looked like a very powerful trump suit, well able to go game, and perhaps to do better than that. To have opening bid strength it appeared that Z must have both black aces, and probably either a side K or a side Q-J, unless he held air spades to at least the A-O. One six spades to at least the A-Q. One cannot blame Y for letting the contract die at 4-Spades.

As the cards lie, Z should have fulfilled his game contract. All opening lead was the K of Clubs.

its K of Spades; discarded one Club upon the Ace of Hearts.

Gained entry to his own hand with the J of Diamonds; then led his Ace of Spades, which would have dropped the Q at his left. Then he would have lost only one spade trick to the J, and two club tricks to A's top cards of that suit. Instead of acting in that same manner, Z attempted to discard his losing clubs on dummy's top diamonds. Of course B ruffed the third lead of diamonds, with his low trump, leaving his J of Spades still good, and on top of that Z had to lose two club tricks.

Had Z bid 5-Diamonds instead of making his bid 4-Spades, a grand slam could not have been missed.

Y probably would have bid only 6-Diamonds, but that would have made a difference in the score of just 1,620 points, being vulnerable. Copyright, 1932, By King Features Syndicate, Inc.

stop short of game contract, unless a more profitable double can be made of an opposing bid. B passed, and Z responded with a reasonable declaration of 3-Spades. As yet he was not certain that Y could not support spades. The jumped diamond bid might have been introduced to discover how good a suit Z had bid. A passed, but Y bid 4-Hearts. Surely that should have notified the partner that spade support was lacking, but over B's pass, Z bid 4-Spades. Of course one may argue that even a game bid need not prevent the partner from again denying spades, with an FOR SALE—USED CARS
