New Vague Clues Noted In Lindbergh Mystery

By FRANCIS A. JAMIESON HOPEWELL, N. J., May 20—(AP)—The hunt for the Lindbergh baby killers revolved about a pair of vague police clues and the aid of the white-haired "Jafsie" tonight after authorities once more absolved John Hughes Curtis, hoax negotiator, of suspicion in their main quest.

The official attitude toward Curtis, moot subject of a two-day series of statements, finally appeared definite when Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police superintendent, announced the Norfolk, Va., post blinder was in a New York hotel the night of April 2 and "his actions are accounted for."

Col. Schwarzkopf then employed virtually his exact words yesterday in saying "there is nothing that would indicate that Curtis was connected either with the kidnaping or the collection of the ransom." It was the night of April 2 that Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie) tossed a packet of $50,000 in currency to an extortionist in a New York cemetery.

In between these assertions, however, the police had had the aid of continuing his checkup of Curtis' whereabouts saying it would not be completed and corroborated until next week.

Salient among the other results of the day were these:

Spadevegckia is Believed Found

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 20—(AP)—Huge black letters written in the snow, "O and S safe," informed Pilot Jerry Jones in a flight over the Muldrow glacier camp of the Carpe expedition today that a long-missing member had been found.

The "O," he said, confirmed his belief after seeing three men on the camping spot that Nicholas Spadevegckia, unreported for 12 days on a return by foot through the wilderness here, had returned safely to his starting point.

In addition, the plane flown to the camp yesterday by Pilot S. E. Robbins, was lying on the snow. Jones added, apparently having broken an axle in attempting to take off from the rough surface of the glacier. Fears were felt when it failed to return here last night.

Pilot S. E. Robbins made the flight yesterday to return Percy T. Olson, Jr., who was left on the glacier when a sick member was flown out last week, back to Fairbanks. The "O" on the snow referred to him.

Townsend yesterday confirmed the report but stated that he was uncertain of the exact date of his resignation as city alderman.

"To all my friends, far and near, you will hear from me in 15 hours," she said.

"I have sufficient fuel for 30 hours and I will get further if my gas holds out and I find I am not too fatigued."

Her decision to start today came suddenly, influenced by favorable weather reports. Arriving here from St. John, N. B., at 11:31 a. m. (eastern standard time) she previously had retired, announcing she hoped to leave early tomorrow.
