T. E. Work Praised—Work of the Oregon Tuberculosis association is praised in a new book, "Control of Tuberculosis in the United States," just received at the state library here. The book, published by the National Tuberculosis association, states that the Oregon organization "is fortunate to have the services of Mrs. S. J. Orr Dunbar as secretary." It comments on the fact that whereas in 1915 there were but 38 hospital beds used in tuberculosis work in this state, outside of state institutions, at present there are four institutions with 413 beds.

MANY S. H. S. GRADS ENTER WILLAMETTE

Local University Drawing Greater Percentage Than in Past

Graduates of Salem high school last June are landing toward Willamette university for their college work. Whereas the state college and university in past years has drawn a large number of them, this year each institution to date will receive seven while 60 are planning to attend the local university. J. C. Nelson reported yesterday. Six are planning to take up hospital work, three to attend state normal school, and six to go to other institutions.

Nelson expects that a large number of students will request that their credits be sent to various institutions toward the end of this month. Fewer apparently are planning to attend college this year than from other graduating classes.

Credits have been forwarded to date for the following students: Willamette university—Josephine Acklin, Dorothy Alexander, Helen Benner, Esther Black, Elizabeth Bonnell, Beatrice Burton, Constance Cartmill, Anoka Coates, Clarence Collins, Josephine Cornoyer, Wayne Doughton, Hanna Eymann, Laura Flagg, Kenneth Fleming, Esther Gibbard, Parker Gies, Thelma Gillette, Betty-Mae Hartung, Paul Haiso, Elizabeth Holcomb, LeVerne Homyer, Albert and John Hughes, Dalbert Jepsen, Helen Johnson, Helen Keudell, Kathleen Lindbeck, Laurence Lloyd, Donald Magee, Margaret Magee, Betty Martin, Hazel Mason, Lew-Melson, Waldo Mills, Eileen Moore, Wray Morehouse, Elsie both Murphy, Frances Park, Earle V. Under the Dome
Occurrences of Gossip at the center of Oregon's State Government

D. R. ZOOK left for his home port last night, in other words he is on his way back to Akron, Ohio, after visiting state institutions. He was in Salem yesterday, but refused to say anything following his conference with Charlie Starr, head of the board of higher education. To be or not to be the chancellor appears to be the question.

And Zook proved as hard to trace here during the day as the most disappearing politician. Newsboys were on the lookout for him all day, and it wasn't until 2 o'clock in the afternoon before contact was made. And then he informed that an interview would be useless as he had nothing to say.

Among the local visitors at the state capitol yesterday were E. F. Slade of the First National bank and William Zoel of the firm of Rostin & Adolph. Slade, a member of the hydroelectric commission was up to see certain state officials, while Zoel was seen swapping baseball experiences with Herb Glaisyer of the highway department.

The big issues of the day are settled daily by old timers at the corner of State and Commercial. Big issues ranging from prohibition to education are discussed during the late afternoons by about 25 of these men, and the last report was that they had reelected Hoover and also solved the evils of government.

One of the big questions for northwest counties and Portland will be settled today with the release of the engineer's report on the short-cut route to the sea. Baldock said his report, which would be in detail not only would recommend a certain route but would support the decision with figures and survey details.

Another week without a quorum of the state board of control is seen for the present second-day period. Neither the governor nor secretary of state is in.

Results of Boy Scout Camp are Held Best Ever
This year's session of the Salem Boy Scout camp was the best ever held in point of attendance and advancement made by the boys. Executive O. P. West reported on his return here yesterday. West spent the past week at the camp, vacationing.

At the camp court of honor, over 60 boys were up for rank advancements and merit badges. The boys "got more out of this camp than ever before." In West's opinion, altogether, 126 attended the session, which was divided into three one-week periods.

Gladiolus Display Brings Admiration From Large Crowd
SILVERTON, Aug. 15.—All Friday and Saturday until way into Saturday night, crowds gathered in front of the Starr Hardware company store to admire the display of gladiolus placed there from the Harvey Hallet gardens. Around 30 were on display. Two seedlings, a pink and a white, attracted considerable attention. Many of the visitors expressed preference for the immense pure white Mammoth White. Both the Blue Admiral and Vielchenblau were popular. A large basket of Dr. F. E. Bennetts was beautiful. Mother Macrae, a peculiar dusky gray, was much commented upon, as was also Atlanta.

