I want to see it remain so," Page stated this week.

George W. Averett Candidate for City Council, Ward Four

George W. Averett, candidate for election as Salem councilman, was raised on a ranch in northern Wyoming where he attended grade and high schools. At the outbreak of the world war, Averett, then living in La Grande, enlisted and was assigned to Troop H of the 12th U. S. Cavalry. The last 14 months of his service was spent in drilling recruits. Averett was a sergeant.

city will cooperate in eliminating present odors from the Willamette slough. The council also passed an ordinance anent the incinerator site which will be fenced. Fencing of the 15-acre incinerator site recently purchased by the city, was agreed upon by the council. W. H. Dancy, an supporting the action, pointed out that a fire menace existed as long as trash was being burned in the area which could not be properly patrolled for lack of an enclosure.

Henry Vandevort brought to the attention of the council the fact that the construction of the North Winter street bridge has so impeded the flow of water in the Mill stream that property owned by H. L. Stiff and others is being cut away. Vandevort asked the construction of a retaining wall to prevent the washing of the stream. The matter was referred to committee and to the city attorney and city engineer.

Alderman Chris Kovits allowed his ordinance increasing the minimum fees charged street vendors on a resolution to the Oregon department executive committee advocating that the Legion's national executive committee offer a $10,000 reward in major cases of racketeering. The resolution was first passed by the Klamath Falls post.

Following the business meeting, the Legionnaires were the guests of the auxiliary for a musical program and refreshments. On the program were: rhythmic orchestra from Mrs. Frank Lillburn's musical kindergarten, vocal solos by Kenneth Fleming, selections by Salem high school girls' double octave, numbers by the auxiliary quartet. Robert Read accompanied and Miss Lena Belle Tartar directed the high school numbers. Grace DeHarpourt accompanied the auxiliary quartet.

of the gang was acquainted with Dr. Condon. These bare uncontroverted facts still left open to conjecture the question of whether the criminals in contact with Dr. Condon were one and the same as the five men gang with whom John Hughes Curtis communicated off the Atlantic seaboard.

Curtis also inspected various rogues galleries during the day, visiting the ones at the Newark police headquarters before dawn. Authorities said the task would occupy both Curtis and Dr. Condon for several days more.

Dr. Condon momentarily halted his tour after visiting Chief of Police Edward Quirk at Yonkers, N. Y. The educator's only comment was to Quirk to whom he said publicly: "I may be back to see you later."

Clancy, he averred, had started collecting proxies for his election as president early in September, 1931, three months before the election; and that while Clancy said he had learned of the faulty management of the firm early in May, 1931, he continued enthusiastic about the company, telling people how good it was, until the fight among the officers broke up its plans.

In conclusion, Hayter said the defense had tried to show all the facts, to lay the cards on the table for a showdown; that the state did not bring a single witness to show Conrow had ever been known to be dishonest or had a bad reputation. He asked the jury to consider the letters and the testimony as a whole, not take single statements, as their meaning would not be clear.

Harnett H. Goldstein, prosecutor, in rebuttal argument took up the defense argument and discussed it point for point. With respect to Walker Keyes' declaration that he, Goldstein, was a "private prosecutor," Goldstein stated he was commissioner as a deputy attorney general, and it was in this capacity that he was prosecuting the case.

He asked the jury to bring in a fair verdict which, he said, he was certain would be "guilty."

W. A. HEATER

Republican Candidate for County Commissioner Primaries, May 20

Born and raised in Marion county; 54 years of age. He has lived on a farm 8 miles northwest of Sublimity and about 20 miles east of Salem all his life. He has been a heavy taxpayer since he was 21 years of age. He has been a success as a farmer, operating one of the largest strawberry farms in the state, employing as high as 300 persons during the busy season. If nominated and elected he will do all in his power to give the taxpayers an efficient and economical administration. As a farmer he knows well the burden of the farmers heavy taxes. Men of his type and calibre should be the farmers' representative in the commissioner's office. He takes this means of asking you for your support and also your vote at the primaries, May 20th; and promises you insofar as he is able to reduce the expenses of Marion County.
