

EYE-WITNESS SAYS POE SHOT IVERSON

said he would hit Iverson with a wrench, Manning averred.

"When Buck Poe said 'Put 'em up' I was scared stiff," Manning declared. "Then I saw Bob with the wrench and I thought he would call his 'Mr. Iverson.' Manning testified that he did not see Poe shoot but knew that he did because of his position, the gun used and the fact that Ripley was not armed.

Girl Asserts Poe Was With Gun

Proceeding Manning's testimony, Viola Ripley, 15-year-old sister of Robert Ripley, had told about her return home after school May 1, 1931. She identified Poe and Manning as visitors at her home at that time. She admitted seeing the mixture of dynamite stirred and said she had overheard the boys mention the name of "Silver-ton."

After Manning had concluded his testimony, Sheriff Oscar Bower identified the two rifles used in the crime, found accounts connected with the directions given by Manning, R. H. Craddock of Portland, expert in ballistics, identified the bullet which killed Iverson as one coming from the gun in court. Luke S. May, Seattle criminologist, introduced prints from fingerprints that Manning had been riding in the car which was picked up at The Dalles after it was deserted by Ripley, Poe and Manning. T. H. Thomas of Stayton was on the stand as court closed for the day, to testify to her home like the one Poe used had been stolen from his place about April 15, 1931.

State Will Rest Poe May Testify

Court will be resumed this morning at 8 o'clock, Judge Fred W. Wilson seeking to get as much work out of the way as possible before the heat is intense. Paul Kreier, now in the state penitentiary, will take the stand for the state to tell how he was "tipped off" by Ripley about the crime. Sam Burkhardt, deputy sheriff and F. E. Dudley, state police officer, are also to testify after which the state will rest its direct case. It was indicated yesterday that Poe would take the stand in his own defense. His counsel has not indicated the strategy of the defense but it is expected Poe will attempt to establish an alibi. Cross-examination of Manning by Paul Burris, chief defense counsel, indicated yesterday that the defense may seek to prove that Edward Ripley, father of Robert Ripley, accompanied his son and Manning to the murder spot and that Poe was not there. The case will not go to the jury until Monday or early Tuesday.

VON GRONAU FLIES TO ICELAND SHORE

SEYDISFJÖRDUR, Iceland, July 22.—(AP)—Captain Wolf-gram von Gronau, who for the third time is flying the Atlantic by stages over the northern route, landed in this east shore town tonight from the island of Sýlt, Germany, exactly 10 hours after his take-off.

Shortage of fuel made it necessary for him to stop here instead of continuing on to Reykjavik, Iceland's capital, which is 250 miles away on the west coast of the island.

Fog also was a difficulty in the flight from Germany. Visibility being poor all along the Icelandic coast. The weather was generally calm although there was a fairly strong southerly wind when he landed here.

EVICTED OF BONUS MARCHERS DELAYED

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—Members of the bonus army living in a shanty-town along Pennsylvania avenue were given a new temporary lease on their crude homes today by the District of Columbia commissioners, who rescinded previous orders to clear the area by midnight.

Instruction to postpone the eviction were given to Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, in an order which said the action was being delayed "on account of certain possible legal requirements."

Previously Glassford had informed leaders of the bonus seeking veterans they must clear out and had received defiant refusal in return.

The commissioners took action after conferences with Glassford, Colonel U. S. Grant, director of public parks and buildings, and other federal officials. There were indications it might be necessary to obtain court orders before proceeding with the evacuation.

Prussian Appeal Of Dictatorship Set For Hearing

BERLIN, July 22.—(AP)—Tomorrow the German supreme court will hear arguments in Prussia's appeal against the ousting of its cabinet by President von Hindenburg and the Von Papen government.

Even among the protestants there appeared to be an agreement that the federal government was within its rights in declaring martial law for Berlin and the province of Brandenburg, but they questioned whether the federal authorities can legally interfere in the internal government of a state to the extent of supplanting its ministers.
