HUNT BROTHERS TO HALT UNTIL AUGUST

Unusually Large Pack Made Of Cherries, all Sold Prior to Season

With completion of its cherry pack, probably the biggest handled about here, slated for Wednesday of this week, and all logans to be out of the way by the end of this week, canning activity at Hunt Brothers' plant will be over until work is resumed on the first of August. C. E. Spencer, local manager, said yesterday. This cannery finished barreling of an unusually large quantity of Royal Annes and some Black Republicans, all of which were sold before opening of the season, to the Cause Manufacturing company, some days ago, and is now winding up a black cherry pack, which is also of considerable size.

This plant has been handling only a small amount of loganberries, these coming in on term contracts. Logans have been cold packed, some of those handled here being sent on to the Puyallup plant for converting into jams.

Spencer said very few worms have been found in the black cherries delivered to the plant this season, and he also expressed commendation for the inspection work carried on this year.

No indication as to the size of the pear pack, which will be handled, was given by Spencer, although he did say that the plant will probably put as many women to work on this job as in the past. This cannery will follow the pear pack with prunes, beginning about September 1.

Interpretation Of Law Delayed

No rulings on newly passed internal revenue acts are to be given out locally, Thomas L. Williams, revenue agent, said yesterday. The official regulations on the new legislation are not yet compiled and issued and the treasury department has issued explicit instructions to its agents throughout the nation to make no commitments regarding the interpretations on the new laws. When the taxes of the post-war days were first invoked much litigation ensued over the variations in methods of making reports, especially on the excise profits clause.

GOVERNOR SILENT ON LICENSE PLAN

Governor Meier refused to intimate Monday whether he would extend the 15-day moratorium in connection with the purchase of motor vehicle license plates for the current year. The moratorium expires July 15. Legislators continued to arrive at the executive department Monday urging that some relief be given to the motorist. In many cases the writers said enforcement of the license law after July 15 would deprive them of their transportation and jobs. It was suggested in many letters that the moratorium be extended for a period of 30 days.

Police said that a survey showed that not more than 50 per cent of state officials and employes have obtained their plates.

State Employes To Get Receipts At Restaurants

Expense accounts of state officials and employes hereafter must be accompanied by receipts from restaurants where meals are obtained, itemized streetcar fares, and much other similar information, according to announcement made by W. W. Ridehalgh, supervisor of state transportation. Ridehalgh reported that in most cases the expense accounts of officials and employes had been reduced materially under Governor Meier's economy program. He also said that fewer trips were being taken by officials at state expense.

All vouchers containing expense items are investigated by Ridehalgh's department.

VOCATION STUDIES MAKING PROGRESS

Here's one institution not Hit by Depression, is Report of Cooley

Though the depression has been felt in all sections of Oregon, vocational education has forged ahead during the past year, Earl R. Cooley, state supervisor of agriculture, has declared in a report issued Monday.

The report showed that the enrollment in vocational agriculture has increased from 1359 to 1419, while the number of farmers attending night schools has increased from 924 to 851. The part-time work for boys not enrolled in high school between the ages of 14 and 21 was slightly less than in the previous year. Membership in the future farmers' organization, consisting of boys having paid local, state and national dues, increased from 1084 to 1090. The number of boys completing projects has increased more than 14 per cent. The net profit for boys' projects decreased from $29,518.29, with an average net profit of $47.33 in 1931. This decrease was due to the reduction in farm prices which have dropped approximately 100 per cent.

A survey conducted to determine the kind of work followed by Smith-Hughes agricultural students who have graduated from high school the previous year, showed that 167 out of 229 are engaged in some type of farming, 11 are studying agriculture in college, while 51 are engaged in lines of work other than agriculture. This indicates that 73 per cent of the vocational agricultural graduates of the previous year are now engaged in farming. Similar record of two years ago showed less than 65 per cent engaged in farming.

CONTRACTS MAILED TO TEACHER STAFF

Contracts were mailed yesterday to Salem's grade and high school teachers for 1932-1933, the superintendent's office withholding 12 contracts for teachers whose tenure is uncertain due to the litigation over the high school tuition law. If the law is upheld by the state supreme court these teachers will be awarded contracts.

All department heads have been considerably reduced in pay. Teachers entitled to the pay increase increment of $45 a year will not be granted it while an additional cut of $22.50 will be made in their salaries. Teachers not entitled to a wage increment increase will be reduced $45 a year in salary. Few protests of salary reductions have been made by the teachers, the superintendent's office reports. Most of the instructors feel themselves fortunate to have steady work at wages nearly as good as in normal times. Many of the teachers are helping to support relatives who have been severely embarrassed by business reverses.

TELEPHONE GATHER IN SALEM

Addresses by prominent educators, discussion of reports and a banquet featured the opening day's program of the annual convention of the Oregon county superintendents association here Monday. Greetings were extended by C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools. A committee report on "school legislation and finance," was presented by Roy E. Cannon of Portland, followed by appointments by Gertrude L. McRae, president of the association. The functions of a "testing program" was discussed by Dr. L. E. Forbes, of Oregon State Normal school. T. Frank Brumbaugh presented a committee report on "supervisory tests and testing methods." "Minimum supervisory p. m.
