Lake Wants Addition To Game Area; Onion Harvest Starts Soon

LAKE LABISH, Aug. 29.—A number of local onion growers are considering a petition to authorities to make another large portion of Lake Labish into a game preserve. Quail, pheasants, and the semi-wild guinea-fowl are helpful in exterminating the onion fly, that bane of the young plant. Hunters have been allegedly trespassing in season and making off with a number of birds, and there is a considerable desire to rectify this condition. A part of the lake is already a game reserve.

Onion pulling will be in full swing about the middle of next week. No reported opening price has yet been set by buyers.

For the Week End We Quote—

Gee Whiz, this isnt the week end, is it? Oh well it really dosent make any difference which end it is at the market. While we hesitate to say so our self its never the less a fact you can buy just as well one day as another at this store. Or in other words as the chain store ad would say we just naturally have your pocket book at heart so much it seems we've gotta give every thing away (well maybe not everything). We figure that if we sell at reasonable prices, a lot of those four bit pieces thats been goin back to Wall Street will stay out here where every one may get a few of em laid by for a rainy day or somethin. So if you hapen to be needing anything from the Grocery Store, we offer the suggestion that you come to the Market. Yes we'll even go further than that, we advise it.
