shooting, was being cross-examined as the day ended yesterday afternoon.
Few of Witnesses Mention Drinking
Witnesses preceding her had included Dorothea, Elvin and Geraldine Eddy, Mrs. Eddy, Eddy, Tom Eddy, A. L. Adolphson and Dr. Yorden B. Hockett.
The story of the night's events as told by various witnesses was this: The Eddys visited March 1 at the home of J. W. Mays at Sunnyside. There the party played cards, sang, danced. Most witnesses said there was no drinking although Mr. and Mrs. Eddy admitted taking several drinks.
The Eddys returned to their home here early in the morning. Coleman accompanying them. It was then decided that some coffee should be made and Mrs. Farlow, a guest, with Mays and several members of the Eddy family went to the Farlow home for cake.
Relate Threats to "Hast Whole Bunch"
The Eddys and Coleman became involved in some argument and the latter quarreled with Geraldine Eddy. Coleman (Erpelding) later was persuaded to go upstairs to bed.
Coleman, evidently angered and not sober, shortly thereafter came downstairs, declaring that he was "going to blast the whole bunch."
He wounded Jess Eddy, shot Lloyd Eddy and then ran from the house. Mrs. Farlow testified as court closed yesterday that Coleman came out to the Mays car, returning from the trip to her home, and asked for Archie Eddy. As he did, the police came up. She testified that he fired his shot towards the house, then one toward the police car, and ran. She did not see him again until he was in the city jail here.

The titular role of "Sis" in the old, old favorite, "Sis Hopkins" which comes to the Capitol tonight, was originally played with unprecedented success by Rose Melville, will be played by Gay Raymond, whose natural flare for eccentric comedy will be given ample opportunity for display.
The tale calls for the ultimate in wholesome comedy with intermittent moments of homely pathos, a part ideally suited to Miss Raymond's talents. Not alone is Sis in provoking the spontaneous laughter in which the play is richly woven, for Pa and Ma Hopkins and Obediah provide a world of fun throughout the action of the famous rural comedy. The role of the villain, whose dyed-in-the-wool villainies are designed to foil the hopes of a kindly teacher to "make a lady" out of the eccentric Sis, is played with great gusto by Ned Lynch.

SCOTT DECIDES TO COME BACK

In Acceptance Points out Serious Problems of Finance Faced

are down; maintenance of primary highways—4200 miles—costs more than $50 a mile each year; each year the mileage maintenance increases.
"The truth is, Oregon's highway system is too extensive for the population and wealth of the state and the revenues provided. Even with federal aid and relief funds added, the means will come far short of the total highway needs. All parts of Oregon must share the means that are available."
Recent events in the business and industrial world encourage the expectations of better conditions in the future, which, it is hoped, will aid the solution of financial problems of the highway department.

Employees of the state highway commission, including R. E. Baldock, state highway engineer, expressed pleasure Thursday when they learned that Leslie M. Scott of Portland, had decided to withdraw his resignation and resume his duties as a member of the commission.
Baldock declared that Scott's activities had resulted in saving a large amount of money for the commission, and that the efficiency of the department had been increased.

POLITICAL BUDGET EYED BY LEADERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4. (AP) — The job of financing the 1932 appeal for votes, which may set a new record in political economy, held the attention of both democratic and republican chiefs today.
Those working on the budget for the Roosevelt-Garner campaign said they thought they might be able to get along on $750,000 which is nearly a tenth of what was spent by the party four years ago.
Governor Roosevelt at a luncheon conference in Albany discussed various ways of raising a war chest with John J. Raskob, who as national chairman, put up hundreds of thousands of dollars himself for the democrats in 1928 and directed the victory campaign for funds.
In the republican camp, the financial end of the eastern campaign was discussed at a luncheon attended by Jeremiah Milbank, eastern campaign treasurer; William Ziegler, treasurer of the New York state committee, and W. Kingsland Macy, New York state chairman.

