News Man Here—Richard C. Horn, business manager of the Eugene Morning News, was a visitor in Salem Saturday.

CAPTAIN H. W. McCLAIN of the state police was observed the past few days out of uniform—and there is a reason. The reports are that "Mac" thought he was still a kid and was playing baseball with the boys out on North Fifth. Somehow he fell on the pavement and became so excited that he could not wear a uniform. So that is why "Mac" appears as a plain-clothes man.

A certain foreman of a newspaper composing room in Salem—and we are not speaking of our beloved Ed of The Statesman, returned from a vacation all sunburned and swollen. The incident reminds us of the time he got married and became so absent minded that he started to shave himself just about 30 minutes after he had been to a barber shop. How does it feel, Frank?

It seems to be a foregone conclusion that Willard Marks will resign as president of the state senate. Yesterday he talked of Mr. Marks in a formal manner, but today we are asking him as a friend of the newspaper boys not to forget us in the event he leaves the senate. Willard is a former newspaperman and knows just how we feel about him—and that's not just words, either, Willard.

News reports from Albany inform us of an attack made upon an eight-year old girl by a high school youth. Usually stories of this type come from the east or from Los Angeles and are played up in black headlines, but when it occurs closer to home it is a different matter. But to us the crime appears even greater when it comes so close to home.

Next week promises to be just as quiet as the past three weeks have been, as Governor Meter left Portland Friday for Gearhart to spend at least a week. From this report it appears he will not be back in Salem. That will leave at least another week without the chairman of the board of control and no doubt without any of the other members.

In the every day political strife as noted here and at every other state capitol and the national capitol as well, it is a great relief to find among state departments one where there is no great turnover in employes and one which at the same time receives no complaint. In fact, because of that, there is one de-

Obituary

Rehwalt
At a local hospital, Friday, August 19, William Rehwalt, 83, of 2055 Warner street. Survived by widow, Dorothy Rehwalt; two sons, John of Spokane and William of Westfir; three daughters, Mrs. Eric Jorgenson of Perma, Mont., Elma Rehwalt of Portland, Mrs. F. N. Smith of Salem; sister, Mrs. Martha Hilman of Oregon City; brother, Martin Rehwalt. Funeral services Sunday, August 21, at 3 p. m., from the chapel of the Salem Mortuary, 545 North Capitol street. Interment Belcrest Memorial cemetery.

Go to Beach—Prof. and Mrs. R. W. H. Seitz are spending the weekend at Neskovin.

And the reason is simple. It is a highly complicated department and one in which employes must know what it is all about or they would not last long. But as we said before it is gratifying to know that the head of this particular department, an appointee by the way, has been in office now more than 37 years. And there is a reason.

George Brown has been clerk of the state land board for a long time and the past week passed his 37th year in that department. But he has done such a good job that his removal, or even interference with his staff, would be a great mistake. And every administration has quickly recognized his ability, and George is urgently requested to remain on the job.

But that isn't all. The youngest in terms of service—on his staff right now is six years old. She is Mrs. Mary McElroy. She is only one of eight members in that department, including George. But that department is highly technical and every member knows "his, or her, stuff," to put it in course language.

Among the members of that department are listed Jim Stewart, whom everyone knows and who knows more about land and state business than any other state employe with the exception of George, and Miss Julie Webster, who has been with that department even longer than Jim who lists his employment more than seven years ago.

We had that department, George started in there in 1895 as assistant to the clerk, and in 1903 he became clerk of the board and has held that position ever since. Hats off to you, George, and may you continue to serve the state as you have for many more years to come.

Salem-Amity, via Wheatland ferry—Good. Dallas-Williamina—Good gravel. McKennis highway—Generally good, no fresh oil, a little loose gravel for a quarter mile near Nimrod but not dangerous or hard on tires.
