

AS YOU WERE. That is the status of the state highway commission. Leslie Scott is back on the commission and the hard-working program will again be resumed. And that program starts today in Portland when the commission will meet at the Benson hotel starting at 9 o'clock. We're glad to see Scott back on the commission.

In his selection announced yesterday, Scott is holder of the unique record of being named to the commission twice. The second time of course it was merely withdrawing a resignation, which however had been in effect for several weeks. Scott is both the fourth and seventh appointee to this group under the present administration.

The commission today will have for its primary object the allocation of but $132,000 of public lands funds, but there will be more of a fight over that. It was indicated, than over the allocation of $770,000 forest roads funds. There will be other matters of business before the commission, too, it was learned.

Max Gehlhar, agricultural director and head of the state fair, is becoming quite enthused over the coming fair. He says he has a lot of new features and revealed some of them to the press boys. Among other things, he intimated, there will be some foreign sports added to the list, and didn't say there would be "pull" either.

Before we place all members of the educational department under suspicion it would be well to announce which one was married last week. Robin J. Maaske, in charge of rural education, married Miss Margaret Lee Slusser of Monmouth. And his bride must be a peach to make it necessary for him to pass up the beauties within the department itself.

And speaking of marriage, it reminds us of another such event just seven years ago yesterday. Also A. L. Lindbeck, commenting upon matrimony, reminded the boys that on Saturday of this week he will observe his 21st wedding anniversary. Al added further that his wife is observing hers on the same day.

Jerrold Owen, present during the important discussion, was observed making a hasty note in his calendar under August 24. He didn't say what it was but sufficient evidence was on hand to convict him. Jerry has been busy in addition to his duties here aiding in planning entertainment for the Legionnaires. He will have charge of the press boys at the meet.

Many queries have been made of your correspondent during the day as to the failure of this column to appear yesterday. We were sorta at a loss to explain such failure other than the column wasn't written, which didn't seem to appease them. Then someone suggested it was the heat, and we gladly picked on that alibi. That's our story now.

Among the visitors at the capitol yesterday were J. O. Bailey, soon to become a justice of the supreme court; Herbert Gordon, campaigning for speaker of the house, and Paul C. Grossbeck of Portland, a member of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

If all the state officials followed the suit of Charles F. Pray, superintendent of state police, the budget would soon be balanced. Pray's salary, set by the legislature, came under the 10 per cent cut recommendation. But he went the state one better. He voluntarily reduced his own salary 16 per cent, it was learned.

Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, made an address to the Disabled Veterans' convention at McMinnville yesterday. Holman said he was representing the governor at the convention.

While automobile license sales are continuing by the thousands and more than 180,000 sets of plates have already been issued, there still seem to be reports in the air as to some action being contemplated for the relief of those still unable to pay. The latest report had it an announcement would be made out of Portland today relative to some plan.

"Barney" Bernhard, genial Salem correspondent for the Associated Press, yesterday observed his seventh wedding anniversary. He was married in Seattle, although his home at the time was in Marshfield. Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard spent last night in Portland where they took in theatre row, enjoyed dinner, and basked in the moonlight on their return to Sallera. In lieu of flowers, the press gang extends to Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard sincere wishes for many years of happy wedded life. — (Associate Editor.)

Johnsrud Death Basis of Action Faced by Espee

Damages of $3000 are sought from the Southern Pacific company for the death of Margaret Johnsrud November 20, 1931, in an accident on Smith street near the state fairgrounds. Oliver Johnsrud, administrator of her estate, claims the company's train was running too fast and that no signal was given at the street crossing.

For some time after the accident Miss Johnsrud's whereabouts were unknown and not until a search was inaugurated was her body found in the railroad right-of-way. She was 77 years old. The plaintiff will put forth his case entirely through circumstantial evidence since no bystanders witnessed the accident.
