PUPIL ENROLLMENT IN COUNTY RECORD

13,361 Attend, Census is 17,196 Also Setting New High Mark

Marion county's school enrollment for the year of 1931-1932, just completed, reached an all-time high, Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson reported yesterday. Total attendance in the grade and high schools reached 13,361 in comparison to 12,959, the record mark of the former school year.

The school census for the county also exceeded any former mark with 17,196 boys and girls included in the annual tabulation which was made smaller than a national ratio, 735 students being enrolled in the senior class last year while only 1008 were enrolled in the freshman class, showing a 74 per cent continuation from the initial year. The average enrollment for the various grades was slightly more than 1200 pupils.

Boys have a decided edge on girls in number in the county, the census showing 8784 lads to 8412 lassies.

Mrs. Fulkerson was highly pleased with the records of high school attendance which showed 3592 students enrolled in the high schools during the last year compared to 3474 in 1930-31.

"Fatalities" in the high school were also smaller than a national ratio, 735 students being enrolled in the senior class last year while only 1008 were enrolled in the freshman class, showing a 74 per cent continuation from the initial year. The average enrollment for the various grades was slightly more than 1200 pupils.

M'CULLY CLAN WILL MEET, HARRISBURG

A notable gathering will be seen at a grove in the town of Harrisburg, Linn county, and Monday, July 4—an all day meeting. It will be the reunion of the McCully clan of Oregon, celebrating the 80th anniversary of their coming to Oregon in a covered wagon caravan in 1852; the year of the "big immigration." There were five brothers and their families, and one sister, David, Asa A., Hamilton, John, Samuel, and Mrs. Love. The grove in which the reunion will be held was given to Harrisburg by A. A. McCully, founder of the town.

Asa A. and David McCully came later to Salem and were large factors in the early growth of the capital city. They had a store in the Headquarters building that stood where the Ladd & Bush bank is now. They built the McCully block on Commercial street. They were among the organizers of the old People's Transportation company, that for years controlled the steamboat business on the Willamette river.

Members of the McCully clan will be at the reunion from many points of Oregon, and from as far away as southern California.

Short talks were made by Hon. P. H. D'Arcy of Salem and Lawrence Sandblast of Portland, and R. J. Hendricks told something of the centenary celebration of 1934, preparations for which are going forward on a nation wide and world wide scale; the location for the main events to be the state fairs.

There will be another meeting this month, preparatory to closing up the charter list of the Salem chapter, which is to be number two; the first already functioning in Portland.

Under the Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

AND the balloting, interspersed by roll calls of the state, went merrily on in the cool of yesterday morning, and resumed again last night with a victory for Roosevelt. But it was interesting, and gosh, we feel the loss of sleep now, and are glad these conventions don't come every week.

We listened yesterday morning until Will Rogers received Oklahoma's 22 votes, and the 103rd demonstration of the night was staged. That was too much, so we bid the convention good morning. Will Bill Murray lost his votes after the first ballot, and Rogers after the second. A study of the first ballots is indeed entertaining.

For instance, Baker held his 8 1/2 votes. Byrd was consistent around 25. Reed gained three votes to 27. Traylor held his and White held Ohio. Garner in the first three ballots was second high gather and third in the race with an increase of 11. Al Smith lost 11 on the third while Roosevelt gained 16 but still 87 short of nomination. But things have changed by this time.

It was a hot session of the highway meeting Friday, but meteorically speaking only. Outside of the proposed action

SOME GROWERS PUT UP LOGANS ON OWN

LIBERTY, July 1.—Strawberry picking is over in this vicinity and cherry harvest started. Loganberry picking, too, commenced the first of the week for those growers who have been able to dispose of even part of their crop.

Only a few patches in the district will receive even a few pickings, as most people have been unable to sell. A very few have sold at a cent and a half. Several who have stock in the Producers are putting part of their tonnage through that plant and taking a chance on selling for what the fruit will bring.

However, as pickers have to be paid, there will be but a small tonnage disposed of that way, because the growers have no financial backing. The whole berry situation is pretty tough both ways, no money for growers to pay interest and taxes and no wages for the pickers.

ST. PIERRE'S AT COAST

KINGWOOD, July 1.—Miss Ella St. Pierre, with her mother, Mrs. E. W. St. Pierre and her house guest, Miss Foun Hal Wond of Oahu, Hawaii, are vacationing at the Dr. E. W. St. Pierre summer cottage at Seaview, Wash. They expect to be home early in July. Both Miss St. Pierre and Miss Wond are teachers in the Waialua government school on the island of Oahu.

Senators F. M. Franciscovich of Astoria and former senator Sam Garland of Linn county were in attendance at the highway meeting for the consideration of the log-hauling matter, as were about 50 other members of the well-organized group. The association gave the commission approval in its action in regulating truck loads and speeds.

Garland, who said he had known Chairman Leslie Scott of the commission for more than 40 years, complimented him yesterday. He said that the state highway system of Oregon was "the apple of his eye," and he would go far to take care of that "apple". The men reminisced after the meeting.

Woodburn News

WOODBURN, July 1.—According to C. J. Rice, master of the Woodburn grange, an interesting program has been prepared for Saturday afternoon when the grange will meet in the hall on the west side of the city. Reports on the state grange meeting, held recently at Silverton, will be given. The meeting will start at 2 p. m.

Miss Betty Frenz, who was sent to the 4-H club's summer school at Corvallis by the women's auxiliary of the American Legion post here, gave an interesting report on the meetings at the regular auxiliary session, Wednesday night. Robert Bonney represented Woodburn boys in the 4-H school. He was sent to the session by the Woodburn chamber of commerce.

Post Auxiliary Elects

Mrs. Vena Lee Dodge was re-elected president of the women's auxiliary unit of the Woodburn American Legion post at a meeting held Wednesday night in the armory. Other officers selected by the women are:

Mrs. Mary Adams, first vice-president; Mrs. Myrtle Smith, second vice-president; Mrs. Bentley, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Jessie Sims, chaplain; Mrs. Virginia Yates, sergeant-at-arms; Mary Gibbons, historian. Both the auxiliary and Legion post for men went on record Wednesday in favor of the immediate payment of the bonus for world war veterans.

Salem Congratulates Team
At the legion meeting a congratulatory message from the Salem post concerning Woodburn's winning the county Junior Legion championship was read. Congratulations were also sent from the Silverton post and a representative of the post was also present and gave oral congratulations.

Final plans for the giving of a dance Saturday night, July 2, in the armory for raising funds to support the Junior legion team were made. As it promised, the Legion post has bought new suits for the players, since they won the county championship. The money received from the dance will go to pay for the suits and for various other expenses.
