Colorful Program Event of Tonight

What should be according to the plans worked out, one of the most beautiful musical programs to have been presented in Salem for months is scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock in Nelson hall.

The program is worked out on the basis of the little known and very beautiful compositions of Norway's famous musician and poet, Edvard Grieg. His songs are described as "buried treasures, music of the future." He set to music poems by Ibsen, Vinje, Garborg, and the famous "Ich Liebe Dich" in his own composition. His song compositions run into dozens and are considered among the most beautiful musical expressions of any composer.

The program tonight is being presented by Prof. E. W. Hobson and his students and singing groups, the Salem Madrigal club and the Salem Civic Male chorus. Dahlbert Jensen will also be a great violin soloist.

Prof. Hobson has had this unique idea of presenting a Grieg program by his own students for several years past and has only now been able to work out voice material and the songs of Grieg which he wished to present.

Among those to be presented is "The Vast Unnumbered Throng," "A Dream," "At a Brookside" to be sung by Miss Josephine Albert, "Twas in the Lovely Month of June," "The Mother Sings," "The First Primrose" and "A Swan."

These songs all bear the stamp of Norwegian life. Strong, crystal beauty like the snowy mountains of that far north country, whimsical like the humor of those Norwegian people, and melancholy, too.

The program will be well balanced by the male chorus and the Madrigal club.

Mandamus proceeding filed by Carl H. Johnston and C. A. DeGrace, of Portland, ex-officers of the Prudential Savings and Loan association, who are seeking to have indictments returned against them by the Multnomah county grand jury dismissed, will be argued before the state supreme court here Saturday.

Johnston and DeGrace are charged with devising a scheme to defraud through the sale of stock in the Prudential corporation. Dismissal of the indictments is asked on the ground that the trial was held during the term of court following action by the grand jury. The proceeding will come before the court on the question of granting the writ instead of on the alternative writ.

Alienation Suit Will Reach Jury Sometime Today

Not until this morning will a circuit court jury be read to consider John H. Will's suit against George F. Burnett for $10,000 damages based on alleged alienation of the affections of Will's wife. The suit has already been in court two days.

Counsel for Will contends the alienation began in the fall of 1930 when Burnett roomed at a hotel Mr. and Mrs. Will were conducting on South 12th street. The defense held yesterday that any alienation was impossible since the plaintiff had consented in his divorce suit that Mrs. Will had been unfaithful in a number of instances with various persons.

A crowded courtroom heard the case yesterday. Mrs. Will who was divorced from her husband in May, 1931, was among the persons in the audience.

Paulus Cannery Taking Cherries

Paulus Brothers cannery is in the market for more Royal Anne cherries, officials announced yesterday. This cannery has already barreled a considerable tonnage of Royal Anne but a brighter outlook in the market has caused officials to seek an even larger tonnage.

HEALTH UNIT ISSUE VOTE IS NOT LEGAL

Whether or not Marion county shall continue its appropriation for a county health unit cannot be determined by a "test vote" next November but must be decided by the county court it became certain yesterday when Attorney-General I. H. Van Winkle ruled there was no provision of law giving Clackamas county authority to have a similar test on the matter of hiring a club agent, home demonstration agent, health nurse, county agent and conduct a county fair.

Because of much dissension over the county health program the county court here had announced several months ago it was going to pass the matter on to the people for a referendum expression. The attorney-general's ruling blocks the plan, however, inasmuch as he stated yesterday that only by a referendum from the legislature or by initiative action on the part of the people can a public expression be had.

As a result, the determination must rest with the county court, which is charged under law with making the county's annual budget and voting the necessary tax levy.

CONTRACTING FIRM SUES MEIER, PRAY

The Cascade Investment company, road contractors, filed suit here Wednesday against Governor Julius L. Meier and Charles F. Pray, head of the state police department, asking a permanent injunction against the defendants to prohibit them from designating the company's trucks as contract haulers. The plaintiff also asked that the injunction restrain any state officials from collecting license fees beyond the normal charge made for one to four-ton trucks not used as contract haulers.

