Bits for Breakfast

terpreter had not left Mr. Spalding more than 20 minutes when he saw three armed Cayuses riding hastily towards him, who were in pursuit of Mr. Spalding. Upon coming to the interpreter they seemed much displeased that I had warned Mr. Spalding of their intentions, and thereby furnished him with an opportunity to escape. 'The priest ought to have attended to his own business and not to have interfered with ours,' they said in an angry tone, and started immediately in pursuit of him. And they must have inevitably overtaken him had not the approaching darkness of the night and a heavy fog that happened to fall down, prevented them from discovering his trail and forced them to return. . . . After six days of danger, privations and fatigue, Mr. Spalding was enabled to reach his family at his mission among the Nez Perces. . . . I was truly happy to learn that Mr. Spalding was out of danger, and I thanked God sincerely for having made me instrumental in saving the life of a fellow creature at the peril of my own.

"Some days after an express reached us from the fort (Fort Walla Walla), informing us that our lives were in danger from a portion of the Indians who could not pardon me for having deprived them of their victim."

(The Bits man has just been given a lead which indicates that the grave of the Dorion Woman is in the old cemetery at St. Paul. This will be taken up later, but perhaps not for about three weeks.)

Ultimate Recovery For Youth Now Held

AURORA, Aug. 20—It seems most miraculous that George Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Nelson, should be given the hope of ultimate recovery unless unforseen complications arise. He sustained injuries of the spine and suffered a broken neck while diving at Goods bridge on July 20. He was removed from an Oregon City hospital to the Shriners hospital four weeks ago for treatment and is showing marked improvement.
