New Product From Aurora

AURORA, June 16—A new company formed by three young brothers, Harold, Arthur and Alvin Knoor, known as the New Columbia Fireworks company, located on the Knoor farm two miles north of Aurora, has been quietly manufacturing their products since the first of the year. The chemical department is in charge of Dr. George Kast of Portland. The company has increased its working force since the peak of the season has approached. To manufacture new and novel effects in fire works has been their main objective.

A contract for the 1932 season by the Jantsen beach park of Portland has been awarded them and the amusement company has expressed in a letter its great appreciation of the wonderful fireworks display made May 28. Special mention was given the startling effect of flying water fishes, dipping in and out of the water then flying into the air. The girandolas or flying wheels, some of which made three flights and the fancy multiple break shells which broke a dozen or more times.

A s government contract has been placed with the department of agriculture for smoke producing candles to be used by the Pacific northwest experiment staimaginary fire in the forest and
