LARGE OUTLAY FOR BRIDGES REQUIRED

Three Millions to Finish Coast Highway Needed; Issue Considered

Three million dollars for new bridges will be required for the completion of the Oregon Coast highway according to tentative figures prepared here this week by C. B. McCullough, state highway bridge engineer. To date none of the five major bridges required to close existing gaps on the road have been authorized. When they are built depends entirely upon the policy of the highway commission towards elimination of existing ferries on the coast highway and the allotment of necessary funds for bridge building.

Anticipating the early construction of some of the bridges, McCullough's department has already made preliminary soundings for the Florence and Newport bridges while plans for a bridge at Waldport are under way in the bridge division of the highway department here.

The bridges at Waldport and Florence offer less difficulties in the way of construction, in obtaining of rights from the federal government and in financing. McCullough thinks the Waldport bridge could now be constructed for $350,000 while three years ago it would have cost at least $500,000. While the bridge will need to be much longer than the one at Florence it is through much shallower water. It also holds up well as a justified financial project since the state is now paying $20,000 a year for ferry service at Waldport and this charge would apply over the interest charges on the Waldport construction.

Bridge at Florence To be Less Costly
McCullough estimates the cost of a bridge at Florence at $400,000 while one at Newport will cost from $50,000 to $700,000, in his opinion. The latter bridge must be so constructed that the entrance to Yaquina bay for boats will not be obstructed. Both this bridge and the one at Florence would need to have draw spans which will increase their cost over the bridge at Waldport.

McCullough estimates the bridge which may eventually be constructed at Reedsport will cost $600,000. This will be a long structure, probably running from the Gardner side of the Rogue river to an island and from there into Reedsport.

The most expensive bridge to be built in closing the gaps on the Coast highway will be the one across Coos Bay. There has been some talk that the present highway would be re-routed so traffic would go over the inlet bridge built by Coos county and then follow a new road built along the north side of Coos Bay. In this way Marshfield and North Bend would both be left off the main highway route. Opposition to such a development is certain to come from both of these Coos Bay cities. The bridge department is not certain but that a new bridge across Coos Bay could be built for less money than would be required to construct the expensive new road along the north side of Coos Bay.

Large outlays from the federal government for road construction in the states make the coming year an opportune one for bridge construction. Estimates on government aid for road building run as high as $7,000,000 for Oregon in the next 12 months. Fifty per cent of the direct outlay for work on bridges goes for labor and preparation of the materials for the bridge including steel, concrete, wood for forms, gravel and other materials.

Building Permits—Three small building permits were issued yesterday: J. L. Oliver, alter garage at 1810 North Summer, $30; Emma Tucker, reshingle dwelling at 1855 North Liberty $10; and W. J. Smuck, reshin house at 1488 North Summer, $25.

Visits Spokane—William Walton returned last night from a business trip to Spokane.

WHAT a fine night for a band concert and what a crowd at Willson Park last night. And cars were so thick it was impossible to get past the blocks even on the wide streets. Salem has a right to be proud of its band and the beautiful park. Now there were only a swimming pool within the block.

Two away and one more to go. Justice in Marion county is being slowly but surely dealt out to the murderers of a night watchman at Silverton more than one year ago. Fos was found guilty and will be sentenced to life. Frank Manning confessed and will be sentenced to life. Robert Ripley's trial materials take an additional large investment in labor so that highway engineers estimated that 75 cents of every dollar spent on bridge work goes directly or indirectly to labor.

PET CIRCUS TO BE TODAY AT OLINGER

Parade at 2:30; Variety of Animals Expected; Open Church League Ball

Kiddies at the 14th street playground will vie today in the annual pet and circus day events, with five prizes on the shelf to help make the competition lively and the winners more happy.

The parade will start at 2:30 o'clock, with scores of youngsters expected to be in line with their favorite pet, whether it be stuffed doggie or Shetland pony. Five prizes will be offered, for the funniest, prettiest, cutest, most unusual and smartest pet.

And on the shoulders of a single girl, Mrs. Clarence M. Byrd, will rest the job of deciding why and to which of the menagerie of pets expected will go the awards.