Juza is Deemed Reckless Driver Following Trial

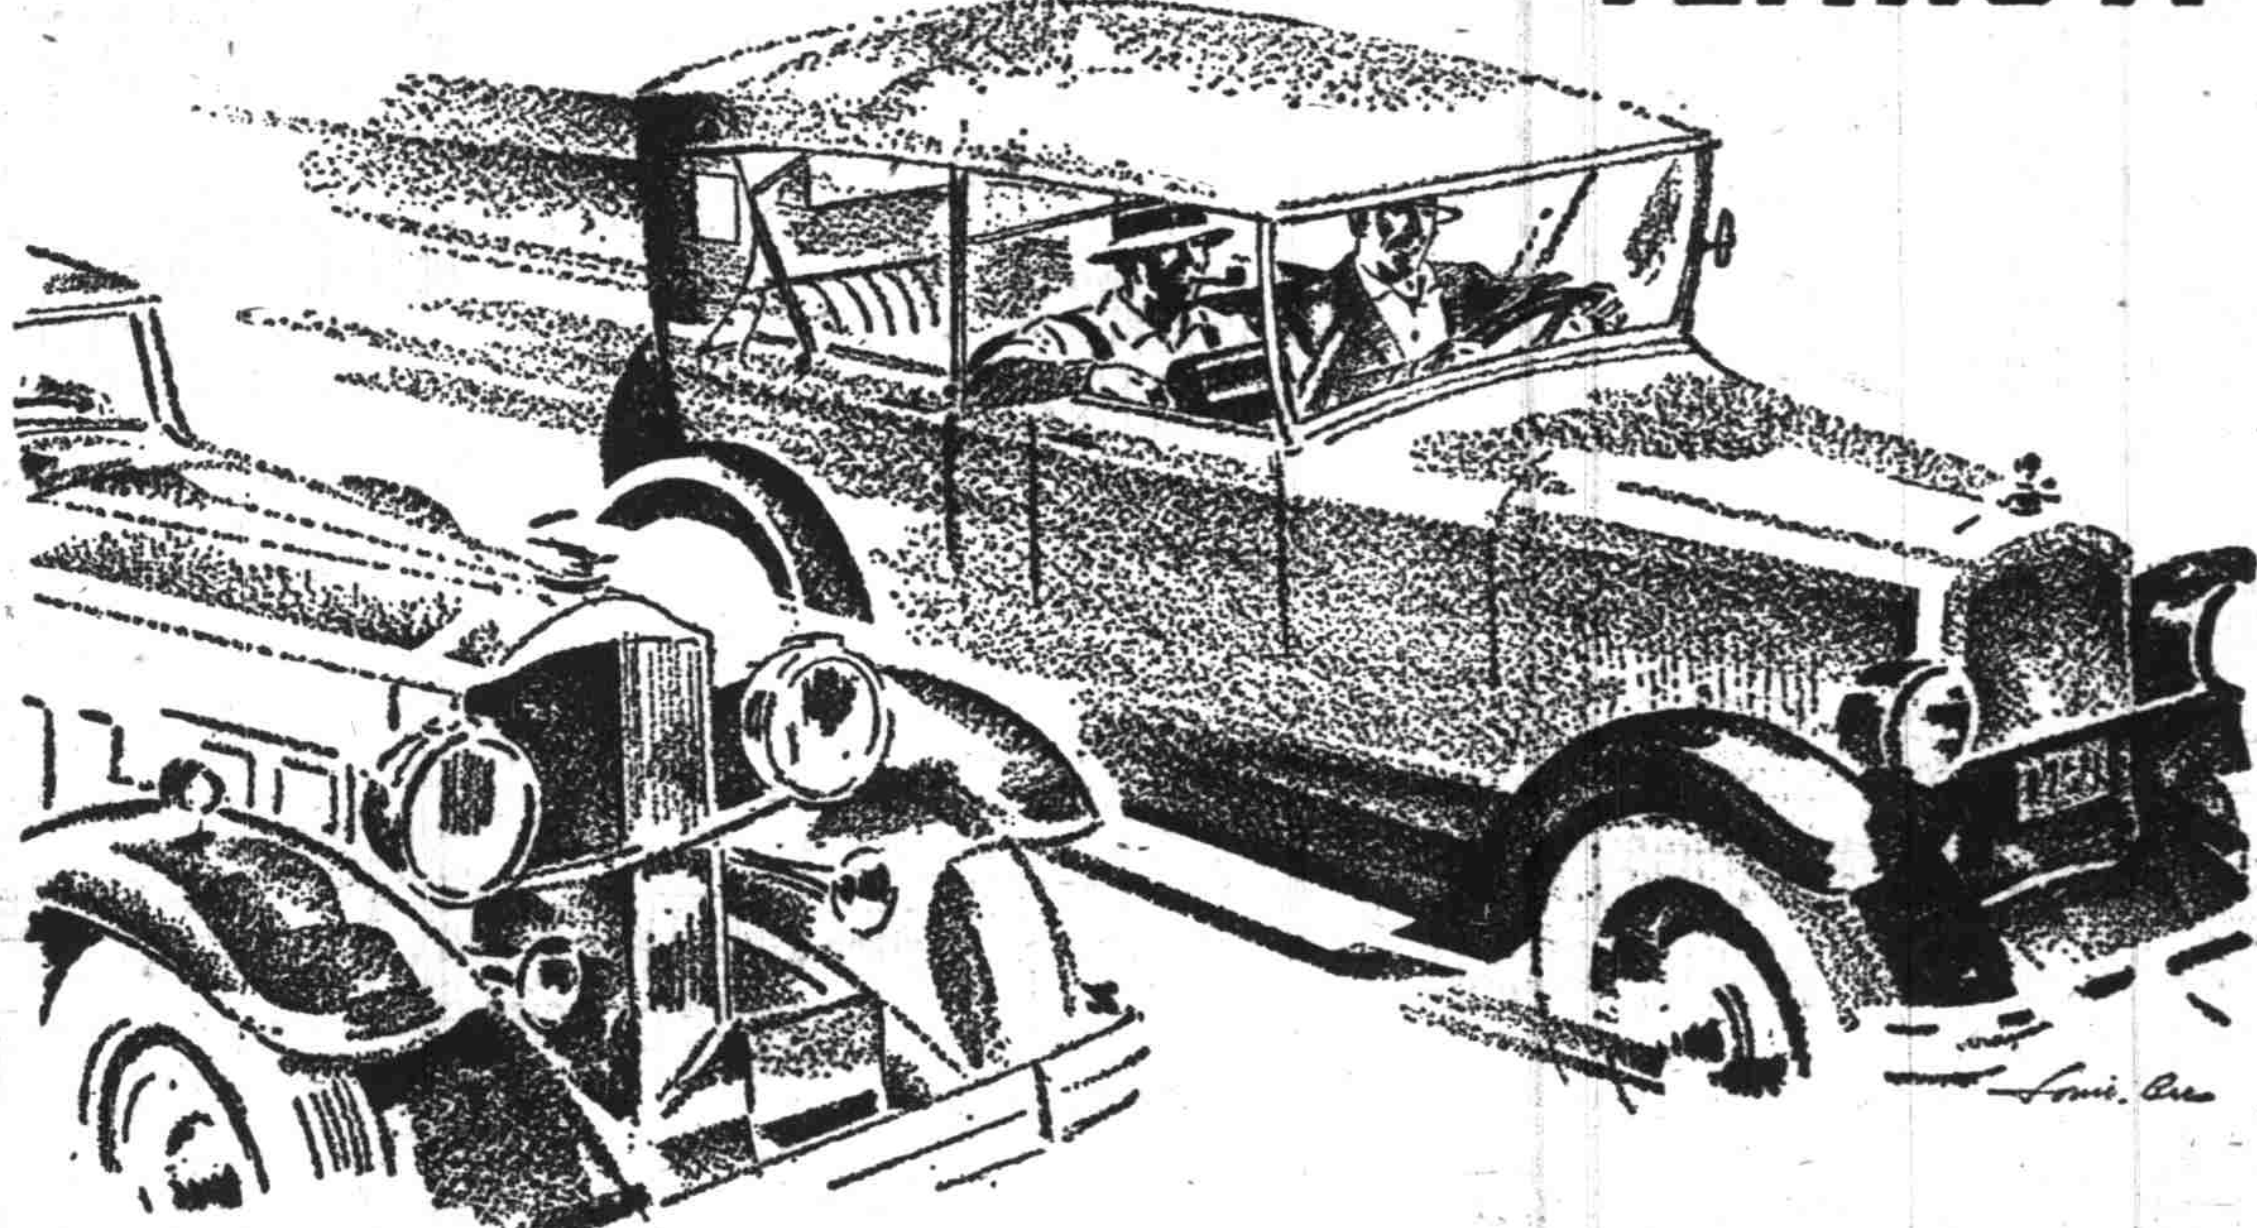

T. A. Juza of Salem, route six, was found guilty of reckless driving by a jury in West Salem justice court yesterday. Justice of the Peace Elmer D. Cook postponed passing sentence.
Juza was arrested by state police early last Sunday morning after his automobile collided head on with a car driven by I. W. Goodell of Rickreall just outside of Dallas city limits. Both cars were damaged to the extent of $75 each. Juza's car left the road and ran into the bank. None of the occupants of either car was injured.
According to state police, Juza drove squarely down the west side of the highway at the time of the crash.