The plaintiff states that the defendants have interpreted its trucks as contract haulers and thus subject to double the normal charge of $134.20 regularly made for the trucks owned by the Cascade firm.

The contracting firm claims in its complaint that the only use made of the trucks, besides the actual hauling of material on a construction job, is carrying gravel to and from sources of supply designated by the state highway department and in transporting the company's tools and machinery to and from Portland to the actual job under construction. This work does not make the trucks "contract haulers," the plaintiff asserts.

A lot of comment was heard during the day over the Hoss-Meier controversy and with them the lot of suggestions of how the matter should be settled. Even J. E. Bennett, the senator with plenty of ideas, was here to gain an audience with the governor to present his plan. Both Hoss and Meier came in both for commendation and condemnation.

SPECIAL SESSION IS BENNETT PLEA

A special session of the Oregon legislature to consider a material reduction of motor vehicle license fees, was urged by Senator Bennett of Multnomah county, at a conference with Governor Meier yesterday.

Bennett declared that such action on the part of the legislature would clarify the existing license situation, and make it possible for the farmers to obtain their plates without further financial embarrassment. He said a quarterly installment payment plan would not suffice.

Bennett averred that a majority of the legislators would attend the special session without cost to the taxpayers.

Governor Meier has indicated previously that he was opposed to a special legislative session at this time.

Liquidation of Stayton Bank's Assets Goes on

Liquidation of the assets of the Stayton bank is proceeding through the hands of the state banking department. It was reported here yesterday, although a group of Stayton citizens are trying to secure sufficient capital to open a bank in that community. Plans call for the organization of a new bank rather than reopening of the present bank but the

A large gathering of Italian nobility was in attendance when Prince Rudolph de Drago, scion of one of Italy's most aristocratic families, married Miss Anne Mary Wallace, of the United States, at Rome, recently. The Vicomte de Frontenay, French Ambassador to Italy, was a witness for the bride.

Under the Dome . . . Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

THE day passed comparatively quietly at the capitol yesterday, and even at that a conference in the governor's office late in the day did not reveal any fireworks. Hoss was at the conference as were Holman and the governor. But of course the session was an executive one and if there were fireworks, the public may never know.

Today is the last day for the filing of initiative petitions for the November ballot, and last reports were that the consolidation proposal was being pushed to the limit, despite the reported theft and the injunction proceedings which asks that the secretary of state be prevented from filing the petitions, if completed.

Governor Meier expected to return to Portland last night, which means the board meetings and verbal fights are perhaps over for the week. However, the salary matter may be transacted today without the presence of board members. It was reported an agreement had been reached on that and the order making it effective will be recorded today.

A lot of comment was heard during the day over the Hoss-Meier controversy and with them the lot of suggestions of how the matter should be settled. Even J. E. Bennett, the senator with plenty of ideas, was here to gain an audience with the governor to present his plan. Both Hoss and Meier came in both for commendation and condemnation.

Bennett suggested a special session of the legislature be called at once, reduce the license fees to about 50 percent, then permit quarterly installments on top of that. According to Bennett's plan those who have already purchased their plates will be given a rebate over the sum to which licenses would be reduced.

In the meantime people continue to write into the secretary of state asking for licenses and suggesting different ways of solving the problem.

group discussing the matter would seek to buy certain of the securities of the old institution and to assume a portion of its liabilities. The success of the plan is said to rest entirely upon the ability of the proposed new incorporators to secure needed capital funds.

About 60 days have elapsed since the banking department sent notice to all depositors asking them to list the total of their deposits. Not until 90 days have elapsed can the department issue any dividends to the bank's creditors.

One man from Eagle Creek wrote asking for a license in this manner: "Would you please send me a permit to drive my car backwards . . . and for this to work."

We will check up early today to learn if Mrs. McClain returned here with him.

Hector Fox of Portland is the relief boss at the United Press bureau here for the present. He is substituting for Dennis Landry, manager, while the latter is on his vacation. Dennis and his wife left for San Jose, California for their vacation. Last year they were in Reno, and came back together.