Church league games at the 14th street grounds got under way yesterday, with Intermediate defeating the Pirates 3 to 0; and Presbyterians winning by forfeit from the Temple Baptists, who failed to round up a full team in time for play.

Lineup was:
Pirates: Glaiser, Parker, Causey, McInteny, Mason, Driggs, Hermann, Crobert, Hoffert, Forman, H. Nichols, Sequin, F. Nichols, J. Thoman, Randall, F. Crobert, Leininger, Phillips, Hansen, Prueax.

INSTITUTE LEADER TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Dr. Owen N. Geer, Methodist youth leader and director of all the institute meetings in the United States for the Methodist board of education, will be the speaker Sunday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. in Willson park. Dr. Geer will be present at the Falls City Institute, comprising all the Methodist youths of the Portland and Salem districts, which convenes Saturday, July 30, and will make the trip from Falls City to Salem for the afternoon meeting, under the auspices of the Methodist churches of Salem.

In addition to his place of leadership in the youth movement, Dr. Geer is regarded as a social prophet, and was a moving spirit in the call to action conference held in Chicago during April, and bringing together several hundred ministers from all sections of the country. The findings of this group received wide publicity as offering a new program for social changes in the religious, economic and political life of the nation. Dr. Geer's message Sunday afternoon will have to do with the application of the teachings of Jesus to our present social order. There will be special music.

OLD LICENSE USER IS BEING QUERIED

State Police Refuse to say Who Ordered Questioning But it may be Meier

The state police department is making an informal survey of the financial condition of persons who have not yet purchased a 1932-1933 license for their cars. It was announced yesterday. Questions asked are: Are you going to purchase an Oregon license? If not are you going to store your car? Are you working? Class of work? When do you expect to work? Can you purchase a half year license? Can you purchase a quarter year license?

Replies to the queries are being inserted in printed forms and are being filed in the state police department. Pray refused to intimate whether these would be turned over to Governor Meier. Charles P. Pray, head of the state police, would not state Tuesday whether or not the survey had been requested by Governor Meier. The latter has not determined whether he will extend the existing moratorium on auto license payments another 15 days.

He has indicated that he would not call a special session of the legislature to consider quarterly license payments. Up to Tuesday night the state had granted approximately 100,000 new licenses. Under estimates of licenses to be granted, 137,000 should have been issued by this date. The secretary of state's department reported a noticeable pickup in license issuance as August 1 approached. If an additional moratorium is not granted, a rush is expected as the week ends.

Just what the result will be could not be learned. The governor two weeks ago said he could not extend the moratorium beyond August 1, so that seems out. For further information one must go to Portland as the governor returned there yesterday afternoon. But the time is getting short so some action must be announced shortly.

Six members of the supreme court last night announced they would return 15 per cent of their salaries to the state beginning August 1, in keeping with the recommendations made by the board of control to become effective July 1. Justice George Brown did not state the statement, but he retires next January following his defeat in the primaries.

The state was victorious in two of its criminal cases appealed to the supreme court in opinions handed down yesterday. The convictions of Weber A. Hattrem for larceny by embezzlement and Brigham L. Young for statutory offense were upheld. Hattrem is the first man to go to the penitentiary as the result of Corporation Commissioner Mott's campaign against "racketeers." Young was sentenced from Marion county.

Another kind of relief was under consideration at the capitol yesterday, all day, when the governor called a meeting of the state-wide unemployment executive committee. The group considered ways and means to borrow money under the federal relief bill for aid to the destitute.

Tuition Ruling Appeal Not Yet Decided, Stated

Decision on the appeal of the high school tuition law case of Weinacht vs. Bower has not been made by the taxpayers' group supporting the plaintiff, James G. Holtzel, attorney, said yesterday. A fortnight ago his clients conferred with him and at that time stated they had not secured sufficient money to go on with the appeal. Judge L. G. Lewelling upheld the tuition law in his decision in court here in June. The plaintiff has until August 8 to file notice of appeal. No 1931 taxes for high school tuition have as yet been collected since Sheriff Oscar D. Bower is under an injunction preventing such collection.