MARCHES OF SOUSA FEATURED BY BAND

Marches of the late John Philip Sousa will be featured tonight at the municipal band concert. Another entertainment feature will be the appearance of the women's quartet of the American Legion auxiliary. The quartet will appear next month in the national convention at Portland. Quartet members are Mrs. Mildred Wyatt, Mrs. Bernice Bows, Mrs. Marie Robertson and Mrs. Grace Zosel. Tonight's program: "Stars and Stripes Forever" Sousa; "The Dollar Princess" Fall; "Ensteno Seducer" (Mexican waltz) Rosas; Popular numbers—"Nights in the Woods"; "Goodnight, My Love"; "Home"; "The Serenade" Herbert American Legion Ladies' Quartet; "Lassie o' Mine"; "The Bells of St. Mary's"; "The Butterfly"; Bendix Medley overture—"Arra Wanna" Morse; "Comrades of the Legion" Sousa; "Star Spangled Banner" Sousa.

ZOOK VISITS HERE BUT SAYS NOTHING

Although he visited in Salem briefly Monday, Dr. George Frederick Zook, president of Akron university, Akron, O., refused to comment on his presence in Oregon in connection with the chancellorship of the higher education system.

Dr. Zook arrived in Salem late Sunday night, and left early Monday for Dallas, where he conferred with C. L. Starr, chairman of the state board of higher education. He returned to Salem at noon, and left later in the day for Portland, where he was to board a train Monday night for his home.

Plans for featuring Oregon products on menus not only in Portland, but over the sections of the state which the American Legion national convention visitors will traverse, were discussed here yesterday when S. T. White of McMinnville, president of the American Legion Oregon Products commission, met with a delegation from the local chamber of commerce.

Oregon products will not only be featured on menus of all hotels and restaurants in Portland and other cities during the convention, but special menus of Oregon products will be used on all railroad lines centering in the northwest. The menus will feature commodities as Oregon products, and not as foodstuffs coming from one section. Marion county celery and cherries will be featured along the other Oregon foods.

Only best grade Oregon products will be used at the hotels, restaurants and dining cars that use the special menus prepared by this Legion state-boosting committee, as the committee asks the fullest cooperation of the regular market channels applying to such foodstuffs to see that only the finest foods are served.

Douglas McKay, president of the Salem chamber of commerce, will appoint a committee to work in cooperation with the state group to handle the local situation and to see that Marion county is well represented in the publicity.

The Oregon products idea and menus are not only to acquaint the visitors with the high class agricultural commodities produced here, but to show what Oregon exports in the way of foodstuffs, and what can be purchased in their own home markets. Oregon products will also be advertised to Oregon people through the special menu idea.

Kenneth Miller is secretary of the Oregon products state committee. Paul Adams, former editor of the Pacific "omestead here and now secretary of the Oregon dairy council, is chairman of the menu committee, and Max Gehlar, head of the state agricultural department, is chairman of publicity.

The group meeting here yesterday also talked plans for a broadcast at the convention time as an Oregon products advertiser.

Acroplane Sales Holding Up Well
Lee U. Eyerly, head of the Eyerly Aircraft corporation, reports that company has sold 43 acroplanes, the "ground flying" device invented by Mr. Eyerly. This market has brought $45,000 into Salem. Most of the sales have been on the east and west coasts, few in the interior. Sixteen have been sold in New York.

"I have nothing to say," Dr. Zook replied, when asked regarding his visit to Oregon. He added that an interview with newspapermen would be useless. Dr. Zook was accompanied to Portland by Dr. E. E. Lindsey, secretary of the state board of higher education.

Dr. Zook spent Saturday at Eugene inspecting the state university plant and at Monmouth conferring with state normal school officials. He inspected the state college at Corvallis Monday. While here Monday Dr. Zook did not visit the statehouse. He was said to have conferred with Governor Meier in Portland Saturday.

TWO GET FINES
WOODBURN, Aug. 15.—Two small firms were levied against petty lawbreakers in Woodburn's justice court Friday. A fine of $5 and costs was levied against William Kuhn, the charge being breaking glass on a public highway. Judge Overton fined Alfred T. Bowley $2.50 and costs for driving an automobile with four adult persons in the driver's seat.
