RATE DECISION IS DELAYED 2 WEEKS

Two weeks or more will elapse before any decision or order in the Northwest Electric company rate case is handed down by Utility Commissioner Thomas, it was announced yesterday at the capitol. Thomas, now in Seattle, on a grain rate hearing, has completed the taking of testimony in the Northwest's case.

He is as yet undecided on several items of the rate base submitted by the company but the amount of difference between the utility commissioner's figures and those of the company approximates only $400,000. The variance is largely in an asset of financing charges which the company items of the rate base while the rate base while Thomas holds it should be classed as property expense and amortized out of the capital structure in yearly sums. Thomas indicated this week he would defer the most question of the service charge paid annually to the Northwest Electric's holding company. This item, involving more than $50,000 figures in a major way in the rate charged. The holding company's officers defended it in the hearing here on the ground that it was more than offset by the decreased operating expenses of the Northwest company due to the expert advice given from the holding company. The charge in the hearing here was shown not to be for specific services rendered from month to month.

THERE are many golfers among state officials, but probably none as constant as G. E. McCullough and R. H. "Sam" Baldock, who go almost every night after 6 o'clock when they are in the city. The state bridge engineer and the state highway engineer are alleged to be good at the game, but they usually go out alone. How about it, Sam and Mack?

A murder trial is in progress in Salem and two men are battling for their lives after the murder of a night officer who was employed to protect lives and property in Silverton. If it be any comfort to those on trial we wish to announce that at the state penitentiary there are new quarters for the execution chamber and the death cell. And somehow these state officials are very efficient in executions.

A visit to the state penitentiary will reveal lots of improvements the past year. The chapel, or visiting room, is entirely changed. Instead of board floors and iron bars in sight one now sees a fine rubber flooring, no unsightly bars and no repulsive sights. Instead Hampshire, New Jersey and about every other eastern and mid-western state are visiting the state capitol. Yesterday probably held the record for visitors. There were hundreds of them.

Jack O'Neil, the man who puts Union Pacific transportation in your hands, was a preseroom visitor yesterday for the first time in several months. In giving us his slant on the news Jack informed that our old friend Jay Hewitt, formerly traveling passenger agent for the Salem district, is now conducting Southern Pacific affairs in Eugene with decidedly experienced hand.

In other words, Jay is just about the whole squeeze around Lane county in rail transportation and motor bus those days, and we venture to assert that no employer who has ever had dealings with this popular man will wish him anything but the best of luck. Call around again sometime, Jay.

It was reported here that a dinner was held last night in honor of John Kelly in Portland, Kelly, former political writer on the Portland Oregonian but now Washington correspondent for the paper, is home on a visit and a dinner was being held in his honor. It was learned here quite a number of his Salem friends attended the party.

While the far east is sweltering in "fatal heat," we in Oregon are enjoying our very welcome summer weather. And with the warm weather a lot of tourists from New York, New

REVISED TEACHING METHOD DISCUSSED

Revised and improved methods of teaching were discussed and planned yesterday in a conference held by Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, county school superintendent, at which 30 teachers from schools in this county were present.

The methods discussed are to be put into practice in the schools represented by the teachers when the fall term opens. More time will be given to recitations, more individual instruction will be given and "skipping" of work by certain students will be obviated. Mrs. Fulkerson has tried the improved program, first in two schools in the county year before last, and later in five schools in the county last year.

The next conference of similar nature will be held by the school superintendent and the 30 teachers August 14. Attendance is voluntary and without pay, the teachers coming in order to make their work better next fall.

Civil Service Hearing to be On Wednesday

Public hearings on petitions of R. O. Lewis and Homer Halsey seeking reinstatement as members of the Salem fire department, were yesterday set by the commission for 8 o'clock Wednesday night, July 27, at the council chambers in the city hall.

Lewis filed petition Thursday seeking reinstatement on grounds that he held seniority over John Olson who was reinstated by the board July 14 after a hearing. Halsey, whose petition was filed last Saturday, also claims seniority over Olson. Lewis was let out July 15 when Olson came back after the board's ruling.

REPUBLICANS HOLD HUGE MARGIN HERE

Marion county has more than three times as many registered republicans as democrats, registration figures released yesterday at the secretary of state's offices show. The figures, based on registration totals before the May 26, 1932, primary election, show 20,338 republicans registered here compared to 6407 democrats. Prohibitionists come next in strength with 85 registered members of the party. The socialist party has 65 members registered here and the progressive party 19. All other parties claim a total of 350, bringing the registered vote in the county up to a grand total of 27,261.

Republican party members have a strong majority of the registered vote in the state showing a total of 22,004 before the primary election, compared to 122,209 democrats. Socialists come next with 1166 members and prohibitionists fourth with 684 registered members. The total registered vote of the state before the primary was 426,653.

JEFFERSON BRIDGE WORK GOING AHEAD

Construction of the highway bridge over the Santiam at Jefferson is going ahead rapidly, with driving of the main piling from the west to the east side of the river. A new holisting machine will be ready for operation within a few days.

Sheet piling is being placed preliminary to pouring concrete for the south pier. Forty-five men, working in two six-hour shifts, are on the job.

With the bridge work in progress and many laborers on the job, Jefferson is experiencing a heavy demand for houses and already there is a noticeable shortage.

Ban Low Grade Fruit Peddling Is Eugene Plan

How to stop itinerant peddlers who have been dumping large quantities of low grade fruit and produce on the Eugene market, will be discussed by Max Gehlhar and members of his department when they confer next Tuesday with the agricultural division of the Eugene chamber of commerce. Fred E. Chambers, president of the division, will invite leading growers, wholesalers and city officials to meet with the directors.

Plans are being made to put through city ordinances to forbid such sale and also to start a campaign for a buy-at-home sentiment in Eugene where local growers already conduct a cooperative market.
